Wife missing more than 24 hours

Banker pleads with kidnapers for some word

LINO LAKES, Minn. (UPI) — A distraught banker, standing in the cold in front of his country home, Saturday appealed "earnestly and intensely" to his wife's kidnapers to contact him, adding, "Eunice, I love you."

"I've heard nothing further from her abductors," said Gunnar Kronholm, 60, who has said he would comply with any demand they made.

"It's been 24 hours now. They've passed very painfully, I can assure you," he told a news conference outside his home where family members gathered to comfort him.

"Earnestly and intensely I plead with the abductors to make some form of contact. I beg of you to do this," he said.

Then Kronholm, his voice breaking, addressed his wife: "Eunice, I love you, and all of us offer prayers on your behalf."

It was Kronholm's second news conference since the disappearance of his 46-year-old wife which was followed by a telephoned threat to raise all the money he could.

Kronholm's son, Mark, a goalie for the Notre Dame hockey team, had not been reached and apparently wasn't aware of the abduction, the banker said.

Kronholm's gold-haired wife disappeared Friday. He said he became concerned when he was unable to reach her in several calls to his home and that in the afternoon he received a call from a man who said: "We have your wife. Deliver all the money you have to a station at . . . "

The banker said he didn't understand the rest of what was said before the caller hung up.

He said the FBI assured him it would not interfere with any instructions he received to pay ransom.

"In fact," he said, "I'm asking that no one interfere."

Mrs. Kronholm told her husband before he left for his office Friday that she had "several things to do" during the day. They planned to meet in the afternoon.

Kronholm is president of the Drover's State Bank in South St. Paul. the couple has six children, none living at home.

The Kronholm home in this woodland area dotted with lakes on the north side of St. Paul is a green ranch style building at the end of a winding two-mile tree-lined road.

Lino Lakes is across the twin cities from Wayzata, where the sensational and still unsolved Piper kidnaping occurred in August of 1972.

Virginia Piper, wife of the board chairman of an investment company, was taken from their suburban home and a $1 million ransom was demanded. The money was paid and she was found alive—chained to a tree. The abductors were not caught, but from time to time marked bills paid the kidnapers turned up in business places and banks in Minnesota.

Closer to embargo lift

Lower oil price—Saudi; answer is 'no'

VIENNA (UPI) — Saudi Arabia called Saturday for a decrease in the price of crude oil beginning April 1, but Iran said the world's oil exporters would not lower their prices.

The announcement by Iranian Finance Minister Jamshid Amouzegar came as the Arab world moved closer to the probable lifting the oil boycott against the United States.

Earlier, Saudi Arabian oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani said he made the proposal to lower prices at a meeting of ministers of the 12-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), which produces 85 per cent of the world's oil exports.

Yamani told newsmen that Arab oil ministers would meet separately in Vienna today to decide conditions for lifting their oil embargo against the United States.

"The embargo will be lifted," Yamani said. The ban on shipments of Arab oil to the United States was imposed last October because of U.S. support of Israel during the 1973 Middle East war.

OPEC officials said Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter, wanted Middle East crude oil posted prices to go down from $11.65 to $10 a barrel. Libya and Algeria were pressing for an increase of up to $14 per barrel, OPEC officials said. Venezuela—a principal U.S. supplier—opposed any cuts.

Amouzegar, who was asked by newsmen if prices of crude oil would be reduced, increased or frozen at present levels, said that: "One thing I can say for certain is that prices will not go down."

Amouzegar made his remarks after a six-hour conference of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) to fix crude oil prices for the second quarter of 1974.

"The prices may go up. They may remain the same. But certainly they should not go down," Venezuelan mines minister Valentin Hernandez said in an interview.

He said no decision on prices had been reached during the ministers' three-and-a-half hour morning session. The conference also met in afternoon session.

OPEC member nations—Abu Dhabi, Algeria, Ecuador, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Klwait, Libya, Nigeria, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and Venezuela—tripled their prices in the past five months, pushing up gasoline prices in some countries by more than 100 per cent.

Shur-r-r and it's a great day for the Irish

By United Press International

America's Irish began St. Patrick's Day celebrations a day early Saturday with a showing of the green in two of the nation's biggest cities—New York and Chicago.

Louisville, Ky., had its first St. Patrick's Day parade since 1916—revived by Mayor Harvey I. Sloane whose wife, Kathy, is Irish.

The parade in Sacramento, Calif., was joined by two male nude streakers. One of them was arrested and charged with indecent exposure and resisting arrest.

Boston will hold its parade Sunday, as will Annapolis, Md., and many other communities.

Crowds up to 10-deep lined Fifth Avenue to observe New York City's 212th annual parade.

It was a day for bagpipes, marching bands, and highstepping baton twirlers celebrating the holiday of more than one million New Yorkers of Irish background.

Mayor Abraham Beame, Gov. Malcolm Wilson and most other politicians were on hand to march or view the proceedings.

"It's great to be here among my fellow Irishmen,' quipped Beame, the city's first Jewish mayor.

Among the generally amiable crowds, only one heckler chided the mayor's choice of the British luxury liner, the Queen Elizabeth II, as the site for his upcoming birthday celebration.

"Change your party to an Irish ship," yelled one man, who said he was a member of the National Association for Irish Freedom.

It snowed on Mayor Richard J. Daley's Chicago spectacle, replete with 70,000 marchers and 50 floats. The parade route, State Street, sported green stripes.

Five Irish International Airlines stewardesses and Irish Consul General Timothy Corcoran presented Daley with a bowl of shamrocks picked in Ireland.

Chino, Industry herds infected

Harmful bacteria found in raw milk

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — County health officials Saturday urged all persons buying raw milk during the week to return it because a second batch of samples from a dairy have been found to contain bacteria.

A sample of raw milk from the Alta-Dena Dairy's City of Industry herd was tested Saturday and Salmonella Dublin bacterium, which causes a severe intestinal infection, was found, the Health Department said.

The County Milk Commission ordered the infected milk to be pasteurized. They said the treatment removes the disease danger.

Salmonella Dublin bacteria is especially harmful to sick persons and infants, the health department said.

The City of Industry herd has more than 1,000 cows, but it was not known how many of the cows had the bacteria, health officials said.

The milk commission Friday ordered raw milk from Alta-Dena Dairy's herd in Chino to be pasteurized because six cows in that herd were found by blood tests to have Brucellosis, a similar disease to Salmonella Dublin.

Raw milk from the herd was banned from sale in San Bernardino County because the cows were a possible carrier of Brucellosis. But the milk was placed on sale in Los Angeles County all week with the knowledge of the milk commission.

The commission ordered milk from the herd to be pasteurized before sale here.

The infected cows were killed.

The commission lifted its original pasteurization order early in the week because tests of the milk showed no signs of brucellosis organisms. But they reversed their decision Friday and placed the restriction for treatment of the milk before allowing it for sale in the county.

Pilot runs out of gas, lands in Claremont field

CLAREMONT — A Burbank pilot became a victim of the energy crisis when he was forced to make an unscheduled landing in a vacant field on Indian Hill Boulevard, just south of the San Bernardino Freeway Saturday night.

William Townsend, 35, ran out of fuel and force-landed his single-engine Cessna 150 plane about 6 p.m., police said. Townsend and his passenger, Carol Sawyer, 28, of Ontario, were not injured and the plane was not damaged, officers indicated.

The plane's gas gauge indicated the pilot had half a tank left, police added, but it apparently was a faulty gauge.

Townsend was flying from Catalina Island, he said, headed for Cable Airport in Upland.

Claremont police were forced into an unfamiliar role, also, of "baby-sitting" the aircraft for several hours until Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) officials arrived to investigate the landing.

A LITTLE COUNTRY MUSIC, FOLKS

President Nixon provides own accompaniment as he sings on stage Saturday at the opening performance of the Grand Ole Opry at its new location in Nashville, Tenn.

Nixon makes it a night at the Grand Ole Opry

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — President Nixon played "Happy Birthday" to his wife and "God Bless America" to the crowd on the piano Saturday night, highlighting a gala opening of the Grand Ole Opry's new $15 million home here.

Nixon and his wife took the stage along with Roy Acuff to a thunderous ovation from 4,400 persons attending the opening of the new Opry House, and the President won the audience when he pulled a yellow yo yo out of his pocket, began yo yoing, and quipped, "I just learned to play this thing."

The yo yo had been given to him by Acuff, who likes to twirl it between numbers when he is on stage.

After Mrs. Tex Ritter, widow of the country music great, presented Mrs. Nixon with a dulcimer, a stringed instrument, Acuff turned to the President ... propriate if you would play the piano for us."

Nixon replied, "In this very professional company, I am embarrassed," but he sat down and played "Happy Birthday" for Mrs. Nixon, who celebrated her 62nd birthday Saturday. Then, warming to the keys, he played "My Wild Irish Rose."

Nixon brought the house down when he said someone once told him that the only thing stronger than country moonshine was country music, and added, "I saw two fellows outside combining the two and, believe me, that was strong."

Nixon said people had traveled from all over the country for the opening of country music's new home, but he said Mrs. Nixon claimed the record. "My wife flew 5,000 miles from Brazil to get here," he said, referring to her return from a six-day Latin American jour-

'Keeping my word, I want Patty home,' Hearst says

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Randolph A. Hearst said Saturday he was keeping his word to the kidnapers of his 20-year-old daughter and doing everything he can to meet their demands.

"The one thing I want above all is to get Patty home as quickly as possible," Hearst said.

Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner and son of the late newspaper giant William Randolph Hearst, issued a brief written statement at his home in suburban Hillsborough.

His daughter, Patricia, was abducted from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4 by a terrorist group calling itself the Symbionese Liberation Army.

In his written statement, Hearst dealt with the demand of two imprisoned SLA members, Russell Little, 26, and Joseph Remiro, 27, that they be allowed to appear on nationwide television with a proposal for freeing the kidnaped girl.

He also explained why the food ransom program set up in an attempt to win his daughter's freedom had been suspended temporarily. The statement was made in response to the fifth taped communique received from the SLA by the Hearsts a week ago.

"Earlier this week I stated that I would have a detailed response to the latest communique from the SLA," Hearst said.

"My reason for not doing so to date is that this last message is more complicated than previous messages in that it deals with more objectives. As an example, the People in Need program (of food distribution) has been temporarily halted so that the next distribution will concur more fully with the SLA demands.

"I am doing all I can to facilitate the appearance of Remiro and Little in a televised news conference. I believe such an appearance can be very helpful to the release of Patricia. Unfortunately, these things take time as the people involved include lawyers, judges, district attorneys and sheriffs.

"I have not broken my word to the SLA, and I am doing everything I can to carry out their demands. The one thing I want above all is to get Patty home as quickly as possible, and, I repeat, I am doing all I can to bring that about."

Remiro and Little went to court last Wednesday across the bay in Martinez seeking permission for the national television appearance. A judge is scheduled to rule on their petition Tuesday. As the two came into court in shackles, their attorney admitted theirs was a "most unique and unprecedented request."

Two days ago A. Ludlow Kramer, director of the People in Need program, said the giveaway was near an end for lack of funds. He said the food distribution scheduled for sometime next week could be the last.

But gas could cost 70 cents a gallon

End of the gas shortage—maybe

By ROBERT F. BUCKHORN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The end of the Arab oil embargo will sharply reduce the gasoline shortage and make the government's rationing plan obsolete, but the price of gasoline will rise to record highs, energy officials agree.

There may be secondary economic effects. President Nixon has said the oil embargo was a primary cause for inflation and the decrease in automobile sales and housing.

The first effect of the lifting of the embargo is expected to be the end of Sunday gas station closings, which have had a sharp effect on the tourist industry.

Gasoline station operators also will be free to fill up a motorists' tank rather than selling gas only if the tank is less than half full, the officials predict.

But other conservation measures — the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit, and the fuel allocation program —will stay in effect.

John C. Sawhill, deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Office, said the new supply of Arab oil could cut the U.S. shortage as low as 2 to 4 per cent compared to a high in recent months of 14 to 20 per cent. He said the gasoline allocation program would remain in effect through the summer.

But if gasoline is to become more plentiful, it will cost more. Some experts predict gasoline could rise as high as 70 cents a gallon.

The first shipments of Arab oil probably will not arrive in the U.S. for four to six weeks after the embargo is lifted. The major reason is simply transportation.

A tanker must reach a Saudi Arabian port, load its cargo of oil, and then travel 11,000 miles to U.S. ports. Many U.S. ports are not equipped to handle supertankers, which must then unload their oil in the Caribbean and ship it to the U.S.

However, some tankers already at sea could be rerouted to U.S. ports.

Energy Chief William E. Simon also has said he will urge U.S. oil firms to tap the nation's 217-million-barrel stockpile of gasoline to provide added gas for the U.S. while awaiting the first Arab oil shipments.

One major effect of the end of the embargo could be economic.

President Nixon Friday told a Chicago audience that the energy crisis led to economic difficulties. "It is one of the primary reasons we have an inflationary spiral at the present time," he said. "It is one of the primary reasons for difficulties in automobile sales.

But with the end of the embargo, and an easing of the gasoline shortage, observers predict the recent sharp drop in the sale of automobiles will be reversed and the supplies of industrial products that depend on petrochemicals will go up.

Response to Reagan plea

More gas stations open Sunday?

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Following an appeal from Gov. Ronald Reagan, at least 371 more service stations were expected to be open Sunday.

Reagan's plea was apparently at odds with White House statements urging Sunday closings for service stations.

The governor telegrammed the oil firms asking them to open company-owneed stations because of "continuing difficulties many people are having in obtaining gasoline."

Responses to the governor's office indicated that an extra 371 stations would open, and responses from some major firms were awaited.

Report to solon

Gas withheld to put independents out of business?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., said Saturday that he had received reports the major oil companies were deliberately trying to put independent retailers out of business by withholding gasoline.

Schweiker asked for an investigation in telegrams to U.S. Attorney Robert E. J. Curran and to Joseph LaSala, the Federal Energy Office administrator for Pennsylvania.

Schweiker said he had received reports the oil companies were telling small stations no more gasoline was available at the same time that company-owned stations received extra gas.

"If these most serious allegations are true, they probably constitute an illegal restraint of trade in violation of federal law," Schweiker said.

He said he had asked Curran, the attorney for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, to assign "experienced antitrust investigators" to look into the complaints.

Schweiker said he had been told the oil companies were discouraging small gas station operators from applying for extra supplies. If they do ask, he said, the oil companies were said to recommend disapproval or "manage to lose the papers, or sit on them for days on end."

More Israel-Syrian clashes, but accord near, says Egypt

Syrian and Israeli artillery dueled on the Golan Heights Saturday for the fifth consecutive day, but in Cairo the semi-official Egyptian press predicted an agreement on Syrian-Israeli troop withdrawals could be reached "within days."

The Damascus command reported some Israeli soldiers were killed and wounded, but said there were no Syrian losses. The command also said an Israeli artillery emplacement, military installations and the headquarters of a tank unit were destroyed by Syrian artillery fire.

The Tel Aviv command said it received reports of "firing here and there but nothing serious so far, just what we call drizzle."

The Israeli command said the Syrians fired recoilless rifle shells into Israeli positions in Mizrat Beit Jann, but caused no casualties.

Despite the new fighting, the semi-official Egyptian press said Saturday a troop separation agreement between Israel and Syria on the Golan Heights could be reached by the end of this month.

Other Egyptian press reports said King Hussein of Jordan wants to convene an Arab summit on the future of the Palestinian land claims. The reports said Hussein was willing to meet with his archrival, Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat of the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

The influential Cairo newspaper Al Goumhouria said a reconciliation of Syrian-Israeli views on disengagement is likely to be reached "within days."

The predictions came as a surprise to most Arab commentators, who had been expecting a long and difficult wrangle between Syrian and Israel over the extent of Israeli withdrawal on the barren cease-fire line.

Al Gomhouria gave no indiction of how these differences were being reconciled. But it said "a number of points were reached that could serve as the basis for military talks on disengagement" in contacts in Washington between American, Syrian and Israeli officials.

Youth sought in Pomona robbery

POMONA — Police today are searching for a teenaged bandit who robbed a liquor store at 928 W. Second St. of $60 in cash after simulating a gun.

Officers said the robber, about 17 years old, entered Bill's Liquor and Deli Friday night and asked for a paper sack and cigarettes. He then ordered a clerk to empty the cash register into the sack.

After making the clerk lie on the floor, the bandit fled eastbound on Second St.

'Cruelly, unjustly assaulted'

Tricia comes to her dad's defense

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tricia Nixon Cox, the President's eldest daughter, charges that her father has been "cruelly and unjustly assaulted" for Watergate by people who want him removed for all time from public office, according to an article published Saturday.

In one of her strongest public defenses of the President, Mrs. Cox refuted in the latest issue of the Ladies Home Journal what she described as accusations and rumors about her personal life and that of her family's.

Tricia denied that her marriage to Edward Cox, a New York City attorney, was breaking up and said accusations they did not pay their income taxes was false.

On Watergate, she said, "I think history will record that Watergate was a politically motivated matter that used the mistakes of a handful of foolish people to try to force out of office, by resignation or impeachment, a man who was innocent of all the fiction, not fact, of which he was accused.

"These people wanted to be rid once and for all of Richard Nixon, to satisfy their own jealousy of a man who by his daily, weekly and yearly accomplishments reminded them of their own ineptitude and failure."

She said she pitied those who talked of impeaching the President, "for their hypocrisy, for their prejudices.

"I think it would be interesting to let these accusers, God help us all' try to run the country for a week and show them the consequences. But in the next three years they are not going to have this opportunity."

In an interview with People magazine, Tricia's husband, Edward Cox, said he gets along fine with his father-in-law but admits he calls him "Mr. President."

"We get along fine," Cox said of his marriage. "We both work very hard—I in my law practice and Trish in the house. The divorce rumors were so unbelievable that when they were first published, Trish didn't even bother to phone me."

Of their separation which spawned the rumors, Cox said, "She was in San Clemente (Calif.) with her parents, but I wasn't able to get off work. When she returned I was out of town on a case. When we next saw each other I found her cleaning the kitchen floor. Now, if a divorce was pending she wouldn't be cleaning the house."

On the President's problems, Cox said, last fall "I wanted to take leave from my law practice, and help without pay in the President's defense. But even though I would have been a volunteer, I gave up the idea. It would have had the appearance of nepotism."

Cox said his political philosophy was "very, very similar" to that of the President and he denied rumors he does not get along with Nixon.

"It's difficult for us to really disagree on anything, because he's such a great listener...no one could ask for a better father-in-law."

He said he was always careful to call Nixon "Mr. President" and said the two watched televised football games together last year.

Heard nothing but praise for Nixon on trip, says Pat

MIAMI (UPI) — Pat Nixon said Saturday she heard nothing but praise for her husband's administration during a six-day trip to Latin America and that she has nothing to fear from the Watergate scandal.

Mrs. Nixon ordered "drinks and champagne for everybody" aboard her Air Force plane to celebrate her 62nd birthday Saturday. Her staff gave her a party with baloons, signs, specially written songs and a cake with "Happy Birthday, Mrs. Nixon in Portuguese. A birthday celebration is planned at the Nashville, Tenn. airport, where the First Lady is to be reunited with Nixon and both will dedicate the new Grand Ole Opry building.

Watergate was not mentioned until the birthday interview she gave aboard the plane. Mrs. Nixon saw Carlos Andres Perez become president of Venezuela Tuesday and Gen. Ernesto Geisel inaugurated president of Brazil on Friday.

Mrs. Nixon said she was treated warmly by Perez and Geizel and the other diplomats. She was asked if any of them discussed Watergate.

"No, this isn't covered there," she interrupted. "It's only covered in the metropolitan newspapers. Even out in the country in the USA it isn't."

Asked what has sustained her during the past year while her husband's administration has been surrounded by scandal, Mrs. Nixon replied:

"The truth sustains me because I have great faith in my husband. He's an honorable, dedicated person and when you know the truth you have nothing to fear. I have a very positive outlook."

When she was asked to talk about the strain of the past year, she appeared stunned and abruptly cut off the question.

"No," she said9 "I really don't wish to speak of it. It's a personal thing and why bring that into the trip. You all who follow me day after day know how positive I feel about everything. And I really have faith in the judgment of the American people and the press people."

Discussing the Brazilian emphasis on militarism, Mrs. Nixon remarked, "they do awfully well."

"They don't have economic problems, I've got news for you," she added. Her State Department briefing book cited a 15 per cent inflation rate in Brasilia last year.

She said she was bringing back several messages for her husband from Geisel.

Some of the messages were stricly for her husband, she said, but added that Geisel wanted her to tell Nixon "what a great job he's doing."

She said she invited Geisel to come to the United States at Nixon's request.

Mrs. Nixon was generally enthusiastic about her trip.

"Although I only went to two countries," she said, "peoplewise, I feel I was all around the world because I met delegates from leading countries and they all came up and gave me messages for my husband and also remarked about the fact that this administration has done more for peace in the world than has been done in a long time."

The Russian delegate she said, told her he was looking forward to the Nixon trip to Moscow this summer.

Contradicting an earlier statement, Mrs. Nixon said she did not discuss oil with Perez in Caracas.

Asked what wish she would make on her birthday, she replied: "Well, you know I always make those kinds of big wishes —peace in the world and all those things we're all working for. But that's what I always think of. I don't think of things personal."

Mrs. Nixon said she heard from the President by message Friday but there had been no communication between them since because the telephone system in Brasilia was "pretty bad."

Died 15 hours later

'Accidental' death for man who came alive in surgery

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — A coroner's jury has ruled accidental death in the case of a man who came alive during an operation to remove both his kidneys for transplant.

The inquest on Michael McEldowney, 64, heard testimony from surgeons and nurses at Selly Oak Hospital who participated in the surgery Feb. 19, three days after McEldowney suffered critical brain injuries in an auto accident.

He died 15 hours after the attempted removal of the kidneys. The operation was not carried out until later and the kidneys were successfully transplanted to a recipient.

Coroner George Billington said McEldowney, a bachelor, had only a five per cent chance of recovering from the accident and his relatives gave permission for his kidneys to be transplanted.

Dr. Susan Padmore, the hospital's senior house officer and anaesthetist, said McEldowney suffered a respiratory arrest Feb. 19.

She pronounced him dead an hour later and alerted a transplant team led by surgeon Anthony Barnes, she said.

Dr. Padmore said when Barnes opened McEldowney's abdomen she saw the patient's feet twitch.

"I heard him cough, and he started to breathe of his own accord—regularly and with reasonable depth," she said.

After the cough Barnes asked, "Did he do that or was that you?" nurse Anna Whitcomb said. Dr. Padmore replied, "No, he did that,"; 53 nurse said.

Barnes immediately sealed up the eight inch incision. McEldowney was returned to the intensive care unit but died 15 hours afterward.

Pathologist Dr. J.S. McKinnell said he carried out a post mortem and did not believe the first attempt to remove the kidneys contributed to or accelerated the death.

"In fact it is possible it prolonged his life by 15 hours," he said.

Barnes told the inquest he had to remove the kidneys within an hour of death which he said he assumed had been confirmed by two doctors.

"A surgeon has a duty to his patient not to transplant dead kidneys. He also has a duty to society to see he does not act precipitately. He is walking a tightrope," Barnes said.

Nazis picket, trade insults with L.A. Jews

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Members of the National Socialist White People's Party (NAZI) picketed the Jewish Community Center for a half hour Saturday, trading insults with a half dozen Jews, who carried non-operational, carbines and semi-automatic rifles.

No incidents were reported between the Nazis and the six Jewish counterprotestors, who lined up in front of the center with the weapons. The Nazis have clashed with the Jewish Defense League in the past.

The Nazis, dressed in brown shirts and black pants with helmets and arm bands, protested the Yom Kipper war of last October, the latest Arab-Israeli confrontation, which led to the Arab oil embargo.

Carrying swastika and American flags, the Nazis marched two abreast up Vermont Avenue after the protest chanting, "We want white power ... We want white power."

Police examined the weapons of the Jewish protestors and said they were non-operational.

Bleachers topple; 7 go down

GLENDORA Seven persons were thrown to the ground when a bleacher tipped over backwards at a baseball game at Glendora High School. No one was injured seriously enough to require hospital treatment, police said.

They were standing on the top row of the bleacher when spectators seated on the bottom row jumped up - and over went the bleacher. They were parents of players and a student bus driver.

The game, played Friday afternoon between Glendora and Covina high schools, was won by Glendora 10-9.

Newsman dies in air crash covering story

HOUSTON (UPI) — Radio newscaster Johnny Gilbert, 27, died Friday in a plane crash as he broadcast news of a chemical fire.

Gilbert, who was working a "Traffic Watch" program for KULF-FM, was alone in the plane above the blaze.

He circled lower and lower over the fire in northeast Houston, talking all the time live to his listeners.

"It looks like . . ." he said and then silence.

One witness, Wallace Campbell, said Gilbert was flying low.

"The plane was making passes over the fire, and he was in the process of making a stalling turn to the left and it nosed to the ground and crashed," Campbell said.

Gilbert, formerly was a disc jockey at that station and at stations in Miami and Phoenix.

A spokesman at the station said, "We lost him and there was no indication anything was wrong. We did not realize at the time that he crashed until some people at the scene called us."

Pomona gearing up for transfer of 9th graders to high schools

By PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Certain expansions are planned on all three public high school campuses this summer to accommodate ninth graders when they report next fall.

The 1974-75 school year will be Pomona school district's first year with a ninth-through-twelfth grade high school program. In addition to having more room, the high schools also will have expanded staffs and programs next fall.

District administrators, accompanied by an architect, toured Garey, Ganesha and Pomona high school campuses Friday to outline work to be done.

At Garey, eight portable classrooms will be moved onto the campus this summer and a large existing room now used for storage will be converted into shower and locker space.

A 10x10x35 foot metal shipping bin will be installed to make up the storage space.

Within two years, a permanent classroom building and additional restroom facilities will be built at Garey to replace the portables.

At Ganesha High, additional lockers will be installed this summer, and a portable classroom building will be moved on campus to be used by the drama department next fall. Now the drama department uses the music room.

Pomona High School has enough clasrooms to accommodate its incoming ninth graders but it needs minor remodeling to create space for a boys' shower and locker room for ninth grade athletic teams. This remodeling will be done this summer.

Projected enrollments — including the ninth graders—call for 1,737 students at Ganesha next year, 1,751 at Garey and 1,658 at Pomona.

Currently, with only 10th, 11th and 12th graders, Ganesha has 1,113 students enrolled, Garey has 1,093 and Pomona, 1,184.

Ganesha was built to handle a maximum of 1,784 students, Garey to handle 1,478 (with no portables) and Pomona, 1,800. Peak enrollment periods in the past have recorded 1,612 at Ganesha, 1,250 at Garey and 1,750 at Pomona.

Numbers of students enrolled can at times be misleading when use of school facilities is under consideration. Consistently, absenteeism in the high schools runs about 10 per cent. And, another 10 per cent of the student body is engaged in activities either off campus or in an area other than a regular classroom. These situations lead to a 20 per cent cut in numbers of students in classrooms.

High school staffs have been expanded next fall to teach a sixth period for all ninth graders (as is required) and to teach the sixth period to 10th, 11th and 12th graders who want or need it.

The expanded staff also will make it possible for each high school to develop a marching band, to expand career education and work experience programs and, if there is sufficient interest, to offer advanced language, math and science courses.

The situation at the junior high schools, where only seventh and eighth graders will attend, will be greatly changed next fall.

District educators feel the tension and conflict which has moved down into the junior highs will be greatly relieved by the smaller schools, and the younger students will be able to learn to live and work together in a more peaceful manner.

Counselors can concentrate on the needs of the younger students and not be concerned with high school and college programs for the ninth graders. Teachers will be able to study curriculum and make changes according to the maturity level of their students.

In the past the ninth grade, which legally is a part of high school, has pretty mudh dictated seventh and eighth grade programs and, in some case, not in the best interests of the younger students.

The junior highs will have elbow room, at an age when their students need it, to set up resource centers. If there are spare permanent rooms they can be used as enrichment centers.

Currently Fremont Junior High has two portable classrooms, Lorbeer has three, Marshall has two and Simons has six. These portables will not be used as basic classrooms in September.

And, the "floating" teacher—the one without a permanent classroom—will be eliminated in the junior highs next year. Each teacher will have a classroom.

Projected enrollments call for significant drops at the junior highs. Currently Emerson has 791 students and is expecting 525 in September; Fremont has 856 and will get about 607; Lorbeer's enrollment will drop from 671 to 514; Marshall from 840 to 575; Palomares from 695 to 454 and Simons from 933 to 589.

Some projections may have to be revised, administrators say. They projected a 900 drop this year, but lost only 600. At the same time, the district has gained 140 students at the elementary level just since school started. The increase is credited to large young families moving into the district.

However, projections call for a decline of 400 students at the seventh-eighth grade level in five years, and no decline at all at the high school level in the next five years.

Pomona district has experienced a decline of 2,700 students in five years. Enrollment in 1969-70 stood at 22,164. Today it is 19,464.

While Anglo enrollment has decreased steadily, minority enrollment has increased steadily.

In 1969, in round numbers the district had some 4,000 black students, 3,600 Chicano students and 15,000 white students. Today, in round numbers, it has approximately 5,500 black students, 4,400 Chicano students and 10,000 white students.

Here's what will be done for big move

Garey

- 8 portables to be added
- new shower, locker space

Ganesha

- More locker space and a portable room

Pomona

Pomona High girl beats drama pros in directing

By KEN SWART
Pomona Reporter

The Pomona High School Drama Department received the three most important awards at the second annual Citrus College High School Play Festival held during the week of March 4.

Southern California high schools which participated in the play festival performed on either Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday. Pomona High competed against two other schools on Thursday, receiving the Best Play of the Day award, and was asked to return the following day, Friday, to compete for the highest awards.

Its production, "Stop The World—I Want To Get Off," was judged outstanding and received a first place award over two other schools who competed for the same award on Friday.

Kathy Lane, a junior at PHS, directed this award-winning play and received the Best Play certificate of honor. During both the Thursday and Friday competitions, Kathy defeated professional drama coaches and teachers and became the first student director to ever win the Best Play award at the Citrus College Play Festival.

More importantly, however, Kathy is the first student director in Southern California who has ever won a Best Play award or its equivalent.

Frank Kohel, also a junior at Pomona High, received an award for Excellence in Acting as Littlechap in the production of "Stop The World—I Want To Get Off." He was presented with his award on Friday, as was Kathy.

Peggy Weis, a senior at pomona High, was awarded an Excellence in Acting certificate for her performance on Friday night as the characters "Anya, Jenny and Evie."

Only eight Excellence in Acting awards were given out by the judges, and two of these were received by Pomona High drama students.

On Thursday, three judges determined the winner of the day. Each judge could award a total of 30 points to the individual performances put on by the different schools. They took off one-half point for each minute the performance lasted over the 45 minute maximum. Kathy's "Stop The World—I Want To Get Off" received 28 points. Had the students not performed four minutes longer than they did, they would have received a perfect score. As it was, the PHS Drama Department production gained the largest amount of points both Thursday and Friday.

All three students are part of the Drama 2 class at Pomona High and have performed and produced plays throughout the year in the Devils' Ring Theatre at PHS.

Depletion allowance explained

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The oil depletion allowance is one of the oldest and best known of the tax "loopholes" that benefit thousands of Americans from the corporate board room to the poverty family.

Through the years, this tradition-encrusted tax advantage has been maligned by reformers as an unconscionable break for big business, and defended by the oil companies as a necessary incentive to more oil exploration.

But what is the oil depletion allowance? Where did it come from? How does it work?

The 22 per cent depletion allowance is not some new phenomenon designed to induce greater oil production. In fact, it is five decades old, and was enacted to simplify a World War I loophole which proved too complicated to figure.

There are two different types of depletion allowances affecting oil and other natural resource industries such as coal and ore.

The first type, dating back to the original income tax law of 1913, is called "cost depletion." Basically, this allows a tax deduction for the per-unit cost of the material taken out of the ground, based on the amount of money you have invested in it and the estimated volume of the resource.

For example, if you buy a coal mine for $50,000, and there is an estimated 100,000 tons of coal in your field, then the per unit cost would be 50 cents per ton. For every ton you take out of the ground and sell, you can deduct 50 cents from your income for that mine.

But it is the 22 per cent depletion allowance that is known to most laymen as the "oil depletion allowance." It is this tax break that the reformers are trying to do away with.

The rate of percentage depletion has changed over the years. In 1969 it was lowered from 27½ per cent to 22 per cent, where it remains today.

This means that oil companies may deduct 22 per cent of the gross income of an oil property for tax purposes, up to a maximum of 50 per cent of the taxable income of the property.

Today, an oil or mineral company may choose either percentage depletion or normal cost depletion, whichever gives it the greatest tax break.

For most wells, percentage depletion gives the greater break. It is estimated that elimination of the percentage depletion allowance would cost oil companies about $2 billion a year today.

The percentage depletion allowance actually came about because of complications in figuring cost depletion in those early years.

When the income tax first became law on March 1, 1913, oil and mineral companies were allowed to declare the value of their deposits on that date as the cost from which to figure cost depletion, rather than what they originally paid for the mine or field.

During World War I, when efforts were being made to increase oil production, the concept of "discovery" value was written into law to give post-1913 wells the same tax break as the 1913 wells. Basically, this meant that oil companies were allowed to use the estimated value of the oil reserves in figuring cost depletion rather than what they paid for the field.

But computing the discovery value proved too complicated, and in 1925, the percentage depletion allowance was substituted for cost depletion based on discovery value.

Star of 'Dirty Sally' likes Montana, rugged outdoors

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jeanette Nolan, the tobacco chewing, whiskey-slurping star of "Dirty Sally," sometimes looks like the character she plays when she's a thousand miles away from Hollywood in her mountain home.

Jeanette chops firewood, mends fences and rounds up the livestock in Montana's Yaak Valley where she and her husband, actor John McIntire, have forged a frontier cabin from the wilderness.

"My ego doesn't rest in my beauty," said Miss Nolan during a respite from the show. "But every night in Montana after I've worked on the ranch all day, I take a swim in the lake or one of our streams. Then I put on a lovely dress and fancy makeup for my husband.

"But I must admit, sometimes when I come in out of the rain and mud I look more like Sally than I do myself."

Jeanette Nolan is, in fact, a fine looking woman with even features and arresting blue eyes. In makeup, a two-hour process to transform her to Sally, she makes a convincing crone.

"I like the role because I enjoy making something out of nothing," she said. "It's the same way with my life style. As a wilderness wife I'll stand up against anyone. I can tough it out.

"We get snowed in for days on end sometimes. And the inside plumbing doesn't always work. We have to heat our own water, and our nearest neighbor is about 10 miles away.

"John and I love the beauty and the hardships of the wilderness. We only come to Hollywood to get a grubstake together."

The McIntire's own a half-section of land (320 acres) comprising a huge meadow with two streams and a lake and part of a forested mountain. From one horizon to the next there is not a sign of another human being.

When they work in Hollywood, their home is a 43-foot cabin cruiser docked at Marina Del Rey. The interior is polished wood, lighted by coal oil lanterns.

"We've tried to make it as much like the mountains as possible," she said.

Streak shirts -- fast sellers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The newest T-shirts are gray and have printed on the front "Streaking Team."

They're being sold in a lot of college bookstores mostly. They look just like the school-issued shirts for other sports.

Also coming up are shirts proclaiming:

—Streaking, The Real Thing.

—Two Can Streak as Cheaply as One.

—Be a Streak Freak.

—Caution: Streaking May Be Hazardous to Your Health.

—Be a Sneaker Streaker.

—Streaking Team Cheer Leader.

Jack Mermelstein's firm in New York, Accessories Unlimited, started taking orders for the shirts last week. That's the firm that was first out with a Smile face on sweatshirts a few years back. Millions were sold, breaking records for a one-design item.

The Smile shirt was hot for nearly two years, according to Mermelstein.

"It it doesn't get out of hand," he said, "the streaking thing can last a long time. If overexposed by publicity or if it gets in a wrong vein, it can be killed overnight."

The firm's orders came in large lots. Like 10,000 dozen, and up. Big orders are coming in also for another T-shirt and sweatshirt introduced by Accessories Unlimited last week.

These feature Whackie Pack spoof labels on the front. The Whackie Pack stick-on funny labels are big with the grade school boys and girls. They come in gum packs.

Mermelstein said the rights to use the designs on shirts was acquired from the Whackie Pack people at Tops Gum Co.

The Whackie Pack shirts pick up where the streaking shirts leave off in creating smiles.

Official French dictionary is only up to the letter D

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — After 38 years, the 40 members of the French Academy—official keepers of the language—at last have reached the letter D.

The traditional project of their honorary organization is writing the official dictionary of France. But the dictionary's snail-like progress has brought outcries in the press and intellectual circles.

Most members of the 339- - year - old academy, the most prominent writers and artists of France, never will see 60 again.

They now labor on page 342 of the planned 1200-page dictionary. At their current rate of nine pages a year (allowing for lost wartime years) they have about another 80 years to go.

One reason for the delay is censoring out those English-American words that have infiltrated into the French language, according to the chairman of the Academy Dictionary Committee, writer Jean Mistler.

Protect the language

"We are obliged to fight this considerable influence," announced Mistler at academy headquarters during a pause in the battle.

Cardinal Richelieu, advisor to King Louis XIII, created the French Academy in 1635 to protect the French language by writing the country's official dictionaries.

The first one appeared in 1636 —a lightning job—and revised editions came out in 1718, 1740, 1762, 1835, 1878 and 1935-36. After each edition is published, the academicians begin on the next, starting again with the letter A.

The French Academy, along with other honorary groups such as the Academy of Science, is housed in the Institute of France, a vine-covered, domed palace constructed in 1663 near the River Seine.

Up a wide staircase each Thursday afternoon walk veteran members to their weekly meeting in a room rich with marble columns, a painting of Richelieu and leather-bound copies of the early dictionaries. For hours they discuss word definitions.

Weekly work published

Newspapers solemnly publish each Friday the work of the academy, announcing recently that definitions were studied "at yesterday's session of the words 'depouillement, deprave, deprecier, depressif, depareiller.'"

After the meeting the eight members of the dictionary committee retire to their small meeting room to work over the revisions on a green felt-covered table.

The academy halls are not exactly a beehive of activity because of several hurdles, Mistler said.

"In the 17th Century there were 16,000 words in French, now there are 35,000 and academy members argue over every one," Mistler said, shuffling galley proofs crisscrossed with corrections.

The academicians drop out-of-date words. They expand definitions. The word "culture" of the 1935 edition has been padded with philosophical culture, Marxist culture, etc.

Search-and-destroy

Since World War II, English words in economics and technology have sneaked into the French language. Mistler, businesslike in his dark suit, termed his search-and-destroy mission "extremely complex and delicate."

"Many words for agriculture and war were added in past centuries to our language from German, for law and commerce from English, for maritime subjects from Dutch. We accept some English such as gentleman, express, rosbif (roast beef) but we eliminated 'derby' as old-fashioned.

"We are suppressing many American words such as marketing, merchandising, software and hardware because French words can be used. The French say 'doping' of horses. Why not 'dopage' which uses a French instead of English ending?

"We must protect the French language."

Increased production

Mistler said he has plotted to increase production.

"We will not read to academy members all the details of the book because everybody argues," he said. "Also we must engage a real staff including scientists to work on scientific words. Then we could reach a rate of 40 pages a year and come out with the first volume in about six years.

"The second volume," the white-haired writer added with a smile, "will be published by my successor."

Accomplishments

Cranston says President's 'overselling'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration is trying to "oversell" the President's foreign policy accomplishments, according to Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

The California Democrat said that there could be "a backlash of public disillusionment if the great expectations that the administration has raised do not produce concrete results."

"It would be tragic indeed — for us and the world —if there were to be a new American isolationism," he said.

Cranston said Nixon "fully deserves" praise for some of his foreign policy accomplishments but that there had been "serious shortfalls" as well as successes.

He cited Southeast Asia as an example, saying that even though "we have stopped throwing away precious American lives" the United States was still spending $2 billion a year on arms, ammunition and fuel in Indochina.

Hard pill to swallow

Cincinnatians face time when they'll be no more

CINCINNATI (UPI) — No more Cincinnatians?

The Cincinnati area dropped below Zero Population Growth (ZPG) the first two months of 1974, according to the executive director of the Greater Cincinnati Hospital Council, which means, if the downward trend continues—and immigration to The Queen City ever reaches zero—eventually there would be no more Cincinnatians.

ZPG is the point at which births are equal to deaths. minus-ZPG figure is large points at which deaths outnumber births. Thus, if the minusZPG figcdd c os large enough— and less and less folks move to the city from other towns— there would come a time when Cincinnatians would be no more.

The 1970 census placed Cincinnati's population at 452,524.

Council Executive Director Jerry Ransohoff says birth control pills have been responsible for the area reaching ZPG.

"The reason is the pill," said Ransohoff. "Parents are waiting longer to have their first child and not having as many. The concept of planning has a much broader application than ever before."

Seven obstetrics units have been closed here since 1960, Ransohoff said, and another 250 beds have been transferred out of the units.

Beds at one of the largest obstetrics units in the nation, Cincinnati's Good Samaritan Hospital, are down from 135 to about 80, and Ransohoff said births at the hospital decreased to 4,200 last year from a peak of 6,200 annually in the late 1950s.

Not arrester, but arrestee

BERLIN (UPI)—A 33-year-old West Berliner chased two youths he saw breaking an outside mirror off an automobile and took them at gunpoint to a police station.

Police charged him with possession of firearms without a permit.

Fortunately not

Auto experts divided on worth of safety converters

DETROIT (UPI) — While automakers gear up to add chemical smog-control devices to their 1975-model cars, the question of their safety and the availability of unleaded gasoline continues.

A federal environmental researcher recently renewed charges the government is sanctioning a public health risk in hopes of gaining better fuel economy from next year's cars equipped with the catalytic converters.

There's also the specter of motorists, already waiting in long lines for gasoline, having to search desperately for the service stations that have supplies of the unleaded gasoline needed in the catalytic converters. Present fuel will "poison" the systems, which are expected to add about $150 to the cost of next year's models.

About half of all the 1975 model cars will be equipped with catalytic converters, including every car sold in California under orders from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). General Motors expects to use the new smogcontrol system on every car it builds except the subcompact Vega.

By adding the muffler-like catalytic converter to the exhaust system, the automakers will be able to remove some of the devices, such as exhaust gas recirculation, that have robbed power and gasoline economy by about 15 per cent from uncontrolled cars built before 1970.

Exhaust altered

The catalytic converters use platinum and palladium to alter the exhaust which contains carbon monoxide and unburned hydrocarbons. The oxygen in the catalyst pellets or honeycomb combines with the hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide, changing them into harmless carbon dioxide and water.

But there are other chemical reactions going on within the complex system that could produce new, and even more dangerous, pollutants, says John B. Moran, an EPA researcher.

"We're dealing with a phenomenon in these systems that we really don't understand and I suggest we proceed with caution," Moran said. "I don't feel we know enough about these systems yet.

"It's an inappropriate risk to expose the American people to these devices until we can find out how great the public health risk."

In the process of removing the carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons, the converters also change the sulfur in gasoline into solid sulfates and sulfuric acid mists that are blown out the exhaust pipe. Under certain conditions, the public's exposure "will be in excess of health levels," Moran said.

Water supply danger

He also warns that the "noble" metals — platinum and palladium—used in the converters may break apart in use or during scrapping of the cars. They could find their way into the nation's water supply and become toxic like mercury reacting with organic compounds.

And if that's not enough, hydrogen sulfide gas could be emitted from the exhaust in minute quantities. The quantities might never reach toxic levels, but might be enough to produce a rotten egg smell.

Moran is director of the fuel and additives program at the EPA's research center in North Carolina. His views are not necessarily shared by top EPA officials who gave the go-ahead to install the catalytic converters on the 1975-model cars. One reason that Moran's views were over ruled, he says, is the "carrot" of improved fuel economy held out by backers of the catalytic converter.

It's estimated that about half of all cars sold next year— about 5 million—will have the catalytic converters. Moran says it will take at least two model years before any dangerous pollution levels are reached. That, he says, will allow enough time to define the problem caused by the catalytic converters and abolish them if they are really harmful.

By July 1, all gasoline stations that annually sell 200,000 or more gallons of gasoline a year will have to offer unleaded gasoline. The 1975-model cars will have smaller fuel tank inlets that will accommodate only the nozzles of pumps with unleaded gasoline.

John J. Riccardo, president of Chrysler Corp., who has been a long and vocal critic of the government's anti-pollution standards, expects most motorists to simply ignore the difference between leaded and unleaded gasoline.

"It is unrealistic to expect gasoline buyers to sort themselves out into two separate lines at every gasoline station, one for leaded gas and one for unleaded gas," the Chrysler president says.

"It is foolish to suppose that the driver of a catalyst-equipped car, arriving at a station with only leaded gasoline, is going to park his car and walk home," Riccardo said. "The result will be poisoned catalysts and no emissions control at all."

S.F. Co. joins odd-even sale program

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco is joining the list of California counties in which the odd-even method of selling gasoline will be used.

The Board of Supervisors voted 8-1 recently to ask Gov. Ronald Reagan, to include the county in the mandatory fuel distribution system.

Wesley Bruer, the state Energy Planning Council's executive director said it shouldn't take more than two days to approve the request once it reaches Sacramento.

Under the system, gasoline will be sold for vehicles with even-number plates on even-numbered days and those with odd-numbered plates will be fueled on odd-numbered days.

Fuel will be sold for cars with personalized plates on odd-numbered days.

Emiliano Zapata nunca fue heroe, dice un general

MEXICO, D.F. (UPI) La historia sangrienta de la revolucion mexicana a tomado un nuevo turno con la queja presentada por el hermano del hombre que mato al lider rebelde Emiliano Zapata.

El General Juan Jose Guajardo a pedido a last Cortes mexicanas suspender la produccion de la pelicula, "Emiliano Zapata."

La pelicula continua con la historia generalmente aceptada, de Zapata como un heroe de la reforma agraria. Guajardo dice que esto es "un manojo de mentiras."

El se opone principalmente a la presentacion de su hermano, Jesus Guajardo, como un "cobarde", y dice que el mismo Zapata era "bandido ordinario."

La demanda de Guajardo ha recibido bastante atencion, por ser algo que aun lastima, recordando que esta fue una de las revoluciones mas sangrientas de este siglo.

Principio en 1910, la revolucion termino despues de mas de 10 anos estimandose que las personas muertas fueron mas de tres millones.

Despues que el dictador Porfirio Diaz fue destronado, los revolucionarios continuaron peleando entre ellos mismos.

Zapata aparentemente fue muerto por ordenes de Venustiano Carranza, otro heroe revolucionario cuyos restos son honrados en el gigantesco Momumento a la Revolucion en la ciudad de Mexico.

Emiliano Zapata fue asesinado por el hermano de Guajardo, Coronel Jesus Guajardo, el dia 10 de abril de 1919, por ordenes del Gen. Pablo Gonzalez, quien apoyaba a Carranza.

Ademas, el General Guajardo dijo, "Zapata nunca fue un heroe, el era un bandido ordinario que siempre estuvo fuera de la ley."

El General pidio al presente presidente mexicano Lic. Luis Echeverria que apoye sus quejas, agregando que Echeverria en un tiempo era el secretario particular de uno de los hombres que ayudaron a Guajardo a asesinar a Zapata.

Cooperacion resulta en censo hispano E.U. mas preciso

WAHINGTON, D.C. — La cooperacion entre el Buro del Censo y el Comite Presidencial de Oportunidades para Hispanos habilito un calculo del nlmero de hispanoamericanos en el pais mas preciso segun los jefes de ambas agencias federales.

Comentando sobre el estudio reciente del Buro del Censo que indica que la poblacion hispana contaba con 10.6 millones en marzo, 1973, comparada con 9.2 millones el ano anterior, el Presidente del Comite Presidencial Henry M. Ramirez dijo:

"El personal del Comite Presidencial ha estado trabajando con el Buro del Censo con el fin de mejorar los metodos de contar a los hispanos ya que en el pasado no han podido determinar el total actual."

"Nos agrada ver que el Buro del Censo respondio positivamente a nuestras sugerencias," anadio Ramirez. "Segun el ultimo informe, yo diria que nuestros esfuerzos cooperativos estan produciendo resultados positovios para los hispanos."

Ramirez dijo que el Comite Presidnecial ha tratado de conseguir un calculo mejor ya que fondos federales se distribuyen a la comunidad a base de su poblacion.

Hace poco tiempo el Presidente del Comite Presidencial rijo que el censo de hispanos estaba equivocado por 8 a 10 por ciento.

Incluidos en el ultimo censo hecho por el Buro fueron 6.3 millones de mexicanos, 1.5 millones de puertoriquenos, 700,000 cubanos y 2 millones de sudamericanos y centroamericanos.

El reporte indica que el nuevo total, basado en el calculo de poblacion hecho en marzo, 1973, no esta de a acuerdo con el del ano anterior porque:

—La clasificacion de ninos de origen hispano de menos de 14 anos de edad se extendio para incluir el origen hispano de la esposa del padre de la familia. Si la esposa es de origen hispano el nino se clasificara como hispano, aunque el padre no sea de origen hispano.

El ano anterior mas de 400,000 ninos hispanos vivian en hogares donde el padre no era de origen hispono.

—La indentificacion de personas de origen mexicano se aumento a incluir la categoriaas de mexicanoamericanos, "chicano" y mexicano. El reporte indica que estas nuevas categorias posiblemente aumentaron el numero de personas de origen mexicana.

—El aumento de poblacion anual igvalmente contribuyo a la diferencia, y el Buro del censo reviso sus metodos para mejor reflejar esta crecimiento.

Algunos grupos hispanos han estimado que la poblacion hispana se acerca mas a 16 millones pero en general la mayoria acepta un total de cuando menos 12 millones.

Ramirez anadio que el personal de Comite continuara ayudando al Buro del Censo "para que se realize un censo de hispanos mas preciso."

Tales about vitamin aimed at gullible

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I notice your answer to a question as to the benefits of Vitamin E. I was so shocked at your flat answer that it had "no value whatever," because it showed your ignorance of all the tests that have been made with this vitamin. There are several books on vitamin E that you should get and read so you can tell your readers the truth—and not merely your personal opinion.

I am aware that the AMA has blocked all efforts to test vitamin E in the U.S., but tests have been carried on very successfully in Candada. It is time that AMA progresses and works to keep people well rather than just treating them after they are ill.

DEAR READER — I am sorry that you are upset because I don't agree with your opinions. Your opinions, however, are not based on solid information. Much of the information hawking vitamin E is from profit-making organizations and does not represent the thinking of top level scientists, nutritionists or physicians in the United States, Canada, England or any other country.

Before going further, I should like to point out to you that the National Academy of Sciences—National Research Council's Food and Nutrition Board has just reviewed the need for various vitamins, minerals and foods. Their recommendations are based on all the available scientific information. That includes all of the valid material on vitamin E as well as other vitamins. This is a U. S. Government organization and is not part of the AMA. The maximum amount of vitamin E they recommend for any age for a daily dietary allowance is 15 units (about 15 milligrams). You easily get these amounts in any reasonable diet. These recommendations are for 1973.

So, it is not just my opinion, as you have wrongly stated, but the opinion of the best group of nutritionists and scientists in the country that you can and should get all the vitamin E you need from a reasonable diet.

The fairy tales about vitamin E have been used to bilk the gullible for many years. It has been investigated, contrary to your statement, in many leading universities in this country and abroad. This includes Canada. And incidentally, The Canadian Medical Assn. has been busy trying to protect the Canadian public against false claims originating in that country.

Vitamin E probably is necessary in small amounts. But you don't need a special diet to get that amount. It may have some benefits in isolated medical problems, but it does not cure arthritis, heart disease and all other human ills.

It is true that some animals need vitamin E. The cow and the sheep, for example, will develop heart failure if they don't get it. Man does not behave the same way. Apparently we are able to substitute other chemicals into the metabolic system and use them instead of vitamin E.

Differences in species with regard to vitamins are well known. A common well-known example is our dependence on vitamin C. We can't manufacture it in our body. But the cow and most animals make it out of carbohydrates. We lack an important enzyme that would enable us to do this. In the case of vitamin E the shoe is on the other foot, or hoof, and some animals need it much more than man.

Send your question to Dr. Lamb, in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on balanced diet, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Balanced Diet" booklet.

Electric grid links East Europe

PRAGUE (UPI) — The lights on the olive-green panel— covering most of an entire wall —blink incessantly.

Two male technicians—East Europe's power supply at their fingertips—monitor the oscillations on the illuminated dials.

"Within minutes they can switch East Europe's power supply to provide, for example, Poland with electricity from Bulgaria," said Stefan Mishev, Bulgarian-born Director of the Central Dispatching Office (CDO) Management Board.

From their office overlooking one of Prague's busiest shopping centers, Mishev and his technicians control an electricity network stretching from East Germany to beyond the Russian Urals.

Founded in 1962 to assure sufficient electricity supply for the Communist countries of East Europe, it links the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Last year, mutual exchange of electricity to compensate brief power shortages in East Europe's energy block totalled 23 billion kilowatt hours.

"Besides the possibility of mutual energy supply, the system enables the member countries to reduce their electricity reserves to a minimum level," Mishev said.

Most important source of energy in Europe's East is still coal. But the number of nuclear power plants and hydro-electric plants in Eastern Europe is growing.

"Electricity consumption, which is now about 300 billion kilowatt hours per annum, will increase by seven to eight per cent annually during the next years," Mishev said.

In Czechoslovakia, two nuclear power plants equipped with Soviet water reactors fueled by moderately enriched uranium are to be built by 1980.

"Miracle Cure?"

5,000 YEAR OLD CHINESE HEALTH REMEDY FOUND

PEKING (Special — Health researchers in China have uncovered an amazing rare old Chinese herb remedy that possesses spectacular healing qualities and reportedly has been used for 5,000 years to cure or give relief to a host of the most common illnesses suffered by mankind. Dramatic claims are being made that this "miracle herb" called ginseng, may actually hold the key to a longer healthier life. Indeed, there is one historical case of a user living to be 256 years old.

Helps Many Illnesses

Like acupuncture, the many healing properties of this remarkable herb were once considered "folklore and superstition", but modern researchers around the world are suggesting that it may actually regulate many of the body's proccesses to increase SEXUAL potency, help heal ULCERS, relieve ARTHRITIS, check graying or loss of HAIR, improve DIGESTION, slow down ARTERIOSCLEROSIS, relieve ASTHMA overcome FATIGUE, improve DIABETIC conditions, relieve inflammation of the URINARY TRACT, help chronic INSOMNIA, relieve BACKACHES and PAINS, and generally improve your health by increasing your body's potential to heal itself.

Safe, No Side Effects

Ginseng is not a drug, but an herb or vegetable that is extremely rich in vitamins and minerals. What's more, this amazing natural remedy is completely safe and non-toxic with no side effects. Unfortunately, high-grade ginseng is in short supply, and brokers and processors around the world are bracing themselves for a "run" on the market as the herb's purported "near miraculous" healing properties become more widely known to the genral public.

Now Available in U.S.

Now you can get a generous 30-day supply of this amazing natural remedy direct from a major supplier by sending only $10.00 in check, cash or money order to Health Laboratory, Dept. 1, Box 2142, Palm Springs, Calif. 92262. This wonder herb is said to have helped millions of other people, and it may help your health problem too. Isn't it worth a try?

Men's wear

Football giant has clothing problems

NEW YORK (UP) —Bob Tucker of the New York Giants is 6-feet-4 and weighs 225 pounds and naturally he has a lot of trouble getting clothes that fit. But since a lot of his teammates run about the same size they solve some of their problems by swapping outfits in the locker room.

"He might leave the house one day wearing a navy blue Cardin blazer and return home wearing a brown and white plaid sports coat," his beautiful wife Lorraine said the other night over a dinner of steak, lobster and lambchops. "Sometimes it's hard to recognize him."

Tucker, 28, considered by many to be the best tight end in football, isn't particularly big as players go these days. Ed (Too Tall) Jones, drafted by the Dallas Cowboys from Tennessee State, runs 6-feet-7 and weighs 295 pounds, for instance. But Tucker does have troubles.

In the off season he sells insurance for the New York firm of Walsh and Walsh, Inc., —"everything but life insurance" —and travels the country as a goodwill ambassador for Eastman Kodel, which manufactures polyester fibers and helps him with his clothing problems.

Alteration problems

"The trouble is they will say there is a black tie banquet in Dallas or somewhere and 'don't worry about bringing a tux, we'll supply it.' So you get there and they bring out a tux and maybe you can get into the jacket but you stand there with the pants bunched around your waist with safety pins and extra belts and the legs four or five inches above the ankles, hoping they won't see it when you're speaking behind the rostrum."

That is because Tucker, being an athlete, is tapered. He wears a 46 long jacket but his waist is only 35 inches and when manufacturers make a 46 long suit they make the pants with 42 inch waists. The alteration problems are horrible to contemplate.

"Since it is so hard to buy a suit my wardrobe runs to about three or four sports jackets or blazers to each suit," Tucker said. "That's one of the reasons you see so many athletes wearing sports jackets all the time. It's not that they don't like suits —they're just almost too much trouble."

"I have a lot of trouble with shirts, too. I wear a 17½ neck but the sleeves are 37 inches. So if I can't find the right size I might wear a shorter one and sit there with the uncomfortable feeling that my cuffs are halfway up to my elbow. That's especially true when they outfit you in a tuxedo."

Trouble with shoes

It is probably the long arms that help Tucker catch passes. In his rookie year with the Giants in 1970 he caught 40 for 571 yards and five touchdowns and was close to being the rookie of the year. In 1971 he was the first tight end in National Football League history to take the receiving title, catching 59 for 791 yards and four TDs. He won all-NFL honors in 1972 with 55 passes for 764 yards and the Giants did not have what is considered a good year. That is, they won two games.

Tucker has to be well-dressed in business and he was the other night. He was wearing a navy Cardin blazer, blue, tan and white checked slacks, black Gucci shoes, a plain blue shirt which he pointed out was made of Kodel fibers, and a striped paisley tie.

"I wear a size 14 shoe and Guccis is the only place I can find any that fit," he said. "I know they cost about 60 bucks but they seem the only ones that fit me. They usually have to send out for a pair but it never takes very long. But that is one of the problems of being big."

Tucker, of Polish and Tyrolean descent, lives with his wife and son Robert, Jr., in New Jersey and ends up buying most of his clothes at Schlesinger's men's store, a friendly neighborhood store in West New York, N.J. They've seen him so often they usually keep some 46 longs in stock.

"But tailoring it to fit is a pain," he said. "Maybe I'll take up the new craze —streaking."

Irish Republic plans big St. Pat's Day celebration

By Donald O'Higgins

DUBLIN (UPI) — Festive Irishmen planned a mighty St. Patrick's day celebration this year despite continuing violence in Northern Ireland and economic woes at home.

"We are going to make it the biggest and best celebration for many a year," an official organizer said. "All the signs point to a greater participation from overseas than we have ever had."

It won't be all funnning. In the morning, shamrock-wearing Irishmen will pack into churches to hear special sermons on the national apostle who converted the Pagan Irish in the 5th Century. But then, on to the celebrating.

A score of planned attractions ranged from Gaelic football and Hurley games to horse racing and, of course, the traditional dog show at fashionable Ballsbridge, once the haven of thirsty Irishmen when it boasted the only legally opened bar in Dublin.

Ballsbridge's attraction was so great it once prompted the late playwright Brendan Behan, himself a prodigious mover of pints, to berate an elderly lady who bumped into him clutching a poodle in her arms.

"What a hell of a place, madam," roared Behan, "to bring a dog!"

It's Wetter Now

But things have changed since the government repealed the "dry" laws a decade ago. Now Irishmen can "wet" the shamrock in hundreds of sawdusted little bars across the country. In addition to the traditional and always enormously colorful pageant in Dublin, hundreds of local parades are held in towns and villages across the country in which singing crowds back the local brass and piper bands.

But, inevitably, the continuing war and the daily toll of bombs and bullets across the border in Northern Ireland cast their grim shadow over the traditional celebrations.

"Although St. Patrick's has never been a divisive feast day in the sectarian sense," an organizer said, "we must take great care nothing we do here can spark trouble elsewhere."

For the first time since the Northern troubles broke out more than four years ago, the heavy hand of security dominated all other considerations in planning this St. Pat's day.

Strict Security

All preparations for parades, sporting fixtures or any other event designed to attract crowds, were scrutinized by security chiefs with a view to reducing to the minimum the risk of bomb attack.

New rules applied to the official St. Patrick's Day parade through the center of Dublin. Only organized groups in "recognized and acceptable uniforms, marching in step" were given permits to join the marching ranks, estimated in advance at 50,000 backed by the music from 50 bands.

The tight security was aimed at preventing the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) or other extremists from seizing on the parade for a propaganda demonstration.

"God help anyone who tries to disrupt it (the parade)," an organizer said. "I don't think a couple of hundred thousand Irishmen would take too kindly to such an exercise."

Big Parade

The Dublin pageant, the official highlight of the celebrations, will trace the Republic's industrial growth since Independence more than half a century ago. Pride of place will go to native products that have won worldwide recognition— Waterford glass, Donegal tweeds, Irish whisky and Guinness stout.

The parade will be boosted this year by scores of overseas marchers, some from Europe, the Commonwealth countries, and more than a dozen from the United States including the Bishop Kearney High School Band from Rochester, N.Y., always a popular feature of the Dublin parade.

Government leaders will review the parade from a stand outside the General Post Office, scene of the 1916 Easter rising and a shrine for all Irishmen. The building itself looks spruce and clean after a facelift that scraped off more than 50 years of grime.

Although the Irish Republic, in common with the rest of Europe, is groggy with inflation, spiraling prices, a gasoline famine and energy crisis, no one planned to let these things interfere with this day. That simply would not be Irish. Or, as one of the official organizers of the day's events put it:

"It would be a poor Irishman who would let economic disaster or bombs and bullets interfere with his celebrations."

Burr gives art to law school for an auction

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Raymond Burr, who once played attorney Perry Mason on television, has presented more than 200 works of art to the University of Pacific's McGeorge School of Law for an auction.

Gordon D. Schaber, dean of the school, recently said money from the sale will go toward construction of the school's new $460,000 "courtroom of the future."

The auction will be held April 28 at the Crossroads Shopping Center in South Sacramento.

"We hope this auction will attract people with interests in all styles of painting, because that was the intent of Mr. Burr when he presented this gift to help us fund construction of our new courtroom of the future," Schaber said.

Baby's fall from couch leads to legal hassle

This letter concerns my husband, myself and our two children.

One day about two months ago my husband and I were painting our living room. Our daughter, four months old, awoke from her nap and my husband went to change her. He brought her out to the living room and put her on the couch. He then went to get a wash cloth to clean her off.

While he was gone she fell off the couch and was knocked unconscious. Coming back into the room, my husband found her not breathing.

In an admitted panic, he began hitting her on the rear and the chest in an attempt to reinstate her breathing. In the meantime I was calling an ambulance. By the time the ambulance arrived our daughter was crying.

She was taken to the hospital for tests. She had a fractured skull, so police were called. At that time our daughter and our son, 2 years old, were taken away from us. The doctor said the bruises where my husband had hit our daughter to reinstate her breathing looked suspicious.

At a later date we were summoned to a hearing. The children were declared wards of the court and were placed in a foster home.

My husband requested a lie detector test and passed but the judge stated he would have to see a doctor for counseling and evaluation, at which time the children would be returned to us.

The case worker set up an appointment with a doctor for psychiatric evaluation. After talking with him, the doctor recommended that the children be returned home as soon as possible.

He also stated he didn't see why the children were taken away in the first place. He sent his report to the social worker. Now she tells us that we have to write to a judge to set up a new hearing, which she was to do herself. We feel all they are doing is giving us the runaround.

My husband is black and I am white. It has been suggested to us that it is a case of prejudice pure and simple. Our personal feelings lean toward the possibility of some great lack of concern for our family's unit, whatever the motive. — Mrs. B. C., Ontario.

We talked with your "doctor," who proved to be a psychiatric social worker. He said that he had interviewed you and your husband and that his recommendation was that the children be returned to you soon and that you continue counseling.

Paul Morsen, community relations coordinator of the San Bernardino County Welfare Department, told us he found no evidence that the return of your children is being unnecessarily delayed by the county's child welfare services division.

He said you had repeatedly refused to talk to the child welfare services worker you mentioned in your letter.

When you appeared in court, Morsen explained, you were ordered to enter a counseling program but the meeting with the psychiatriac social worker was evaluative in nature and should not be considered as a counseling program.

Before your children can be returned, a second hearing must be held. Morsen said the judge wrote to you recently that he will not consider a hearing before January 1975.

Morsen said there was no indication in your case record of any prejudice or discrimination against you and your husband.

"There is no lack of concern for the unity of the C— family," he said. "In fact, our very concern is for the family's welfare and especially for the welfare of their children."

He told us that the child welfare services worker would be happy to work out a low-cost or free counseling plan for you.

44% of cars fail inspection test

Lights, exhaust most frequent troubles in CHP valley exam

CLAREMONT — Did your car flunk inspection?

Don't despair. Some 44 per cent of those checked last year by the highway patrol's mechanical medics in the Pomona Valley failed to qualify for window stickers. Statewide, more than 55 per cent failed.

But some of the time the cars were not all at fault. Drivers were often guilty of not having their operator's license or the vehicle registration cards.

During 1973, 73,131 vehicles passed through random vehicle inspection lanes in the Pomona Valley. Only 41,024 passed while 32,107 needed something corrected, said Capt. W. C. Jones, area CHP commander.

This compares statewide with 1.7 million vehicles checked, 751,070 passing and 953,728 failing.

The highway patrol has 71 vehicle inspection teams assigned throughout the state to make random checks of passenger cars. They are equipped with exhaust emission analyzers and make safety inspections of lights, brakes, tires, glass, suspension, registration and driver's licenses.

Two such teams are assigned to the Claremont office which has a service area extending from Kellogg Hill to Cucamonga and Mt. Baldy to the Riverside County line.

They inspect sedans, station wagons, pickups, campers, motorcycles, and on one occasion, a bicycle. Motorists generally spend only a few minutes in the inspection lanes while inspectors check it from bumper to bumper.

A Claremont College coed surprised the vehicle inspectors recently when she pedalled into an inspection lane set up on Foothill Boulevard.

She wanted to know if the bike met all safety requirements. It did and the cyclist later rode to the CHP office in Claremont to get her bicycle safety sticker.

The most common infraction is headlights being out of adjustment. They may be aimed too high or too low.

Many motorists are surprised to find that even their new cars have misaligned lights, said Jones.

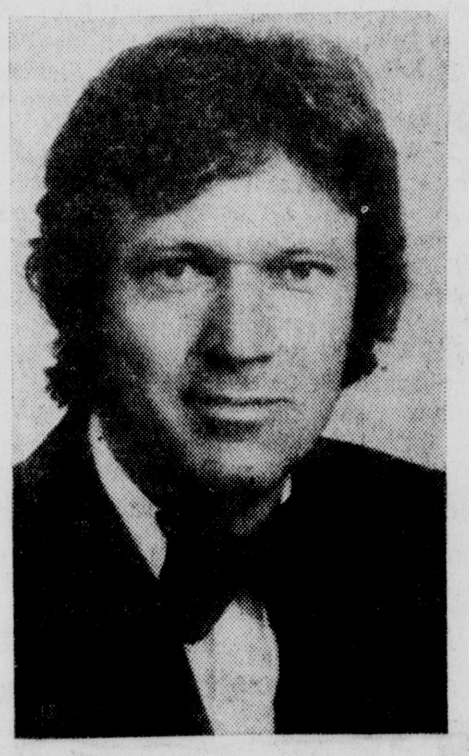
Other major defects include exhaust systems, tires, registration, pollution devices, and faulty wipers.

Less common infractions include gas caps, bumpers, mirrors, fenders.

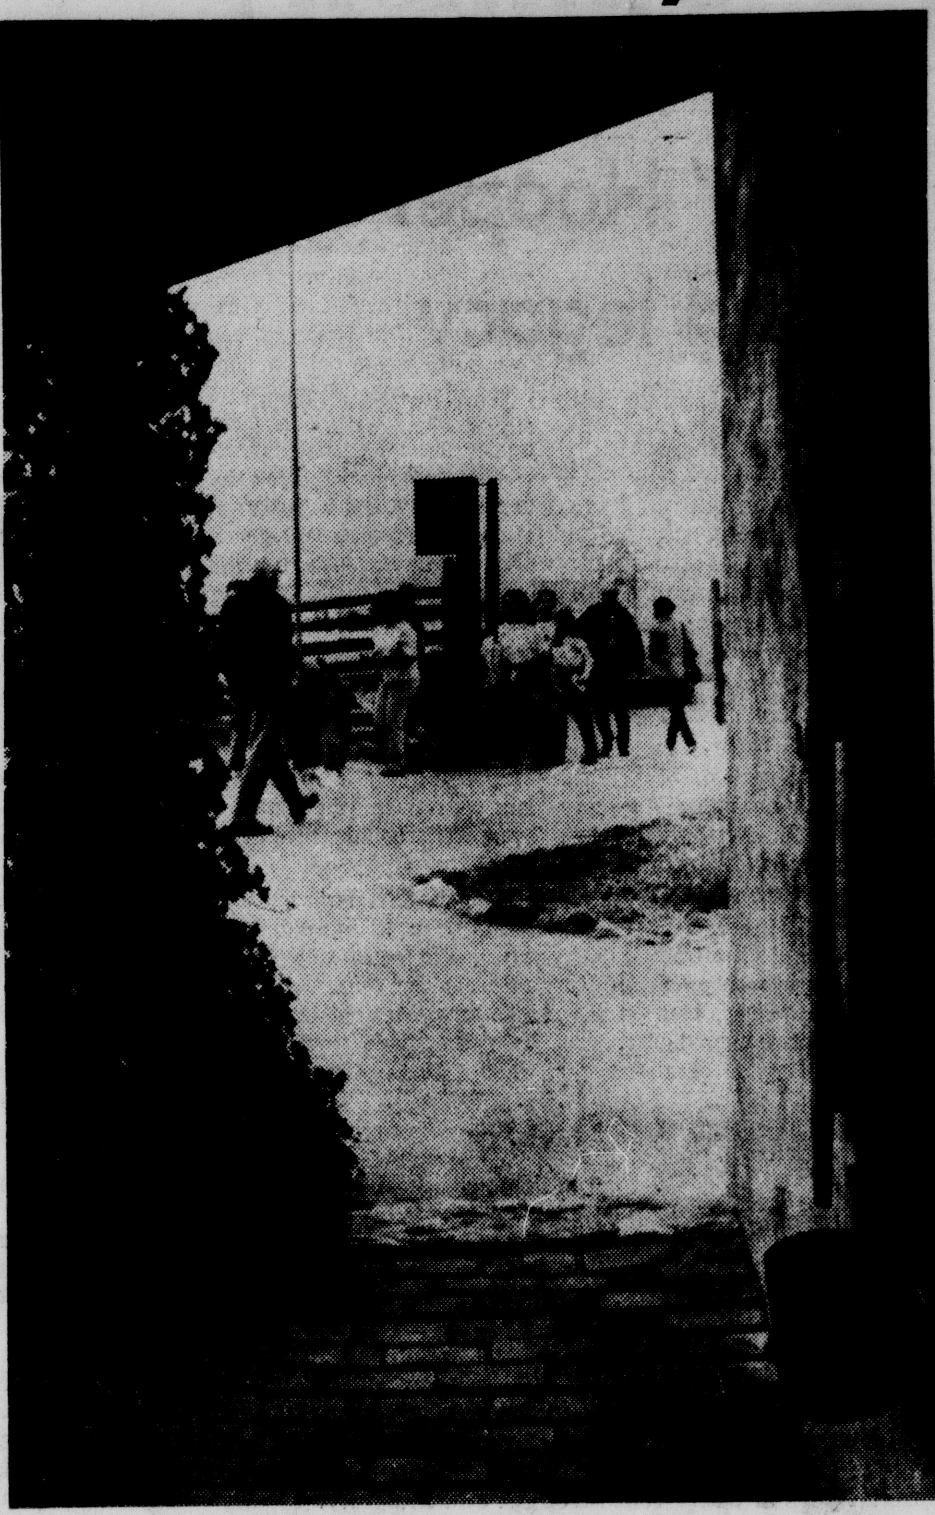
Officers gave this breakdown in violations issued in this area last year:

—Lights, 19,532; exhaust, 10,642; tires, 8,133; registration, 7,29; pollution devices, 6,678; wipers, 5,413; driver's license, 2,821; horns, 1,785; carbon monoxide, 1,371; parking brakes, 1,361.

Steering, 1,289; suspension (defective shocks or vehicle too close to ground), 1,088; glass, 879; hydrocarbons, 746; mirrors, 725; fenders, 580; wheels, 505; bumpers, 269; and fuel caps, 142.



ROBIN WILLIAMS, tour leader-lecturer, will present his film, "This Is Paris, Jewel of Europe's Cities", for the Pomona Forum audience Monday at 7:45 p.m. in the Education Center auditorium. The film is an intimate and comprehensive study of the people there today, how they live, work and play in their city of proud monuments, grand palaces, wide boulevards and tree-filled parks.



CHECKING IN The Palomares Adobe was a busy scene Saturday as participants in the Historical Society's Walk for History completed the second leg of the 25-mile route through four cities.

148 residents hoof it to build restoration fund

POMONA — A total of 148 valley residents turned out Saturday to take part in the third annual Walk for History sponsored by the Historical Society of Pomona Valley.

Clem Niebel, the society's past president, reported that approximately $2,700 was raised by the participants by 1:30 p.m. Saturday. The amount will go higher as more walkers complete their walks.

Two walks were actually held, one over a 13-mile route and another over a 20-mile route. Only 25 persons chose the shorter walk.

The walk got under way at 8 a.m. at the Pomona Civic Center and wound through Pomona, Claremont, La Verne and San Dimas. Checkpoints for the participants were at some of the valley's historical sites, such as the Carrion and Palomares Adobes, the old San Dimas Hotel and the Phillips Mansion, where the walk concluded.

Each participant in the walk secured pledges from relatives, friends and neighbors for each mile of the walk he completes.

Awards are to be presented to the walkers who raise the most money.

Proceeds from the event will be used for the acquisition and restoration of historical landmarks in the valley.

The first four to complete the 20-mile walk were Laurie Messmer, Dawn Lavers, Donna Shaw and Mike Esparza. The oldest walker was Charles Dewey, 77, of Pomona, who finished the 13 mile trek.

Dairy testing herd after 6 diseased animals found

CHINO — A new series of tests will be performed starting Monday on an Alta-Dena Dairy herd here in an effort to detect any further infection of brucellosis in the animals.

Six animals from the herd were destroyed last week after annual blood tests revealed that the animals were infected.

Although the herd is only one of 40 in the state to record an incidence of the disease within the last six months, a minor controversy was created when it was reported that raw milk from the herd may have been sold to the public and represented a health hazard.

Brucellosis can cause severe fever in humans who consume raw milk products contaminated with the disease. It cannot infect humans, however, if the milk has been pasteurized.

"This thing has been blown way out of proportion," said Paul Virgin, a spokesman for the dairy. He said that all milk from the herd is now being pasteurized in compliance with orders from the San Bernardino County Health Department and the Los Angeles County Milk Commission.

Most of the raw milk products that Alta-Dena Dairy markets, said Virgin, is from the dairy's herd in the City of Industry. Milk from the Chino herd is used to supplement the City of Industry supply, however, and some milk taken from the Chino herd, after brucellosis was discovered, may be present in the dairy's raw milk products marketed last week.

"All that milk was tested at the state laboratory and no brucellosis organisms were found in it," Virgin explained.

Split develops on private vs. public financing

County to vote on golf course improvement offer

The life of Pomona's Mountain Meadows Golf Course will be in the balance Tuesday when the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors decide whether to accept $2 million in proposed improvements for a 32-year lease.

The offer has been made by a group of investors headed by pro golfer Billy Casper, and details of the agreement have been worked out over the past year by the county's parks and recreation department and First District Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum.

Just when acceptance of the proposal appeared to be a shoo-in, complications arose that threaten to kill the whole project.

At last Tuesday's meeting, Supervisor Baxter Ward turned against the agreement. He claimed that he was both against the long-term lease and private financing. He said the improvements could be financed with revenue sharing funds that will be allotted to the county over the next three years.

Ward found a supporter in Board Chairman Kenneth Hahn, and the vote came to a 2-2 standoff with Supervisor James Hayes supporting Schabarum. Supervisor Ernest Debs was absent.

Event though Debs is a supporter of the golf course agreement, his vote will not be enough when the matter comes up Tuesday because approval of the proposal requires a 4-1 majority.

Schabarum's office has spent the better part of the week trying to convince Hahn that the proposal is worthy of his support. Whether they have succeeded will be determined when Hahn casts his ballot.

Under the proposal, the improvements would include construction of a new clubhouse and restaurant, and improving the present 18 holes.

Originally part of the $20 million package under which Bonelli Park is being developed, the golf course project was cut out by Schabarum 1½ years ago as part of an austerity program.

Schabarum at that time claimed that the county could acquire the golf course through a private investment under the lease-back arrangement.

'Buck' Hooper's proud legacy

D.F. "Buck" Hooper retired from the San Dimas City Council last week after eight years of distinguished service, four of this as mayor of the city.

Hooper, who retired from the Los Angeles County Fire Department after 35 years of service, is recognized as one of the community leaders who has shaped the community San Dimas is today.

Hooper, always ready to listen and debate all sides of every argument, is the type of man who speaks out on issues and everyone knew where he stood. He could also be stubborn at times when he felt he was right.

He has lived in San Dimas for the past 30 years and is not ashamed to share his warm feelings for his town. He says the proudest moment of his life is when he was elected mayor of "the town I love."

In the 1974 world that is clouded with suspicions about the integrity of politicains, Buck Hooper's honesty and sincerity is refreshing. His voice will be missed on the City Council.

Suicide unlike Bill Knowland

The enigma of the death of Oakland Tribune publisher William F. Knowland is the total contradiction of suicide to the entire life pattern known to his friends and intimates.

Bill Knowland, most who know him concur, was a man with whom you could strongly agree or disagree on any given issue, but he was a totally rational person with great strength and integrity.

When news of his death on the grounds of his Sonoma County summer home was received, the sheriff's office reported that it was caused by a self inflicted gun shot was like the slap of a wet blanket to his myriad friends.

It may well be that the sheriff's office is absolutely correct — but it is unlike the man.

It may well be that there is conclusive evidence that Knowland died at his own hand. It has not been made public as of this writing.

It may well be that the sheriff's office is absolutely correct in closing the case. But the character of the man and the temper of the times demands an absolutely conclusive public explanation of "why".

There is no simple explanation for the quirks of human nature nor is there any method known to man to unravel a mind.

But the Bill Knowland California knew, that the nation knew, in fact that the world knew, was a person about whom there were certain verities. For instance, he was an intensely dedicated United States Senator who was more concerned with the security of the nation than diplomatic niceties. This at a time when in many a living room around the country is wasn't nice to laugh off the United Nations as an impotent instrument in times of international strife.

Bill Knowland retired from the Senate and ran for Governor of the state of California when the state already had a Republican governor and many observers were convinced he couldn't win and would gravely damage his party within the state. That's what happened. But Knowland was clear, concise, unequivocating and totally honest in his run. This was not a man who walked away from a contest of any type.

As a publisher, Knowland delved deeply into the life and times of his beloved East Bay and learned to understand it and to know it intimately.

This then is the enigma of the death of William Knowland — legislator, Senator, publisher, citizen. It may well have all happened as reported and certainly there is no reason for anyone to tell it other than as it is.

But in an era of terror and tragedy and unrest it would be nice to have the nagging doubts resolved. The means of so doing may be at hand. They should be. And they should be made public.

Thoughts for today

"Has not man a hard service upon earth, and are not his days like the days of a hireling? So I am allotted months of emptiness, and nights of misery are apportioned to me." — Job 7:1,3.

"Having a hope in God which these themselves accept, that there will be a resurrection of both the just and the unjust. So I always take pains to have a clear conscience toward God and toward men." — Acts 24:15,-16.

And every one who was in distress, and every one who was in debt, and every one who was discontented, gathered to him; and he became captain over them. And there were with him about four hundred men. — I Samuel 22:2.

As we keep or break the Sabbath, we nobly save or meanly lose the last best hope by which man rises. — Abraham Lincoln, 16th U.S. President.

Mafia money finances dope racket

WASHINGTON — Like so much floating jetsam, countless millions of dollars in stolen, counterfeit and altered securities are awash on the world's financial seas. No one knows exactly how much there is.

Yet organized criminals are circulating the stolen and spurious securities on a massive scale to finance heroin purchases, prostitution, assassinations, bookmaking, bribery, smuggling, loan sharking and labor racketeering.

The bogus stocks, bonds, currency, warrants and travelers checks are also used by organized crime to build or renovate villas along the Costa del Sol in Spain, fun palaces on Florida's Gold Coast and casino-hostelries in Las Vegas.

The alarming new element in this ocean of fraudulent paper, aside from the increased volume, is that banks around the world are being used more and more to generate solid cash from bad securities.

"The Swiss are up to their necks in it," one frustrated federal investigator told us. Dubious bank deals have also been found in Belgium, Holland, Hong Kong, Lebanon, Luxembourg, Panama, Sweden, Thailand and West Germany.

The vast influx of shady Mafia money has had a direct effect on us all, warn the federal sleuths. It is used to expand the dope racket, which produces more addicts, who commit more robberies to pay for their habits.

The fresh funds also finance more underworld takeovers of legitimate businesses; more corruption, extortion and pornography; more bribed officials and gang wars.

We have traced the tortuous trail of some stolen stocks to Mafia drug peddlers. The loot may be 50 or 60 cubic feet of slightly imperfect securities on their way to be destroyed, as happened in Los Angeles at the Jeffries Banknote company.

It may be the astonishing disappearance of $15 million or more in government bearer bonds from a Chase Manhattan vault. It may be $84 million in assorted securities, which vanished in transit from a printing plant. Or it may be the proceeds of a bank stick-up.

Fraudulent stock issues may also be counterfeited in the world's counterfeiting centers, New York and nearby New Jersey, by artists whose work only microscopes can detect as fake.

All these securities—in single certificates, stacks and even bales—are sold at great discounts below their face value. The "inside" man, who tips the locations of the vault or the exact time of the securities shipment, and his free-lance confederate who pulls off the heist, may get only 10 cents on the dollar from the Maffia.

But the Mafia racketeers make a killing, sometimes quite literally.

A few years ago, they might simply use a go-between and place the stock in a border-line bank for collateral on a loan. Or they could peddle it through a crooked broker, or sell it to an unwitting investor.

Stolen securities were cashed, for example, by President Nixon's banker friend, Bebe Rebozo, although Rebozo vehemently denied he knew the securities were stolen.

But now, far more sophisticated techniques are used to escape detection. In one common hustle, the Mafia sells the phony certificates for cash to a failing company, sometimes going through a dozen intermediaries, each one a little "cleaner."

The failing company does not resell the certificates for cash, which would be risky. Instead, it simply puts the certificates in its safe. There, the unwitting accounting firm verifies the existence of the securities and duly approves the company's books.

Thus the spurious certificates are listed as assets by reputable accountants, enabling the firm to borrow money from a bank. If the company manages not to fail, no one is the wiser. If it does fail, the banks are usually protected by insurance, so they have no compelling reason to inquire into the integrity of the paper that has shored up the failing company.

The profits for the Cosa Nostra and its allies on such a deal may run up to 800 per cent. What they buy for a dime on the dollar, they can sell from 35 to 80 cents, depending on how "hot" the paper is and other factors.

Sometimes, the Mafia simply takes over the ailing firm in exchange for "saving" it, then milks it and bankrupts it. Or else the racketeers demand a major interest in it, ensuring steady income without a foot-pound of work expended.

The public has tended to think, when it thinks of it at all, that stealing securities is a white-collar crime. But we have been able to trace some major securities hustlers directly into narcotic trafficking and other vicious crimes.

—Sebastian "Buster" Aloi, a major South Florida mobster, has been identified by Sen. Henry Jackson's Investigations Committee as a stolen stock dealer. Our check of federal narcotics files shows he is also a bigtime heroin dealer. Other government records show he has a record for bank robbery, loan sharking and extortion activities.

—Jimmy "Jimmy Legs" Episcopia and Robert Perrette, of New York (not to be mistaken for innocent citizens with similar names) are both shown in federal records as stolen securities men. We found them also listed in investigative files as drug hustlers.

—George "Blah Blah" Smurra, another bigtime hood, and Vincent Rizzo, are two more Mafia men tied in official records to stock thefts. Both show up in federal narcotics files as traffickers. Smurra, in addition, is identified in the famous "Valachi" hearings 10 years ago as a lieutenant of the late crimelord Vito Genovese.

—Joseph Camperlengo, a nightclub operator in Florida, is also identified as a stolen stock entrepreneur. Narcotics agents told us he is listed as a dope figure.

Flushed with huge new sums, mobsters have been able to get perilously close to the high and the might. At Sen. Jackson's hearings last year, Elliot Roosevelt, ex-mayor of Miami Beach and the son of the late President, was accused of stolen stock hustling. While he admitted dealing with numerous stolen stock hoods, Roosevelt denied any wrongdoing or even knowing they were crime figures.

The worst of the gigantic problem is that there is no present solution. An American Bankers Association spokesman sighed over the difficulty of checking out every security put up for collateral to see whether it is stolen.

"The pedigree of a stock sometimes looks like the New York city phone directory," he said. He defended American banks against charges they knowingly take stolen bonds, saying: "If we were accessible to organized crime, then the criminals wouldn't have to go overseas to dispose of the phony paper."

Gossip for today

Year by year higher education has been offering eager, thoughtful, aspiring undergraduates ever increasing opportunities to increase their knowledge and brodaen their outlook on life. But never have our halls of ivy gone to greater lengths to prepare young men and women for successful and rewarding futures than they are today. Just look at what has already been accomplished in this new year!.

At the University of Idaho, students are being offered a course designed to determine the psychological responses to kissing.

After several practice runs, students at Harvard University succeeded in setting a new world's record for continuous Monopoly play in an elevator.

It is now possible to roller skate for college credit at Cal Poly.

West Carolina University students are about to get 24-hour visitation rights in campus dormitories.

And the University of Tennessee has wrested the "streaking" title from a Texas college—"streaking" being a new extra curricular field trip course where students strive for adeptness in dashing about the campus in the nude.

Mark my words! With such brilliant academic accomplishments already in the bag, 1974 will certainly wind up as one of the greatest educational opportunity years in this country's history.

Campaign reform would help Demos

By RICK GOTCHER
P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Under provisions of the currently discussed Senate bill for public financing of elections, all candidates would receive equal treatment. But that's a mere technicality—in reality, it appears certain liberal Democrats would benefit in several ways if the bill becomes law.

The desire to provide financial equality for candidates is laudable. No one can deny the excesses of Watergate are at least partly responsible because of a super-abundant supply of cash that failed to appear on any political financial statement.

That kind of economic insult cannot be tolerated. However, there is real danger that the kind of political debility planned by Watergate conspirators will inherently crop up from a system of public campaign financing.

Money is the great political equalizer in that those with ready access to it don't have to divert energies to gain contributions; while those less affluent have to spend considerable effort in the quest for more.

Removing the ability to gain large sums without much effort will put Republicans and conservative Democrats at a disadvantage. Without money's impact, all candidates will have to rely on manpower and publicity—two areas where liberal Democrats hold decided advantage.

There is little question that telegenic candidates appear more often in front of television cameras. And liberals are more telegenic than most. Further, because they have them selves literally entrenched in congressional "glamor committees"—Foreign Affairs, Judiciary, etc.—they command instant press recognition that guarantees a steady outlet for their views.

An even more important lever for liberals is the number of hip-pocket volunteers already in existence. Labor's huge membership; the overwhelming majority of social activists who man federal welfare programs (most of whom are provided government vehicles, telephones and office space freely available for grassroots campaigns); minority group activists and a large number of college students are available to get out the vote.

Further, liberal organizations, which decisively outnumber conservative groups, would not be prohibited from spending huge sums on "issue oriented" campaigns, which concincidentally mesh with the race of a candidate on the same issue.

Ralph K. Winter, a leading expert on campaign reform, says ending the use of private money will not stop political influence. Contracts will be given to those showing political loyalty in other ways.

In a report to the Ervin Committee, strenuously objecting to public subsidies for elections, Winter said, "When an individual is forced, in effect, to make a contribution to a political movement—whether he is indifferent to it, finds it distasteful or applauds it—it may fairly be said that a basic freedom is being infringed."

It can be argued that Watergate has proven a change is needed—something must be done to insure against it happening again. Regrettably, it can almost be predicted that scandals will forever be a problem we will be forced to guard against—no matter what system we use.

Right now, restoration of public credibility towards the nation's political system is needed. Passing the public subsidy bill seems an attractive way to do that. But to give one segment such persuasive leverage over the rest can only mean more political abuse.

Montclair employes get a lift from the boss--in Costa Mesa

SUPER CAR POOL — Pomona Valley residents employed by the MSI Data Corp. of Costa Mesa climb aboard a chartered bus in Montclair for the 50-mile trip to work. The corporation was formerly located in Montclair and is offering daily bus service to employes who do not want to move their residences. About 80 persons use the bus service, which will save about 100,000 gallons of fuel a year.

Hearing slated on senior citizen housing project

POMONA — The City Council Monday night will hold a hearing on an application for the construction of a 103-unit, senior citizens' residential complex on more than 4⅜ acres of land south of San Francisco Avenue and east of Gibbs Street.

Robert A. Olin Jr. of the Olin Construction Co. is appealing the Planning Commission's failure to adopt an environmental impact report and denial of requests for a conditional use permit and a variance.

At its meeting Jan. 23, the commission—because of a 3-3 tie vote—was unable to adopt the report. It also denied the permit 3-2 and the variance 3-2.

Among the reasons for denying the permit and variance, the commission said the quality of the project as proposed was not satisfactory. The variance was requested to reduce development standards, including parking, open space, distance between buildings and storage.

Among other matters scheduled for the council's 8 p.m. meeting are:

—Report of a citizens' committee on the proposed reopening of the United Artists Theater as a community theater and recommending that the council lease the place for one year with option to buy.

—Final reading of an ordinance reducing the special business tax in the Central Business District.

—Possible adoption of emergency ordinance requiring posting of signs at gas stations showing the price of each grade of gasoline and prohibiting advertising of products not immediately available for sale.

—Resolution setting up guidelines for conforming with the Governmental Conflict of Interest Act.

—Resolution confirming summary abatement taken at 1060 San Bernardino Ave.

—Resolution ordering installation of stop signs to stop east and westbound traffic on Ashfield Avenue at Los Flores Street.

—Resolution consenting to establishment of a portion of Valley Boulevard as part of the System of Highways of the County of Los Angeles during construction of certain street improvements.

—Recommendation of Parks and Recreation Director Jack Hoxsey for purchase of the southeast quadrant of the San Bernardino and Corona Freeways for parks and recreation purposes.

—Notice of application for on-sale beer license for the Mexico Lindo, 1060 S. Garey Ave.

League to hold forum of those in governor race

AZUSA — The League of Women Voters will sponsor a forum March 29 at 8 p.m. in the Citrus College Auditorium to introduce gubernatorial candidates.

All candidates for the office have been invited to attend. Each will give a 10-minute platform statement. Following the statements, candidates will answer questions from persons in the audience.

The event is sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Alhambra, Arcadia, Claremont, East San Gabriel Valley, Glendora, Monrovia, Pasadena, Pomona and South Pasadena.

Claremont library to give lesson in microfilm use

CLAREMONT — Brief demonstrations of the use of microfilm and microfiche have been scheduled Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. at the Claremont Public Library, 1375 N. Indian Hill Blvd. The public is invited.

The project will acquaint patrons with the microform holdings of the local library and the county public library, of which Claremont is a branch.

The microfilm collection includes general, ethnic, and 19th-Century California newspapers, monographs and some magazines.

Local patrons have access to all microfilm in the county library system through the request set-up and what is stored at the local library, which includes Life, Time, and Saturday Review magazines and the Claremont Courier newspaper.

Librarian Mary Haaker will conduct the demonstrations with the microfilm reader donated last year by the Claremont Friends of the Library. Prints of 19th-century county newspapers also are on display.

Among those are the "Alta California" newspaper of Aug. 3, 1861, which includes a news release of Civil War battles brought to San Francisco by Pony Express, and the issue of Sept. 1, 1849, which includes proceedings of the convention for framing the California Constitution preparatory to the state's admission to the union.

Also on display is a microfilm of a Spanish language newspaper of Sept. 11, 1855, and a copy of the Japanese newspaper, Sangyo Nippo, which describes in English and Japanese Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

Some telephone calls may get customer refund

POMONA — Some customers of General Telphone Co. will get refunds on certain calls made between July 23, 1971, and Aug. 8, 1972.

The California Public Utilities Commission ordered refunds of about $12.4 million to be made with in three months to customers of General Telphone Co., Continental Telephone Co. and smaller independent telephone comapnies.

The refunds represent a portion of charges for intrastate long-distance calls, multi-message unit calls and related federal excise and local taxes between these dates, plus seven per cent interest.

Charges made during that period were based on Pacific Telphone Co. rates which went into effect July 23, 1971, and which were later nullified by the utility commission following a ruling by the California Supreme Court.

Refunds will generally be made by credit to customers' bills, said officials. Former customers will also be notified about the refunds.

Cooperative program on refineries urged

By DAVID M. ROSEN
United Press International

The groundwork is being laid in New England for a first-in-the-nation regional compact to bring together legally six states into a cooperative program of refinery building and offshore oil development.

Establishment of a New England States Oil Compact through federal legislation was called for in January by Massachusetts State Sen. William M. Bulger, D-Boston, in testimony before the U.S. Senate Committee on Intergovernmental Relations chaired by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

Since that time, the idea of a compact has been discussed by Bulger with U.S. House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., the Council of State Governments and the New England Regional Commission.

At O'Neill's suggestion, a technical committee has been set up to work out the details of the concept so that specific legislation can be drafted and O'Neill is chairman of the caucus.

Leo Allen, Bulger's energy adviser, said the technical committee hopes to make the presentation to the caucus by June.

"This is not a long term study," Allen said. "With seven publicly unveiled oil refinery proposals in New England and as many others being discussed privately there is a tremendous need for a compact right now."

"I am very optimistic that this thing will get off the ground," he added. "It's really a matter of enlightened self interest where the six states acting together can do more than each of them separately."

Despite Allen's optimism, however, the idea of a legally binding compact is likely to be opposed by at least one New England governor, Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire, who has been negotiating with Aristotle Onassis' Olympic Refineries to get a refinery built in his state.

Thomson, at a recent meeting of the New England Governors Conference, joined the region's other five governors in supporting a resolution calling for cooperative action in refinery development. But that resolution, unlike the proposed compact, carefully excluded projects that have already been proposed.

As proposed by Bulger, a regional entity would be empowered to:

—Share among all six New England states tax and other revenues from refineries, offshore tanker terminal facilities and other petroleum-related activities. This is designed to remove any tax advantage a state might receive from having an oil facility located within its boundaries.

—Plan, construct and control a New England petroleum pipeline distribution system linking refineries and major markets in the region along the states pollution control regulations as they relate to oil and oil facilities so that competition among states for refinery sites is not based on lower pollution standards.

—Standardize industrial controls relating to oil to remove unhealthy competition in the area.

—Determine the location, size and number of refineries and related facilities in New England.

—Plan, construct and, if necessary, operate a publicly owned refinery.

On the last point, Allen said a New England regional oil development unit would be a likely candidate for federal funding if pending congressional legislation setting a national power authority is passed.

VOTE AGAINST ALL INCUMBENTS

SICK AND TIRED — Ralph Perry, a contruction worker at the Ranier, Ore., Trojan nuclear plant, places a "Vote Against All Incumbents" bumper sticker on a car in a campaign the workers at the plant started simply "because we're sick and tired of being sick and tired."

In Chile, a muzzled press

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Six months ago, the Chilean press was among the most freewheeling, imaginative, insulting and entertaining news media in Latin America.

Leftwing newspapers loyal to the late President Salvador Allende blasted the opposition press and political figures, sometimes with obscene headlines.

The opposition press answered in the same terms, up to the point where many Chileans said liberty of the press had degenerated into "libertinism of the press."

That is all finished now.

Today's Chilean press, that which survived the Sept. 11, 1973, military overthrow of Allende's government, is muzzled.

Politics Are Banned

Leftwing newspapers that supported Allende no longer exist. In Santiago, five were closed outright, including Puro Chile which was gutted by fire during the bloody battles Sept. 11.

The rightwing La Tribuna committed journalistic hara-kiri last December by publishing a frontpage story that former Socialist Party secretary general Carlos Altamirano had been arrested.

Altamirano, now out of the country, was the No. One man on the military government's most-wanted list. The story was false and the newspaper was shut down.

In late February La Prensa— official organ of the Christian Democratic Party, largest political party in Chile—folded.

"There seems to be no point in publishing a political newspaper if all politics are banned," a spokesman for La Prensa said.

Five still publish

Of the dozen newspapers Santiago had before the coup, only five still publish, four morning newspapers and an evening edition.

The former La Nacion (The Nation), official voice of the Allende government, was allowed to continue but only after it changed its name to La Patria (The Fatherland).

Of those that still survive, three belong to the conservative El Mercurio chain—El Mercurio, La Segunda and Ultimas Noticias.

The other two are La Patria and La Tercera de la Hora, a tabloid with the largest circulation in Chile, about 400,000 copies daily.

From mid-January to mid-February, the surviving newspapers were under prior censorship. Copies of each issue had to be sent for review by military censors before going to press. But this was lifted and the newspapers are now under self-censorship.

Soccer and racing

Prohibited are stories that criticize the ruling military junta, price increases not announced by the government and articles about former members of the Allende government unless the information is officially released.

Politics are taboo, simply because all political activity has been banned. Top figures such as former President Eduardo Frei have vanished from the newspapers.

"If it wasn't for soccer and horse racing, we would really be in trouble," a director of one newspaper said.

Another said "our features editor is the busiest man on our staff now."

Magazines also censored

The closure of seven newspapers created serious economic problems for the several hundred persons who lost their jobs. Some found employment in other fields but at least nine Chilean newsmen were not so fortunate; they were imprisoned in desolate Chacabuco prison camp located in the Atacama desert, one of the driest spots on the face of the earth.

The censorship applies to magazines also. Ercilla, a Newsweek-style publication that is considered the best in Chile, is still under prior censorship. Copies of the weekly are sent to censors every Tuesday, one day before the magazine goes on sale.

"On Tuesdays we all sit biting our nails until the censors return it," an employee of Ercilla said.

Square tomatoes? myth may turn fact

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Square tomatoes?

Well, nearly. And they are working in that direction.

The energy crisis is going to result in a lot of new pacages, according to an expert who explains that today's goods often are over-packaged.

Don Short, vice president of Walter Landor Associates, one of the world's largest design firms, said the trend to simplify packaging is worldwide.

He lists frozen foods with outer wrappings which can be dispensed with, metal cans which can be replaced by plastic-coated cardboard, flip-top cans requiring a lot of energy to make, wide labels on bottles and cans where narrow labels would do.

And square tomatoes? The squarer they are the less packaging material you need.

Specialists at the University of California at Davis say a square tomato is a myth but they are working on it and have developed "blocky" tomatoes with stronger walls For experimental purposes the school did produce some square tomatoes by enclosing young tomatoes in a box and letting them ripen in the confinement to a square shape.

But this would not be practical on a large scale, a scientist explains, adding that such a container must be hand-placed, have enough space for growth and at the same time be fliexible enough that the fruit would not burst out of its confinement.

Short says the quickest change may come in package shapes themselves. His firm shows how the familiar rectangle box of cigarettes can be reshaped as a square —and suddenly hold 25 per cent more cigarettes with no more cardboard. "It isn't nearly as handy to hold or carry in a pocket but if materials really got scarce it could be accepted."

A typical three-pound box of soap today uses 293 square inches of cardboard. Reshaped as a cube, it takes only 253 inches to hold the same amount. However, it may require two hands to carry it instead of one.

Consumer demand or marketing success has led the way so far and Short doesn't expect individual companies to go rashly to new shapes that might not be acceptable.

Instead, the designers predict industry-wide action, "carefully approached and with government support so there are no antitrust or collusion problems. No company can do it alone."

Golden Gate Bridge tops list of man-made wonders

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

The pyramids of Egypt topped the list of the Seven Ancient Wonders of the World. Would you believe the Golden Gate Bridge ranks first among the Seven Man-Made wonders in the United States?

That, at least, was the finding of an unofficial poll conducted by the U.S. Travel Service (USTS) of the Department of Commerce to determine the "constructions" in the United States with the greatest tourist appeal.

The poll of American travel industry representatives drew 529 votes for 106 different attractions. No voter came up with all seven, only three named six.

According to the VISIT USA Newsletter, the Golden Gate Bridge was voted Number 1. Built in 1937, the 4,200-foot suspension bridge spanning San Francisco Bay long has been considered one of the most beautiful in the world.

The others, listed by the newsletter in order of voting preference, included:

—Mount Rushmore National Memorial in South Dakota where huge heads of Presidents Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt have been carved out of the face of a 6,000-foot granite mountain in the Black Hills near Rapid City. "Called a Shrine to American Democracy, this monument...symbolizes the beginnings and trials of the United States during its first century and a half of growth."

—Astrodome, Houston, Tex., the giant sports and convention complex built in 1965 which "opened a whole new world for sportsminded Americans..."

—Statue of Liberty in New York harbor. "The impressive lady with a torch was given by the French people to the United States to epitomize the spirit of America." It also has been the symbol of freedom for millions of refugees since 1886.

—Hoover Dam, Arizona-Nevada. "Completed in 1936, the multipurpose dam on the Colorado River is 726 feet high and 1,244 feet long."

—Walt Disney World, Lake Buena Vista, Fla. "...a vacation world, complete with resort hotels, golf resort, miles of beach and lake for recreation, a 600-acre wilderness campground and the Magic Kingdom theme park."

—Gateway Arch, St. Louis, Mo., "rising some 750 feet at the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial on the Mississippi riverfront is a testimony to St. Louis's past and to the modern spirit of imagination and development."

Following in popularity among those polled were Disneyland, Anaheim, Calif.; The Empire State Building in New York City; Washington Monument in Washington, D.C.; and the U.S. Interstate Highway System.

The USTS said it planned a similar poll of the "Seven Natural Wonders in the USA" soon.

Incidentally, the pyramids of Egypt are the sole survivors of the ancient wonders of the world. The others have long since been destroyed, either by man or time.

They included the Hanging Gardens of Babylon; the statue of Zeus at Olympia; the temple of Artemis of Ephesus; the Mausoleum at Halicarnassus; the Colossus at Rhodes; and the Pharos of Alexandria.

Progress-Bulletin Music, Art, Drama

Exhibition of Egyptian art will open at museum April 4

LOS ANGELES —"Age of the Pharachs," a major exhibition of Egyptian art, opens at the county Museum of Art April 4. Admission is $1.

The exhibition, the most comprehensive of its kind ever seen in California, includes over 150 ancient Egyptian works of art from 14 major American collections. Stone and wood sculpture, reliefs, bronzes, sarcophagi, gold jewelry, textiles and ceramics ranging in date from 4000 B.C. through the Roman period are included. A majority of the works, reflecting the title of the exhibition, are from the traditional dynastic periods of Egyptian history, although a number of pre-dynastic and post-dynastic works can also be seen.

Rexford Stead, the museum's deputy director of fine arts says, "Beyond revealing that a surprising wealth of Egyptian antiquities exists in public collections throughout the United States, the current exhibition permits a broad view of the development of Egyptian art from earliest times. It also shows that a finely carved diorite bowl, a magnificent bronze, or a faience ushabti, confirms Egyptian artistic genius quite as much as a gold sarcophagus cover from the tomb of Tutankhamen."

One of the most powerful influences on Egyptian civilization and therefore on Egyptian art was the belief in and anticipation for a revised life after death. Most ancient Egyptian works of art that exist today have been recovered from tombs and temple ruins. Sculpture was produced out of the desire to perpetuate or serve the dead. Consequently, fine portraiture developed very early in Egyptian art.

Two examples of Egyptian tomb sculpture from Dynasty IV are a limestone statue of Kem-Ka-Re and his son lent by the Lowie Museum of Anthropology, UC Berkeley, and a "reserve head" of a prince of the House of Cheops, from the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. From the latter half of the Middle Kingdom is a powerful figure of a seated nobleman made of quartzite, probably from a temple. The figure, lent by the Brooklyn Museum, sits brooding and sad, wrapped in a heavy cloak and conveys both the calm and apprehension felt by a complex man as he prepared to face the hereafter.

Of particular importance, from the Amarna period of Dynasty XVLLL, is an amphora, 29 inches high, lent by the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. The amphora — perhaps a wine vessel for royal banquets — is unique. Apart from its size and colors, it is the only ancient Egyptian vessel known on which the bodies of animals are modeled in the round.

Additional XVIII Dynasty highlights in the exhibition include: a painted limestone seated lion with the cartouche of Tuthmosis III, from the University Museum, Philadelphia; a beautifully crafted and brightly colored polychrome faience "ushabti" inscribed for the Lady Sati from Sakkara, lent by the Brooklyn Museum; and a red granite kneeling figure of Hatshepsut from the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The Spectrum

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

CAPSULE REVIEW — The Center Theater Group's production of "Hamlet," which opened Thursday at the Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center, is a workmanlike but uninteresting presentation of the Shakespearean classic.

There is nothing disastrously wrong — the minor characters are uniformly unintelligible and Peter Wexler's stage set looks more like a Vermont barnyard than a Danish castle — but the energy crisis seems to have affected the actors and director Gordon Davidson. Maybe they do better on odd days.

Stacy Keach, in spite of impressive credentials, offers an off-the-rack, non-electrifying Hamlet, more rugged than other interpreters of the role — lucid, vigorous, but undefined.

The best performance is that of Jeff Corey as Polonius, a richly humorous and persuasive characterization. Unlike many of the others, he displays more than a nodding acquaintance with Shakespeare and imbues his part with warmth and reality.

Harris Yulin and the toothsome Salome Jens make an appealing but not moving King and Queen of Denmark; Kitty Winn's Ophelia is beguiling, and Peter Nyberg is a satisfactory Laertes.

The ingredients are all first rate, but somehow they fail to jell into an exciting and moving performance.

TV NOTES

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC lost no time in taking advantage of the recent change by the Federal Communications Commission that permits more prime evening time to networks on certain days. "The Wonderful World of Disney" will begin at 7 p.m. instead of 7:30 when the new season begins next fall. It has been in the 7:30 spot since its 1961 premiere.

April 21 is when comedian Alan King will do his annual thing of looking back at a year with acid comments. This time he'll not only take on 1973 but throw in the first quarter of 1974 in a show titled "Alan King's Energy Crisis, Rising Prices, Assorted Vices Comedy Hour."

NBC is preparing a two-hour drama, "The Healers," starring John Forsythe, for the 1974-75 season that may spin off a series. The star is seen as Dr. Roger Kirk, chief of staff of a Los Angeles medical research institute; divorced, with two young children, with Pippa Scott playing the ex-wife.

Photographer will exhibit in Pasadena

PASADENA — The Pasadena Museum of Modern Art will present an exhibition of work by social research photographer Marion Palfi March 26-May 5.

Miss Palfi pioneered in the field of social research photography and works almost exclusively in essay form. She expresses with her camera, in a penetrating way, the sorrows, joys, defeats and victories of her fellow human beings. Her photographs evoke an immediate emotional response.

The studies in this exhibition deal with prejudice, injustice, conditions of the aged, the effects of proverty and neglect on children, and the effects of acculturation on the American Indian. Her work does not evidence exploitation or exaggeration but rather a feeling of compassion and understanding.

She commented, "I am a social research photographer who is trying to combine an art form with social research. I want to make people aware—aware that a discriminator destroys himself; that the diversity of people in America is their strength."

Hungarian-born Miss Palfi came to America in 1940, shortly after Hitler began his march through Europe. She decided then to dedicate her talents to inspire people everywhere so that such horror may never happen again.

Chocolate Easter bunnies recalled; may be spoiled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Easter bunnies made by a Canadian chocolate factory have been recalled from U.S. candy shelves by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) because they may contain salmonella bacteria.

If the bunnies, along with other chocolate products made by the firm are contaminated, they could cause fever, nausea, vomiting and diarrhea if eaten.

The FDA said that the products made by Regent Chocolates Ltd., of St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, Canada, are distributed in the United States under their name and 15 other private labels.

Distributors in the United States include:

— Frankford Candy and Chocolate Co., Philadelphia, Pa. The labels are Frankford and Woodbine.

—Murray Allen Products, New Rochelle, N.Y. Labels are Murray Allen, Loft and Barricini.

—Triumph Candy Corp., Englewood Cliffs, N.J. Labels are Regent, World Candy, Holiday Candy, Eljay, Shari, Zachary, Mayfair, Holiday Inn, Van Houten, Family Treats and Mr. Milky.

"Tests by the Canadian Health Protection Branch and by U.S. Public Health agencies have revealed the presence of salmonella contamination in some of the Regent products," the FDA said.

"The Canadian authorities have closed the plant until the problem of contamination is solved. A recall of all Regent Chocolate products distributed in Canada began Feb. 26, 1974."

'Dirty Sally's' Rambo fits TV role as cowboy

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — If Dack Rambo looks at home aboard a horse in the "Dirty Sally" series, it's because the youthful actor is a part-time rancher who rides herd on his own cattle.

Dack plays Cyrus Pike, traveling the west with the crone in the new CBS series. He does his personal traveling by airplane from Los Angeles to Deleano, Calif., where his family owns several hundred acres of prime farm land in the San Jaoquin valley.

One of identical twins, Dack was crushed by the death of his brother, Orman, in an automobile crash five years ago. He has finally come to grips with the tragedy, but it hasn't been easy.

They had worked together as actors, although Dack was the more successful. He starred in "The Guns of Will Sonnett" in 1968.

Although his permanent home is in Deleano, Dack has kept an apartment in Beverly Hills for four years. It's sparsely furnished and not very fancy. He has a housekeeper who comes in every day to clean and cook for him.

Once in a while a girlfriend stops by in the evening to prepare a special cozy dinner. But not often.

"I never want to saddle myself down with too many possessions," says Rambo, "until I buy a mansion someplace. I don't like to be tied down."

That goes for marriage, too. Rambo is single and recently broke up with a longtime girlfriend when her conversation drifted around to matrimony.

Dack starts out each morning at 4:30 stopping for a massage on the way to work. He arrives at CBS studio center in the San Fernando Valley about 7 a.m. and begins shooting scenes almost at once.

Because the show started in mid-season Dack has spent most of his weekends flying to various parts of the country to promote the series.

But when he has a few days off, he hops up to the family ranch-farm. When he's not working in films he lives on the property, punching cows, driving tractors and doing other ranch work.

In addition to cattle the Rambos raise wheat, cotton, alfalfa, barley and potatoes. He mends fences, helps with the irrigating and does all the other chores.

Henry Kissinger— interior decorator

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger has changed the corridors as well as the policies at the State Department.

Shortly after becoming Secretary of State, Kissinger agreed with some other U.S. officials that the staid State Department, an eight story architectural crackerbox that sprawls over two city blocks, simply was too dull aesthetically as well as politically.

A devotee of modern art, Kissinger decided he would match his new-look diplomatic policies with a new look at the State Department.

Like nearly everything else Kissinger does, the results have proved controversial. But nobody can say the State Department is dull. Foggy Bottom isn't foggy anymore.

Giving enthusiastic approval to a plan that had been worked out before he became the new landlord, Kissinger soon had a small army of painters at work.

Only the eighth floor, where the formal state dining and reception rooms are, escaped the painters. But not the interior decorators. The eighth floor is being redone in Early American style.

Elsewhere, the grim, gray walls were splashed with a rainbow of stunning colors with such glamorous names as Cape Cod Cherry, Lemon Aztec and Brown Mink. A few even sport peppermint stick vinyl wallpaper.

Reactions were mixed as thousands of State Department employes spent several months stepping around ladders and over paint buckets.

Kissinger, whose own office walls are adorned by some avant garde paintings, seemed eminently pleased with the results. As might be expected, a majority of the bureaucrats say they agree with him.

Virtually no hallway is a single color. Some of the gray walls remain, a grim reminder of the antiseptic aura of the past. But now they are contrasted by raspberry reds, royal blues and a yellow that is indescribable.

It puts a little fun into the maze of frustrating hallways, some of which suddenly end in a blank wall only to be resumed again half a block away—with no apparent access. The building seems to be an architectural tribute to that old New England saying, "You can't get there from here."

The sprucing up project, which has added light to the windowless interior halls, was conceived three years ago. It has not entirely escaped the bureaucratic preference for uniformity and order, however. The entire building now is color-coded.

While the hallways sparkle with a variety of color on any given floor, the same corridors on every floor from the sixth on down are the same hue.

The exception is the seventh floor, where exceptional officials reside; where Kissinger and other top members of the U.S. Foreign Service are ensconced in offices that have some lofty views of the Washington landscape.

There the halls of the mighty are decorated in patriotic red, white and blue. One hallway even sports a stripe of blue and gold, traditional colors of the State Department.

Sweden evens things up

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden likes to be known as a nation of equality for all—and that includes dogs.

In most of North America, only seeing eye dogs are allowed to ride with their masters on trains, subways, buses and trolleys. But in Sweden, dogs and other pets can be brought along on all public transportation—for a price.

Instead of paying per ride, Stockholm's human commuters are able to buy a "50 kronor card" (about $12) which carries their picture and signature and is valid for one month on all public transportation in the greater Stockholm area.

Beginning April 1, the same privilege will be extended to dogs, except the canines will not have to have their pictures or paw print on their 50 kronor cards. A master's signature will do it.

Currently, dogs or other pets small enough to be put in a bag and carried aboard public transportation ride for free. All larger species have to pay full human fare.

According to the latest figures, Stockholm has 26,492 dogs registered by the Dog Tax Expedition in Stockholm. Dog tax officials say the figure probably is much higher, because many owners try to escape the 80 kronor ($18) annual license fee.

Young students make good impression on elderly classmates

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Royal A. Harrison, a retired Army major in his mid-70s, had a "pretty negative impression" of today's college students— until he joined them in class.

They are not, as he confesses he believed, all a bunch of trouble-makers hell-bent on pulling down the establishment.

Harrison is one of nearly 100 senior citizens 60 years or older who took advantage of a new program at the University of Colorado this past semester which offered open classes free of charge to the elderly.

"I have found that the students on the campus are hard-working," Harrison said. "They're dedicated, they're there to get an education and, by gum, they're going to get it. I admire them so much for it.

"I suppose a lot of us went to classes with a negative impression in our minds as to the students. Some of us thought that they had a four-year course going in dissension. So I'm just awfully grateful to have the opportunity to discover that I was all wrong about the situation."

Stock market advice

Before the semester was out, some of Harrison's younger fellow students were even dropping by his fashionable one-bedroom apartment north of the university campus for some hints on stocks and bonds.

Harrison, a native of Southhaven, Mich., who went to the University of Missouri for two years before making the military his career, said his Colorado courses were a "real eyeopener."

"I've had to change so many of my impressions (about the students)," he said. "I've just been amazed at the intelligent questions that the students have carried on.

"It has just amazed me. And it also has given me an insight into their motives and their goals. I was just sold on them immediately. They really sold me a bill of goods without trying."

Harrison took courses in biblical literature, history and finance. He managed to do some teaching in the finance course because of a personal background in stocks and bonds.

Taught thrift

"One of my duties in the military was to teach thrift to the GIs and, of course, I thought stocks and bonds would be a good opportunity," he explained.

"You can't imagine how rewarding this has been for me. It has really rewarded me, and I feel like I'm not being a parasite."

Jean Ferris, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said the newly initiated program has benefited the school as well as the senior citizens who took part.

"In many classes the presence of an older person with a very different viewpoint has made a big difference in the depth of the discussion," she said. "The professors that I have talked to have mentioned more than once how valuable it has been to have this older attitude in the class."

Dean Ferris said courses with available space were opened to any state resident 60 years or older who was interested. They paid no fees and received no credit.

No degrees needed

Literature courses and history classes were among the favorites, but other courses included anthropology, the classics, computer science, economics, and one in engineering.

It made no difference whether the senior citizen had a high school or a college degree. They were never asked.

Margie Koenig, an offical in the university's admissions and records office and a member of a committee which worked on the senior citizen program, said:

"I didn't hear one problem— not even that the students were unkind. One gentleman said he thoroughly enjoyed it. He said he didn't even notice the boys' long hair after awhile."

Cancer victim who consoled others dies

DERBY, Conn. (UPI) — Michael Bourque, 11, Shelton, Conn., who gave solace to other cancer victims during his six-month bout with the disease, is dead of bone cancer.

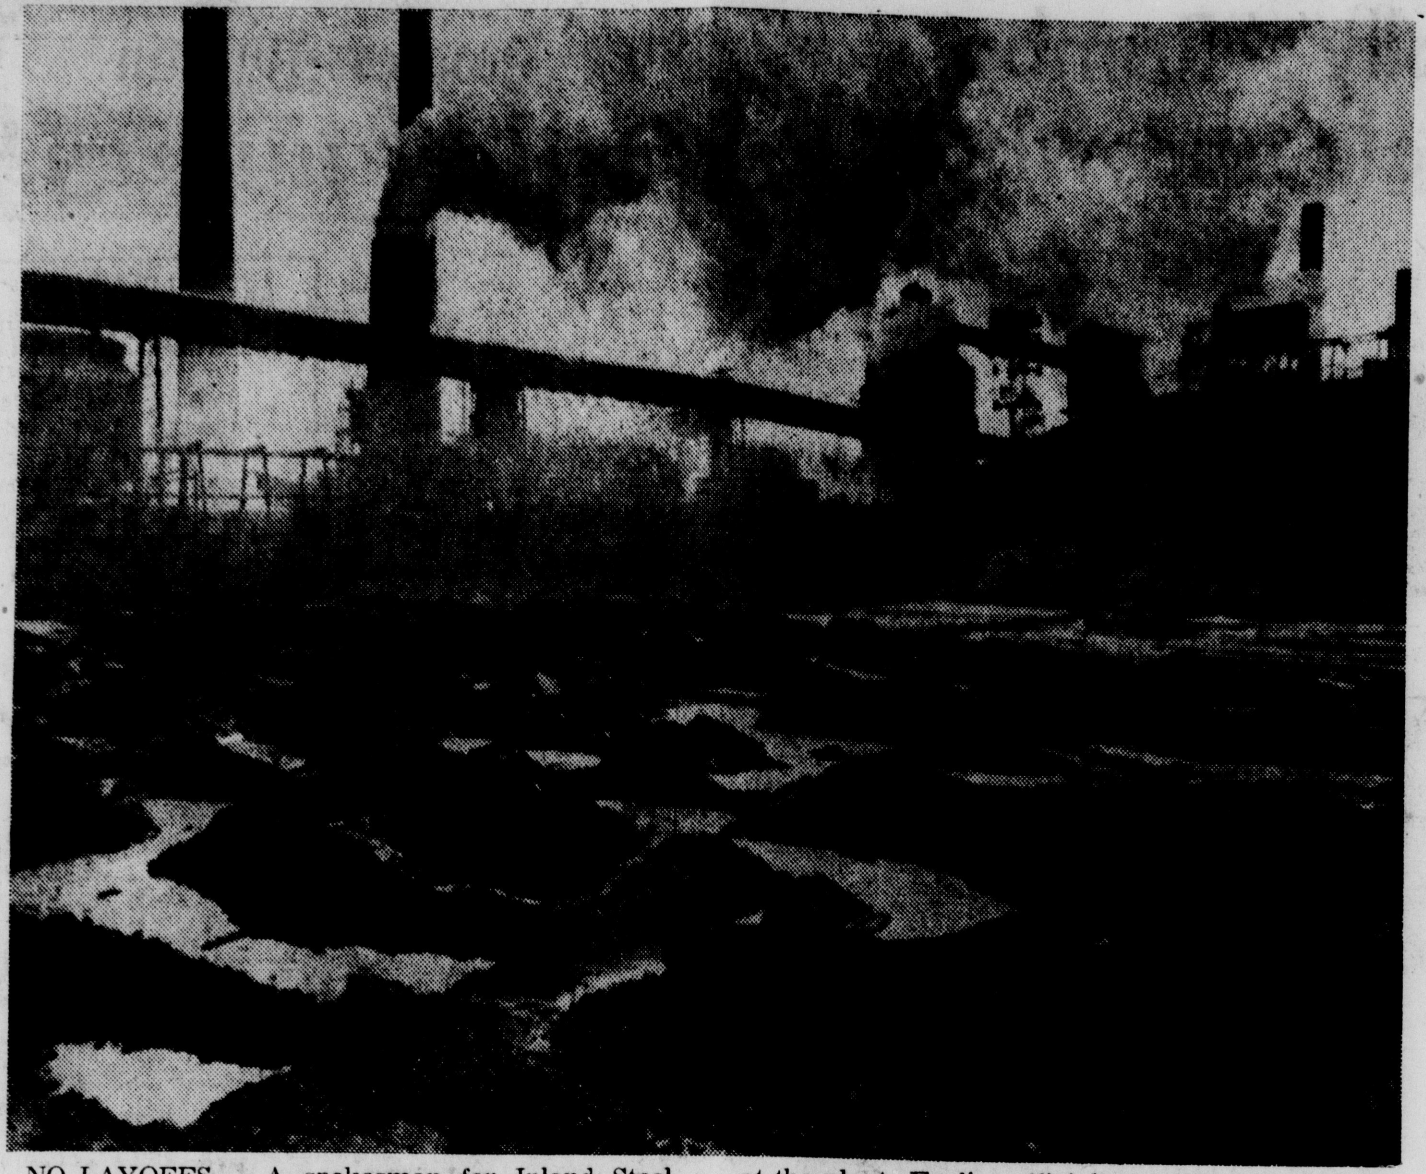
He died at 12:22 a.m. Thursday at Griffin Hospital, where he was admitted last Saturday.

Michael was walking with crutches within three hours of arriving home after an Oct. 9 operation took his right leg. He later wrote a letter of encouragement to Teddy Kennedy Jr., 12, after Teddy had a similar operation Nov. 28.

"Dear Ted," he began. "I'm getting along real good on my crutches. The doctor gave me the good news that I can have an artificial leg."

Although Michael learned last fall that he had bone cancer, he was not told he was dying of a malignancy.

The slimy substance produced by a fish's skin helps prevent bacteria and disease from attacking the fish.



NO LAYOFFS — A spokesman for Inland Steel Co. said there would be no layoffs this week among the 22,500 steel workers at its East Chicago, Ind., plant. Shown is the dwindling coal pile at the plant. Earlier officials predicted big layoffs because of the strike by coal workers in West Virginia.

NASA sees 1st space shuttle test by '78-79

DOWNEY, Calif. (UPI) — The first space shuttle test flights should be made in 1978 or 1979, NASA officials said.

The space shuttle is the current main thrust of the space program. It will be able to fly like an airplane until it leaves the atmosphere, maneuver in space, and return to a runway landing on earth like a conventional plane.

An empty space shuttle will weigh about 150,000 pounds, about 10 times heavier than the Apollo moonships, NASA officials said in a progress report at Rockwell International Corp.

Mistake puts fire axes to historical landmark

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Firemen trainees flailed away with their axes at the walls of the two-story, unoccupied home in the Western Addition until Mrs. Lavana Leutwyler arrived at the scene.

Mrs. Leutewyler screamed that the old Victorian home— which, by the way, was not aflame—belonged to her and had been officially declared a city landmark.

"I was hysterical," she recalled Tuesday. "I screamed for them to stop—that it was my house."

She said she had purchased the home from the city Redevelopment Agency.

Bruins now engaged in 'psych war'

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

TUCSON, Ariz. — The war of psychology has already started for next week's classic basketball matchup in the NCAA finals between seven-time defending champion UCLA and top-ranked North Carolina State.

UCLA had no trouble qualifying for the national finals in methodically disposing of old foe San Francisco, 83-60, to win the West Regional here Saturday afternoon.

Immediately talk started to center around next week's semi-final match between the Bruins and North Carolina State. Marquette and Kansas will play in the other semifinal contest, but most basketball experts feel the national title will really be decided between the Bruins and the Wolfpack at the tournament in Greensboro, N.C.

UCLA coach John Wooden has already started the warfare.

"We want North Carolina State to think about our previous game," Wooden said after Saturday's easy triumph. "I want them to remember we beat them by 18 points and (Bill) Walton played less than half the game. I will assume he will play more this time and I want them to dwell on it. Now go ask North Carolina State who has the psychological edge."

Just in case you forgot, UCLA beat North Carolina State. 84-66, back in December at St. Louis in a game advertised as the battle of the century. But next Saturday's contest at Greensboro is even bigger.

Asked if he minds playing N.C. State back in its home territory, Wooden laughed, "My mother comes from Winston Salem, North Carolina. I have always enjoyed going to North Carolina to visit. I have always found the people there most hospitable and will assume they will be this time."

UCLA looked like its usual domineering self Saturday afternoon in contrast to Thursday night's narrow 111-100 three overtime victory over Dayton. However, the two games were similar in that UCLA enjoyed a 12-point lead at halftime in both contests.

However, the second halves were quite different. While Dayton was able to bounce back and stay with the Bruins, San Francisco just kept falling further behind.

The West championship was all decided when the Bruins raced out to a 57-38 lead with 11:15 left in the game. USF's Phil Smith scored two quick baskets to give some of the fans a little encouragement, but UCLA jumped right back with eight straight points to settle the issue early.

"Yes, I reminded our team to think about Thursday night during our halftime talk," Wooden explained. "I made sure they remembered that we had to fight for our lives the rest of the way. I thought we had a good second half performance today. In fact, it was probably one of our best second halfs of the season.".

Saturday's game started slowly as San Francisco concentrated its defense to stopping Walton, The score was only 4-1 in UCLA's favor after the first five minutes, but the Bruins broke it open when Greg Lee, Dave Meyers and Tommy Curtis scored from the outside to frustrate the Dons' defensive plans.

"I would rather be beat by someone else than Bill Walton," San Francisco coach Bob Galliard explained. "We knew it was a calculated risk but we had to try something. We had to get ahead and establish some sort of command of the game but we didn't."

"We used good patience on offense and intensity on defense," Wooden said. "I would agree that today's game was more like some of our previous games which we won in previous championships."

Walton, who didn't score in the first 12 minutes of the game, again dominated the play with 17 points and nine rebounds in being named the outstanding player of the tournament.

He was joined on the All-Tournament team by teammates Keith Wilkes and Meyers, plus Dayton's Don Smith and Mike Sylvester.

Wilkes, who got into early foul trouble Thursday, showed why he's an All-American Saturday in leading all scoring with 27 points plus eight rebounds. Meyers was the third Bruins to reach double figures in tallying 12.

Kevin Restani and Phil Smith led the Dons with 20 and 18 points apiece.

UCLA shot 51.3 per cent in making 38 of 74 shots while USF hit for 45 per cent in making 27 of 60.

In Saturday's consolation preliminary game, New Mexico defeated Dayton, 66-61 on 14 points apiece by Bernard Hardin and Wendell Taylor. Smith tallied 22 for Dayton but Sylvester, who was so brilliant in scoring 36 Thursday night against the Bruins made only four of 18 shots Saturday for 10.

The consolation game was highlighted by a brief scuffle in which New Mexico's Bill Hagins and Dayton's Jim Testerman were ejected.

When asked his opinion of next week's national championships, Galliard said, "UCLA has a tremendous advantage becuase of its superior attitude. They just don't feel they can lose even though it has been proved they can. The could get beat next week but no team really compares to them. If I was a betting man, I would have to go with them because they are the strongest and the swiftest."

"I have confidence in this team," Wooden said, "but I am well aware anyone can win the national championship if they are good enough to get this far. We're not going back there with any fear in our hearts."

NFL bargaining session hits snag

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Football League Players and NFL owners held their first bargaining session on a new contract Saturday and immediately struck a snag over a threatened cut-off of insurance premiums previously paid by the league.

John Thompson and Theodore Kheel, spokesman for the owners' newly created Management Council, said they offered to continue the $64,000-a-month payments beyond the March 31 expiration date if the players would give a no-strike pledge until the first game of the regular season.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, termed the action "bad faith negotiating" and rejected the proposal for a no-strike pledge out of hand.

The association executive committee, consisting of Garvey and seven players, submitted an estimated 57 demands, some of them economic but many aimed at providing greater freedom for the players and a diminishing of the authority now held by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

In an opening statement, Garvey told the owners: "The players accuse you of taking freedom from the players with no justification beyond hollow phrases ... We accuse you of ignoring the injustices occasioned by head coaches and general managers who fine indiscriminately if players exercise their first amendment freedoms...

"It is time to end the suffocating paternalism and suppression of constitutional rights in the National Football League. It is time for freedom."

Among the "freedom" demands was an end to the so-called "Rozelle rule" which requires a team signing a player who has played out his option with another club to pay compensation, usually in the form of high draft choices. The players argue this renders the option proviso meaningless since most clubs hesitate to sign free agents at the cost of their top choices.

Other proposals would give veterans the right to nullify trades and strip Rozelle of his right to arbitrate club-player grievance cases.

The economic demands include increasing the winner and loser shares in the Super Bowl, providing a lump sum adjustment to a player upon retirement, increasing the minimum contract figure from $12,000 to $20,000 a season and hiking the pay for pre-season games.

In the insurance premium dispute, Kheel, who represents the owners in labor affairs, contended that the previous contract which expired March 1 required the league to pay the premiums only for two months beyond that date.

The players cite an insurance brochure issued by the league and their insurance cards which states the coverage would continue for a year beyond Sept. 16, 1973.

Kheel told newsmen after the one-hour and 35 minute session: "The contract is the controlling document. We said we would continue to pay the insurance if they promised there would be no strike before the regular season. They're asking us to subsidize them while they may be on strike. The players in the past have claimed they were being treated like children. Now, they should show maturity and live up to their obligations."

Garvey responded at a separate meeting with newsmen: "We think they are in violation of the law. They're asking for a no strike pledge is an insult. They are presuming there will be a strike; we say we want to reach a settlement and avoid a strike

Player president Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers urged good faith bargaining on both sides of the table and head of the owner's committee, Wellington Mara of the New York Giants echoed his sentiments.

Curry reported that the owners rejected a player proposal that the bargaining sessions be open to the news media. The two groups will meet in Washington on March 26 to seek further clarification of the player demands.

Golden State hands Lakers 30-point loss

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors defeated the Los Angeles Lakers for the second night in a row Saturday night 135-105 to take a one-game lead in their battle for the last spot in the NBA playoffs.

The Warriors broke the game open in the second period when they shot a phenomenal 83 per cent from the floor to take a 71-51 halftime lead. Rick Barry led the charge with 12 points in the period.

The Golden State defense, sparked by substitute center George Johnson, shut down the Lakers with 27 points. Los Angeles could not cut into the lead in the second half as the Warrior defense refused to buckle. Golden State led by as many as 30 points in the final stanza.

Cazzie Russell led the Warrior scoring attack with 34 points. Jeff Mullins scored 24 for Golden State. Elmore Smith paced the Lakers with 25 points and garnered 18 rebounds.

The Warriors have seven games remaining, five at home and two on the road, while Los Angeles will play all its remaining games at home.

Marquette, Kansas advance to finals after exciting wins

BY P-B WIRE DISPATCHES

Marquette and Kansas both scored narrow wins Saturday in the NCAA basketball playoffs and both will advance to next week's finals at Greensboro, N.C.

The fifth-ranked Warriors nipped the Michigan Wolverines 72-70 in the Mideast Regional finals to become one of the four teams going to Greensboro. Kansas became Marquette's foe in that Greenboro matchup as the Jayhawks overcame Oral Roberts 93-90 in overtime in the Midwest Regional.

Marquette grabbed a four-point lead with 45 seconds to play against Michigan when reserve Jerry Homan sank two free throws, and although Michigan's Campy Russell hit a jumper to get Michigan within two, the Warriors held the lead and the game.

Guard Tom Smith broke free for a layup with eight seconds remaining in overtime to clinch the Kansas triumph over Oral Oberts. The Jayhawks were up by as many as 15 points early in the game, but the Titans — with coach Ken Trickey on the bench despite a run-in with police Friday — came back to knot the game at 81-81 at the end of regulation play.

Sam McCants of Oral Roberts paced all scorers in their game wtih 24 points, while Russell hit for 21 in the Michigan loss.

The victories by Kansas and Marquette put them into Saturday's semifinal game. The Jayhawks take a 23-5 record into that matchup, while Marquette holds a 25-4 mark.

Warrior coach Al McGuire believes his team "will be dynamite" in this week's finals.

"I personally believe we're going to be dynamite," said an elated McGuire, whose squad would face either North Carolina State or UCLA if they beat Kansas. However, the Warriors figure to be tested by the Big Eight champion Jayhawk five.

Both teams lack the big stars of N.C. State or the Bruins, but have showed they can maintain their poise, as evidenced by their narrow wins Saturday.

It was an especially sweet win for McGuire and his Warriors, who were underdogs against a talented Michigan team.

"The whammy is broken and it has been a shadow over me," stated McGuire in reference to that fact that Marquette had failed to win the Mideast Regional in five prior times since McGuire came to the Catholic school ten years ago.

In the Mideast Regional consolation game, Notre Dame blasted Vanderbilt 118-88 behind John Shumate. Creighton won the Midwest consolation crown by dumping Louisville 80-71.

Wolfpack rips Pitt despite loss of star

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Top-ranked North Carolina State, stunned when star David Thompson was injured and wheeled unconscious from the gym, roared back to life late in the gamee on the shooting of Tommy Burleson and Monte Towe Saturday to swamp 14th-ranked Pittsburgh 100-72 for the NCAA Eastern Regional championship.

The 7-4 Burleson, Moe Rivers and 5-7 Towe put on a dazzling shooting display, scoring 15 points to only two for Pittsburgh, when Thompson returned to the State bench from the hospital with seven minutes left in the game and sat beside Coach Norman Sloan to cheer for his teammates.

Thompson, an all-American, was injured in the first period when he somersaulted high in the air in a futile attempt to block a shot and landed heavily on his back and head. First efforts to revive him failed and he was wheeled from the playing court to nearby Rex Hospital, leaving his team stunned.

Sloan and the Wolfpack team clamored around Thompson when he returned to the bench, then the team went to work and put the game out of reach.

Burleson led the Pack with 26 points, 16 in the second half. Towe, the smallest man on the court, had 19 and Rivers added 17—15 of them in the second half.

Pittsburgh grabbed an early 3-0 lead as State struggled to figure out its shifting Amoeba defense. Thompson was one of the first to solve the puzzle, and had ripped off six straight points when he was injured.

Kings shut out Red Wings, 2-0

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Goalie Rogie Vachon posted his fifth shutout of the year and Don Kozak and Juha Widing scored second-period goals Saturday night as the Los Angeles Kings blanked the Detroit Red Wings 2-0.

By running their unbeaten string to seven games, the playoff-bound Kings jumped into sole possession of third place in the NHL West.

Thompson's injury worries Sloan

RALEIGH (UPI) — For a long moment Saturday Coach Norman Sloan of top-ranked North Carolina State wished he had never been associated with basketball.

The moment came when All-America David Thompson lay unconscious on the floor of Reynolds Coliseum, knocked out when he jumped to block a shot, somersaulted and landed on his head.

"There've been a lot of wonderful things happen to us in the past two years and David has been at the center of them," Sloan said. "They all flashed across my mind when I saw David go down. But I thought that none of it, none of these things, were worth it.

"I wished I had never been associated with any of it," he said. "Now maybe that's a bad thing to say, but that's what I thought.

"I was sick," he said. "It was just an awful feeling."

Sloan said he and the Wolfpack team were encouraged by the news that Thompson apparently suffered no serious injuries, though he did have 15 stitches across the back of his head and was to be kept overnight in a hospital for observation.

But Sloan said he was still worried.

"Our minds should be on the finals right now, but they are not," Sloan said. "We want good words on David in the morning. Not that he'll be able to play next week, but that he's really all right."

The Wolfpack earned a berth in the NCAA finals next week in Greensboro, N.C. by downing 14th-ranked Pittsburgh 100-72 in the NCAA Eastern Regional championship game Saturday.

Dr. James Manly, a Raleigh surgeon, said Thompson should be able to play in the finals barring any "unforeseen" developments in his condition.

Thompson, who returned from the hospital where he was taken for X-rays to sit on the bench for the last few minutes of the game, tied with teammate Tommy Burleson for outstanding player of the tournament.

He was still wearing his uniform as he returned from the hospital and crossed the floor to the bench to the cheers of the 12,400 fans.

Sloan said he was proud of the team for remaining calm and controlled after Thompson's injury. And he felt the effort against Pitt "may have been our best defensive game of the year.

"The key was a great individual man-to-man press on them," he said. "We had to run them out of their kind of game. I think we were very successful at it."

Sloan said he felt the Wolfpack became "quicker and more determined" after Thompson's injury. Pitt Coach Buzz Ridl agreed.

"With him out, we had that much better an opportunity, or so I thought," Ridl said. "But it turned out that State seemed to become really inspired and rightly so."

HANGING HIGH — Marquette's Lloyd Walton lets out a yell as he cuts the net from the rim after his team's 72-70 win over Michigan in the NCAA Mideast Regional Tournament Saturday.

A nearly perfect Saturday for college baseball teams

Azusa Pacific and Pomona-Pitzer swept doubleheaders, Chaffey College continued its winning ways in the Mission Conference, but Cal Poly dropped a costly twinbill in Saturday's college baseball action.

Azusa Pacific dumped Southern California College twice, by scores of 2-0 and 20-0. Pomona-Pitzer got two wins over L.A. Baptist, winning the opener 7-1 and the nightcap 6-5. Chaffey won a league decision over Saddleback by a 14-10 score.

Cal Poly took it on the chin in their California Collegiate Athletic Association doubleheader with Cal State Northridge, losing both games by scores of 3-2 and 11-5 respectively.

Mike Heinen and John Riddle combined to hurl a four-hitter for Poly in the opener, but two of those hits were a triple by Dennis Chavez and a home run by Bob Azzarito.

Tom Nelson limited the Broncos to only five hits in the Matador outburst.

In the second game CSN scored three in the first and six in the fourth to win 11-5. Vic Bernal, who had hurled a no-hitter for Cal Poly in his last outing, was the victim of the Matado outburst.

In Bernal's defense however was the lack of defense behind him.

The Broncos committed the woeful total of eight errors in the nightcap, leading to 10 unearned runs.

Steve Ludewig slugged a three-run homer and Clay Harris had a solo shot for Poly, while Pete Alexander had four hits on the day for the only Bronco highlights.

The loss seriously hurts the Broncos' CCAA hopes, as they fell to a 2-5 league mark and an overall 6-13 ledger.

Elsewhere in the valley, things went much better for local nines.

Pomona-Pitzer ran its season mark to 4-1 with two wins over L.A. Baptist. Jon Blacker fired six-hitter in the Sagehens' 7-1 win in the first game, while P-P survived a five-run third in the nightcap to post a 6-5 victory.

Dave Jones, with nine K's in 6 and 2-3rds innings of relief work, picked up the win for P-P. The Hens won the game in the ninth as Biff Sherman walked, took second and third on wild pitches, and scored on Paul Miller's single.

Miller and Sherman both wound up the day with four hits apiece to pace the Pomona-Pitzer offense. The Sagehens square off against Whittier next Tuesday in a league battle.

Azusa Pacific also won a twinbill, beating Southern Cal College twice on shutouts. Mike Jones blanked SCC in the opener 2-0 and Ken Jones had it even easier in the nightcap with a big 20-0 victory.

Ted Dominguez cracked a two-run homer to win the first game for the Cougars, who then bombed SCC pitchers for 19 hits and 20 runs in the finale.

Ken Nance slugged two homers in the 20-0 game, while Bobby Nall and Curt Mitchell had one apiece. Mike Rogers had a five-hit afternoon, as did Dominguez.

A-P goes against Chapman Tuesday at Chapman.

Chaffey College continued to roll in the Mission Conference, riding a six-run seventh frame to a 14-10 win over Saddleback. Mark Berrier's three-run homer gave the Panthers the win.

Gary Sloan had four hits for Chaffey, while Berrier had three and four RBI's. Ralph Valadez drove home four runs and also saved the game with some sharp relief pitching. Valadez and Dennis Chavez had round-trippers addition to Berrier.

Chaffey is now 6-1 in the MC and will host San Bernardino Monday.

Mazmanian pleased

Mounties rip S.A.

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

SANTA ANA — "When you win four out of five in a week in this league," said Mt. San Antonio College baseball coach Art Mazmanian, "you've done something."

The veteran Mountie skipper was understandably pleased following Saturday afternoon's 10-2 rout of Santa Ana in South Coast Conference baseball action.

It was MSAC's 13th victory in 16 games on the season, the fourth in five this busy week, setting the stage for Tuesday's crucial meeting with five-time defending SCC champion Cerritos on the Mountie field.

While the Mounties were avenging Thursday's 6-3 loss to the Don's, Cerritos gained its sixth conference victory and 34th straight over two seasons by shutting out Fullerton 5-0. In other games Orange Coast and San Diego Mesa split a twinbill, Coast winning the opener 1-0 and falling in the nightcap, 4-0.

It's a two-team race in the South Coast as the Mounties try to cut into the front-runner's two-game lead in the standings. Santa Ana is three games off the pace at 3-3.

Lefthander Bobby Chaulk (5-0) and reliever Fernie Tarin combined to limit Santa Ana to just two hits and two runs, both coming off Chaulk in a shaky first inning.

But it was all Mounties after that, as Mazmanian's hitters ruined three Santa Ana pitchers with 14 hits. Veteran outfielder Pat Corcoran led the parade with a five-for-six effort, with two runs batted in and two runs scored. Shortstop Mike Parkinson followed that up with a two-for-four afternoon with three ribbies.

Designated hitter Don Cashen and third baseman Kevin Bell also had two hits and an RBI apiece for the Mounties.

Chaulk, the little lefty from Ganesha High, served up a single and a triple to the first two batters he faced, and then a fielder's choice accounted for two runs in the first inning.

But that was his only lapse in five innings as he shut out the Dons without a hit until he left in the sixth after aggravating a back injury. Tarin, a 6-3, 195 pound righthander, came on to throw goose-eggs at the Dons the rest of the way. It was the freshman's first appearance of the season.

The Mounties scored all but one of their runs in the first four innings, putting the game away with a three-run second and a four-run fourth frame. They had single tallies in the first, third and ninth innings.

Corcoran opened the game with a triple, a shot to right-center, and he came home two outs later on a double by Cashen.

Parkinson picked up two of his three RBIs in the second with a single that plated Bell and first-baseman Bob Mosco who had doubled.

The Mounties collected five hits in the four-run fourth, the key play being a two-base error by the Santa Ana leftfielder.

A rarity: Leos drop both ends

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

LA VERNE — It was nearly two years ago on April 1, 1972 (no fooling) that La Verne lost a doubleheader to powerful Arizona State in beautiful downtown Tempe.

Since that time Ben Hines' Leos have played 20 twinbills, winning 13 and splitting seven others. They had not lost two games in one day since that Arizona trip.

That is, until Saturday.

Chapman College handed La Verne a pair of defeats, and in front of the Leo home fans of all places, as the Panthers evened their record at 10-10 by scoring victories of 8-6 and 5-3.

La Verne's mark fell to a surprisingly unimpressive 5-4. And this was reported to be Hines best team ever. Does he still think so?

"Potentially we still are stronger than any other La Verne team I've coached," answered Hines. "But we sure aren't playing good ball. Our hitters are standing at the plate looking at strikes and our leadoff men are leading the team in strikeouts."

The heralded pitching staff didn't live up to its press clippings either Saturday as Robb Mayhew, 13-2 last season with national champion United States International University, saw his record dip to 0-3 in the nightcap while Dan Quisenberry was touched up for six runs in two inings of the opener.

Physical errors in the field cost the Leos also as the five runs in the second inning of the first game were all unearned while an error by third baseman Hank Merenda allowed Chapman to break a 2-2 tie with a pair of unearned tallies.

One of the players not having trouble at the plate is designated hitter Mike "Bubba" Alonso. He hit his third home run of the season in the eighth inning and added a single and a double in his four trips to the plate. Eric Frazier also collected two singles in the opener.

The second game saw the aces of each staff facing each other with Chapman's Dana McManus coming out on top. Mayhew got himself into trouble in the first as Julius Bowe slugged the first pitch to deep left for a double.

A single and a walk loaded the bases with no one out and then Mayhew issued two run-scoring walks before getting out of the inning.

La Verne bounced back to tie the score in the fourth on solo homers by Merenda and Nick Leyva but when Chapman regained the lead with two unearned runs in the fifth, the Leos missed golden opportunity in the bottom of the inning.

With runners on first and second with one out, Wayne Redfearn and Alonso failed to put the ball into play, both striking out — ending the inning and frustrating Hines immensely. La Verne's final run came on Leyva's second round tripper of the game.

The Leos will have to start playing sounder baseball Tuesday when they open defense of their Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title at home against Redlands. Otherwise, Hines' predicted "best ever" season might wind up as his shortest ever without a trip to the playoffs.

THE FLORIDA SHARKS of the WFL announced they have signed former NFL quarterback John Stofa.

Poly spikers whip Aztecs

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Cal Poly's new track coach, Fred Jones, brought a lot of class to the school.

The former California International Track Club skipper invited some world class competitors to "workout" at Broncoville Saturday while Cal Poly eased past San Diego State 94-67, in a nonleague dual meet.

Among those needing no introduction were sprint stars Leon Brown, Willie Deckard and Stan Whitley.

Brown edged former Cal Poly sprinter Ron Williams in a heat of the 100-yard dash, 9.8 to 9.9 Deckard was clocked in 22.0 in a heat of the 220 while Whitley, Williams, Poly's Elliot Thomas and Brown ran a 41.1 440 relay.

Cal Poly's winning margin, in its third victory of the season, came in the field events where the Broncos swept the hammer throw, discus and high jump in outscoring the Aztecs 53-18.

San Diego State, lacking its 100 yard dash world record holder Steve Williams and spring star James Redd, enjoyed a narrow 49-41 advantage in the running events.

Russ Reobold paced Poly's field events with a double win in the shot put and the discus. Both marks, 50-2 and 148-9, were among his best marks of the year. In fact, Reobold bettered his lifetime best in the discus by nearly eight feet.

Mike DeShayne threw a lifetime best 155-10 to win the hammer throw event and Tim O'Connor won the javelin with a toss of 192-8, with John Sedia placing third at 177 feet. DeShayne's mark would have been enough to win the conference last year.

Poly swept the high jump with Mark Kipley, and Joe Schiefer clearing 6-6 while Claude Chumley was third at 6-4. Emory Montgomery won the triple jump with an effort of 47-6¾.

Myron McGill was Poly's sprint star for the day. He won the 220 with a personal best 21.5, placed second in the 100 at 9.7 (Keith Denson won the heat with the same time) and anchored the winning 440 and mile relay teams.

Doug Dantzler enjoyed a fine day, running legs on the 440 and mile relay teams, placing third in the 100 at 9.9, and third in the 220 at 22.5.

Poly's Darryl Hamilton won the 440 intermediate hurdles in 55.6 and ran a leg of the mile relay team, which was timed in 3:18.4 — their best time of the year by 6½ seconds — and was second in the 120 highs in 15.0.

"I knew we'd win when San Diego's three key athletes were left at home," said Jones. The Broncos are relying on the strength of their field events for another month.

"We'll be in better shape in the running events after April 1," continued Jones "we'll have six or seven junior college transfers by then including a long jumper and a hurdler, but we're still in need of another good sprinter."

Top teams in Foothill Relays

San Dimas, Claremont impressive

AZUSA — San Dimas and Claremont raced to a one-two finish in the Foothill Invitational High School Relays held at Citrus College Saturday.

San Dimas won the 14-school competition with a total of 29 points, while Claremont took second place team honors with 25 points. Glendora High was third with 19.

The biggest event for the Saints was the 440 relay, where the San Dimas' team of Bob Childress, Mike Bailous, Rich Burke, and Tim Shepard raced to a first place with a 45.0 clocking.

The Saints also captured first in the mile relay, as Dan Hitchens ran a blazing 49.0 anchor lap and San Dimas came home the winner in 3:28.1. Bailous, Shepard, and Jim Ratcliff were the other three members of the team.

Claremont did well in the field events, the Wolfpack capturing the high jump and pole vault competition and finishing second in the shotput. The Saints captured the long jump event.

John Powers vaulted 13 feet, 9 inches to pace the Pack in the pole vault, while Perez Shoemaker jumped 20 feet, 11 inches in the long jump.

Shepard took home three gold and one silver medal for the Saints to spearhead their team victory. San Dimas took second in the schuttle hurdles, third in the distance medley, and third in the pole vault competition to round out the big day for locals.

Youth tourney at Palm Lake

POMONA — Palm Lake Golf Course was once again the site of the monthly golf competition Saturday, with several youngsters bringing home first prizes.

In the 7-10 year-old girls' division, Kim Mack copped first place with a 46 score over nine holes. Ray Linares won the 7-10 boys' division with a 38, while Brian Hill was runnerup with a 43.

Winners in the older age groups were determined by a partner best-ball basis. Dave Hillman and John Busch teamed for a 76 and first place in the 11-12 year-old grouping, while Jeff Beldsoe and Mike McDonald fired a 63 to win the 13-14 year-old prize.

Al Wetters and Al Haver had a 58 for first place in the 15-17 age bracket.

Next competition in the monthy tourney will be held April 20 at Palm Lake.

Pincay suspended again

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Leading rider Laffit Pincay Jr., was handed his fourth suspension of the meeting Saturday by the Santa Anita Board of Stewards for careless riding Friday.

Pincay drew his five-day suspension for careless riding and causing interference in the first race Friday with Ruby Satan which was disqualified and placed second.

Despite having been grounded for 15 days prior to the latest suspension, Pincay was the leading rider at Santa Anita at the start of Saturday's program with 77 winners. The latest suspension starts Tuesday and runs through Saturday.

Green, Wiechers lead way

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Hubert Green and Jim Wiechers, both shooting remarkable golf, charged into a tie for the lead at 11-under par 205 in the third round of the $150,000 Greater Jacksonville Open golf tournament Saturday.

Green shot a four-under par 68 and Wiechers had a remarkable six-under par 66 over the par 72, 7,088-yard Deerwood Country Club course.

Two strokes back at 207 was Texan John Mahaffey. At 209 were Homero Blancas, Labron Harris and New Zealand's Bob Charles.

Green had five birdies and two bogeys en route to his third round total.

Wiechers carded an eagle on the par-5 16th hole and four birdies.

Bunched at six-under par 210 were Dewitt Weaver, Larry Nelson and Tom Weiskopf.

Arnold Palmer ran into putting problems on his round and shot a five-over par 77 which put him in a bunch at par 216 with nine others.

Lee Trevino carded a 69 for a three-round total of 214.

University of Florida golfer Gary Koch, the only amateur in the tournament, had a 73 Saturday for a three-round total of 218.

Green, a graduate of Florida State University in Tallahassee, said he was tired after his third round finish, but felt he had enough stamina to win the $30,000 first prize money today.

"It's exciting to be out there with all those people following you around from hole to hole, but it tires you out mentally and physically when you play the way you have to play to win," said the 27-year-old Green.

Green won the Bob Hope Desert Classic earlier this year and his next best finish was a third in the Phoenix Open. He won over $100,000 on the tour last year and he has already earned $52,628 this year.

As they have throughout the tournament, high winds played hob with drives and long shots.

"You can hit what you think is the best shot of your life and find that you're 30 or 40 feet from the hole," said Green.

Wiechers called his 66 "the best round I've played tee-to-green this year. I cannot hit the ball better than I hit it today. All my shots landed at or very near the pin."

Weaver said he was "tickled to death to be where I am. What else could be better except leading the tournament?"

Weaver, who has relatives in the Jacksonville area, said a lot of his kinfolk were in his gallery.

"And I could see them closing their eyes every time I hit a putt," he said.

Wiechers' 66 was the best round so far in the 54-hole tournament which ends today.

Tee to cup

James Garner must have known something others didn't in the fifth annual Cal 500 Golf Invitational at Ontario National Golf Club last Friday.

The movie and TV star ignored the rain and told the assembled and apprehensive golfers, "I'm going out there and play golf. Are you fellows going out there with me?" It was something right out of one of his movie scripts. (Darby's Rangers?). The golfers cheered and followed Garner.

Garner shot an impressive 75, 4-over, and eventually won the charity event for the second time after a coin flip with his brother Jack and the amazing 69-year-old Charlie Lane.

Jack Garner, who lost two coin flips, won an eight-day Hawaiian vacation for two at the Waikiki Surf via Continental Airlines for coming closest to the pin (5½ feet) on the 185-yard 16th. Penny Thomas was next with 11 ft. 2½ in.

Actually, Craig Stadler, U.S. Amateur champ from USC, was closest with three-feet but had signed a waiver before the tournament along with Walker Cupper Mark Pfeil, that he would not accept any prizes—to maintain his amateur status.

Dennis James won a set of Parnelli Jones Firestone tires for coming closest to the pin (5-feet, 4 inches on the 150-yard 13th but nobody won the Datsun for a hole in one on the unlucky seventh (175 yards).

Percy Rodrigues won net with 67. Dennis James was second with 71, trailed by Buddy Lester and Earl Averill, 71; Ed Nelson and Westmoreland, 72, Bob Morgan, 73; Jerry Maren, 74, and Jerome Thore, 75.

TOM McHUGH has been named head professional and general manager of Corona National Golf Club. McHugh will continue as director of tournament sales and promotion.

McHugh succeeds Dixon Robb, who resigned to become the northern California salesman for the new Jerry Barber golf clubs.

Corona National will be the fourth club in the 10-course family of National Golf Courses with which McHugh has been associated. He previously served as head pro at San Geronimo National in Marin County, Pomona National and Ontario National.

Prep All-Star cage game format changed

FULLERTON — The Fifth Annual Southern California CIF-Los Angeles City All-Star basketball game will be played Wednesday, July 10, 1974 at Titan Gymnasium on the campus of California State University-Fullerton. Tipoff for the All-Star classic will be 8 p.m.

The format for the all-star affair has been changed according to game co-chairmen Tom Danley of Katella (Anaheim) High School, and Bill Murray, head coach at Walnut High School.

"In the past," said Danley, "two games were played; one featuring the 4-A CIF all-stars vs. the LA City all-stars, and another called the North-South game which included players from 3-A, 2-A and 1-A CIF schools. This year the game will truly be an all-star match with all four divisions of the CIF playing the best players from the Los Anteles area."

The game will be sponsored by the California Coaches Association.

In announcing the date and site of the game, Danley and Murray also announced the appointment of Dick Schrieber (Beverly Hills High School) as ticket chairman, and John Culwell (Cal State-Fullerton SID) as publicity and program chairman.

Long's more physical now

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Barry Long has finally disposed of the monicker "Gentle Ben."

The 25-year-old Los Angeles Kings defenseman decided he'd rather fight than sit.

In his five previous professional hockey league seasons, the 6-foot-2, 204-pound Long was known more for his ability to maneuver the puck than for separating opposing forwards from it.

"I haven't gotten overly aggressive," he said, "but I've gotten to the point where I'm playing the body more than the puck. I'm taking men out from in front of the net harder. I'm being more physical than in the past."

After sitting out the first 16 games this season, Long came to the realization that, "Either I start doing that (hitting) or I was gong to sit up in the stands."

Last season was Long's first in the National Hockey League after four in the minors and he scored two goals and 13 assists while drawing 48 penalty minutes in 70 games for the sixth place Kings.

He decided his then 220 pounds were too bulky for the NHL and with the help of his wife and a Weight Watchers diet, he shed the excess to trim down to his present 204.

But despite his efforts, Long was relegated to "civvies" in the early going, probably because of his pacifist playing habits.

"I worked hard in the summer and lost weight," said the native of Bradford, Ont. "I went to camp with great hopes of playing. I was very disappointed when I didn't but I stayed in shape."

He bided his time and his chance came

"We'd lost a few games in a row," Long recalled, "and I started playing in Detroit one night. Then we had the big trade Dec. 1, sending defenseman Gilles Marotte and winger Real Lemieux to the New York Rangers for Mike Murphy, Tommy Williams and Sheldon Kannegiesser."

When selling home:
Should you handle sale?

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the time comes to sell a house, most families turn automatically to a real estate broker but it's a good bet most of them wonder if they couldn't handle the deal themselves and save money.

It's a moot question.

The experts generally advise that the sale of property is a job for professionals. Still, thousands of families do sell their homes themselves and at least some of them come out ahead financially.

As with most things, it's a matter of time and know-how.

Louis Gilmore, a real estate professional, author of a new book, "For Sale by Owner," (Simon and Schuster, $3.95), says, "The entire system of home transfer in this country is one of the most costly exchange mechanisms to be found anywhere. The combination of brokerage fees and other transfer expenses take a huge toll from the seller. By far the largest and most obvious of these fees is the brokerage commission (which in some cities is now running as high as 7 per cent of the selling price)."

Do-It-Yourself method

The sale of a house, Gilmore says, involves several distinct and separate parts, almost all undertaken by the real estate broker. "Some of these services," he says, "can be purchased from other professionals and the balance can be performed competently by the average home owner." In separate chapters, he spells out his do-it-yourself method of sale:

—A professional residential appraiser (the kind used by banks and savings and loan associations) establishes the "fair market value" of the home.

—The owner prepares his house for showing by repairing, painting and cleaning where necessary. He enhances its condition and makes selling easier and faster.

—The owner prepares a "listing sheet," a newspaper advertisement and buys a "For Sale by Owner" sign.

—The owner distributes his listing sheet, places the newspaper advertisement and positions the sign.

—The owner shows his house to prospective buyers.

—The owner, working with a bank or savings and loan officer, helps the buyer with financing.

—A lawyer experienced in home sales draws up a sales contract, obtains and interprets evidence of title, and closes the transaction.

Costs vary, according to location, price of house, length of time it takes to sell. Typically, however, Gilmore says, costs for a $35,000 suburban house that sells in a reasonable length of time would run about $425 —$75 for appraisal, $50 for advertising material, $150 newspaper advertising, $150 lawyer's fee — this compared with, perhaps, $2,100 or more for sale through a broker.

Gilmore emphasizes the selling job is not always an easy one, but says a homeowner who is willing to do his homework not only can sell successfully but actually has some special factors operating in his favor: motivation, intimate knowledge and identification with the house and the neighborhood.

Some disadvantages

On the other hand, another professional, Hugh C. Ross, president of J.I. Kislak Mortgage Corp., a national mortgage banking company, says when it comes to selling a house, the "do-it-yourself philosophy can very easily work to the homeowner's disadvantage."

Ross says except in special circumstances selling a house privately "involves far more time and effort than most people realize and the actual selling price may wind up substantially below the firm price the homeowner had hoped to get on his own."

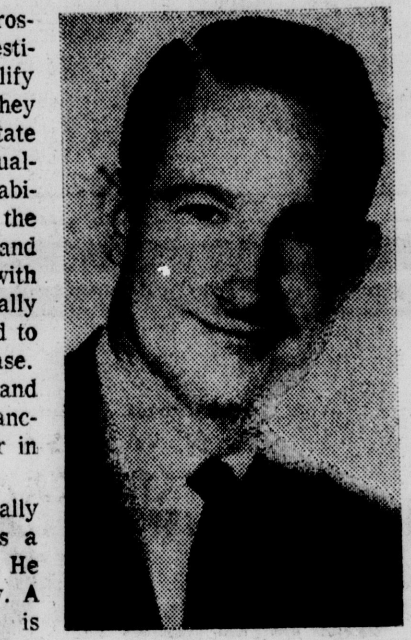
For one thing, he notes, "most buyers believe, whether true or false, that owners inflate the price of a home. A prospective purchaser will try to force the price down even though the owner has had all the effort and selling expense."

Also, Ross says, many prospective home buyers overestimate their ability to qualify financially for the house they have in mind. A real estate broker is trained to pre-qualify a prospect's financial abilities, thereby avoiding the time-consuming expense and frustration of contacts with homeseekers who eventually discover they cannot afford to go through with the purchase.

A broker's experience and contacts in arranging financing can be a major factor in a sale.

A broker is not emotionally involved with a house, as a homeowner is likely to be. He can look at it impartially. A prospective purchaser is much more likely to discuss any reservations about a house with a broker than with the homeowner. Once any hidden objections are brought to light, often they can be resolved and a sale made.

A broker always is available to show a property, whether or not the owner is at home. Equally important, Ross said, a real estate agent sees to it that only legitimate prospects will be admitted to see the house, not the bargain hunters, speculators, window shoppers and just plain curious who may be attracted by a for-sale sign.



AL TOMSIK, president of Tomsik Sales Institute, will be speaker at the Pomona Valley Board of Realtor's monthly luncheon Tuesday at Orlando's Restaurant. He is also chairman of the Professional Marketing Association and nationally known as a sales management consultant.

Hawkins Co. offers new realty class

EL MONTE — Don Kalal and Associates, which has trained thousands of real estate license applicants, has been appointed to direct the Herbert Hawkins Realtors license preparations classes which begin Thursday.

The eight session course, which can be started at any time, will be held on Thursdays at 7 p.m. at the company's training center, 11031 E. Valley Blvd., El Monte.

The cost is $75 which includes all lectures, practice examinations and materials. There is, however, a pre-opening special price of $50 for all registrations received by Thursday, said officials.

Successful graduates will be invited to join the Hawkins firm at any of its 32 sales offices on a full or part-time basis. Those who associate with the firm will be refunded their full tuition upon completion of their first sale.

In addition to sales openings, many management opportunities will be available to meet the 1974 corporate plans for increasing the number of sales offices.

At C-L Ranch:
5 plans offered buyers

ALTA LOMA — Buyers of homes at the C-L Ranch development here will have a choice of five floor plans.

These three, four and five bedroom houses are built for families who enjoy the outdoors. Some homes have half-acre lots designed and zoned for horses.

The housing project, located near Beryl Avenue and Hillside Road, will have its opening today. Two furnished model homes will be open for inspection. These were built by the Crowell-Leventhal, Inc.

During the early stage of development, the buyer may select from any of the five floor plans or any of the large scenic lots, said Roy Leventhal, vice president.

"An early buyer may also choose from many styles of exteriors and have control over the interior color coordination of their new home," he added. "This is an opportunity not often available to the buyer.

"We also have a wide selection of special carpets, drapes and the latest appliances available at low builder's prices, thus enabling the homeowner to furnish his new home in the manner they desire with a minimum of expense."

This is a time for the "wise buyer" to buy his home, said Leventhal. "The dollar is worth more now than it will be in the future. We can expect the price of construction to increase. The price of building materials is sky-rocketing.

"But more importantly, the decrease in housing construction forecasted in reaction to the energy crisis will make the demand for available new homes even greater, thus boosting the price tag."

The home models being offered include:

—The Northview, a two story, four bedroom home with three bathrooms and two fireplaces. It also has a wet bar, formal dining room, three car garage, walk-in closet, master bedroom suite and vaulted ceilings.

—The Silver Spur, a four bedroom home with two bathrooms, family room, master suite, open-beamed living room with fireplace and three car garage.

In all homes, both tile and shake roofs are available.

To reach the homes, persons can take the San Bernardino Freeway to Euclid Avenue in Upland, go north to 19th Street, east to Beryl then north to Hillside.

Real estate groups plan programs on apartment houses

CLAREMONT — An educational seminar on apartment houses will be held March 28 at Griswold's Inn.

The program is sponsored by the California Real Estate Association (CREA) and its 26th District Education Committee, said J. Stan Heckmer, district education chairman.

Program topics will be "Marketing Investment Property — Apartment Houses" and "Tax Free Exchange — Apartment Houses."

The all-day session is open to the public. Members of realty boards and the CREA may earn a unit of credit toward the Graduation, Realtors Institute (GRI) certificate and designation.

The registration fee is $15, which includes course materials, examination, coffee and luncheon. For more information, persons may contact the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors, 665 N. Garey Ave., Pomona. The telephone number is 623-1607.

"This is an opportunity for real estate practitioners to broaden their knowledge and understanding of their profession," said Heckmer.

"The course features advanced materials designed to help Realtors and salesmen who already have a good working knowledge of the real estate business but who want to learn more, especially new techniques for helping their clients."

The faculty and materials are furnished by the CREA, with the local board making other conference arrangements, he explained.

The courses include:

Marketing, apartment houses — Presentation of standardized forms for brokers to use for entering complete information about an investment property. This includes income, expenses, yield and value.

Tax free exchange — This is a case study of an apartment owner who holds a seven unit apartment house for 10 years and exchanges it for 37 units for which he adds some cash.

Four forms are completed: property analysis of seven units; property analysis of 37 units; exchange basis adjustment; and exchange contract.

Bids accepted for abatement

SAN BERNARDINO — The San Bernardino County department of agriculture is accepting bids on an annual contract for the weed and fire hazard abatement program in a portion of the West End of the county.

The area includes Chino, Alta Loma and Cucamonga fire districts.

Bids will be accepted until 10 a.m. April 12 when they will be opened and read publicly.

For more information and bid forms, persons may contact the agriculture department at 566 Lugo Ave., San Bernardino, or phone (714) 383-1848.

New electric plant planned

MAMMOTH — The Southern California Edison Co. and Magma Energy, Inc., have announced plans for the research and development of a geothermal energy electric generating station near Mammoth in Mono County.

The firms awarded a contract to the Ben Holt Co. of Pasadena to design the generating station.

The new plant will incorporate a new concept of power generation which employs the Magmamax power process as developed by the Mamga Energy Inc. It will be on fee lands owned by Magma.

The supply of energy will be produced from wells previously developed, said officials. The plant may be completed late this year or early 1975.

Century 21 adds brokers

SANTA ANA — The Century 21 Real Estate Corp., a national franchise firm based in Santa Ana, has increased its number of broker members in the past six months from 300 to over 550.

Each broker is an independent businessman who takes advantage of the Century 21 name nationally to promote referral programs between offices.

Some advantages of joining the national firm are mass advertising, recruiting services and schools, sales training programs and purchasing power, said officials.

In the San Gabriel Valley and Inland Empire region, 65 real estate offices are now associated with Century 21. These have all opened since Sept. 10, 1972, reported Philip Yeager, regional director.

Program set on selling a home

ANAHEIM—The building Industry Assn.'s sales and marketing council will hold a meeting Wednesday on the theme "What It Takes to Be a Big Winner in Early 1974."

The program, starting at 7 p.m., will be held at the Grand Hotel in Anaheim. Officials of three Southern California firms which have recorded impressive sales will be the speakers.

They are Thomas Gonzalez, vice president of Deane Development Co., developer of University Park in Irvine; Michael Brief, sales and marketing director of Standard Pacific, selling units at The Terrace in Irvine; and Paul Chamberlain, advertising director of Barclay-Hollander-Curci, which is offering the Villa Marina East townhouses.

Prototype wall planned:

Freeway fence may help to silence freeway noise

FONTANA — Good fences make good neighbors, especially when they reduce freeway traffic noise from adjacent homes.

In construction of freeways, engineers are challenged to employ the most economical method of curbing noise pollution when the highway runs through business or residential areas.

Until now, huge mounds of earth or masonry walls were erected to muffle vehicle sounds. Steel was never considered as a material for construction of highway sound barriers until this year when the State Department of Transportation office in San Bernardino agreed to build a prototype wall.

"We are interested in looking at whatever kinds of material will solve some of our environmental problems at the last expense, consistent with satisfactory results," said William R. Williams, state deputy director of environmental and community affairs.

Larry Daniels, Kaiser Steel Co.'s manager of engineering sales, began working on the project two years ago. "Legislative demands are ever increasing to isolate property adjacent to the freeway from sound pollution," said Daniels.

"I had been working with the concept of embedding one end of attractively colored steel sheets into the ground to form a sound reflecting wall. The big advantage to using steel as opposed to masonry in this instance is cost. Savings in using steel walls is about $10,000 per each thousand feet," Daniels said, "and considering how many sound barriers are built each year, we're talking about quite a bit of money."

Department of Transportation air and noise quality studies engineer Dick Barrett received permission from the San Bernardino office to begin the experimental construction of a steel sound barrier in an area just off the San Bernardino Freeway.

"We had received complaints about noise from Sixth Street residents in Ontario when we completed widening the freeway," Barrett said, "so we decided to take that opportunity to build our steel wall. The matrial was donated by Kaiser Steel, and construction and design were furnished by our department."

Following completion of the 300-foot-long barrier, noise readings were taken by Department of Transportation sound experts, who reported the reduction of noise to the neighborhood at acceptable levels.

"Initial tests look promising," Daniels continued, "and the state plans to construct a much larger model in the Sacramento area."

Buyers have choice of floor plans

SAN DIMAS — Buyers of Cinnamon Creek townhomes here have a choice of four different floor plans.

These homes are offered with two and three bedrooms, with single and two story designs, said Phil A. Moore, marketing director of Kaufman and Broad, Inc., builders.

"We found that when homebuyers purchase a townhome they desire most of the things that are found in the single family dwelling such as a garage, private patios and formal and informal entertainment areas.

"They are also keenly aware of privacy within the home itself. They want entertainment sections of the home to be separated from the sleeping and study rooms," he added.

"The homes at Cinnamon Creek were designed to meet all of these requirements."

Each home has a private entrance to a wood-fenced patio in the front and an enclosed garage in the rear. The garage has direct access to the home for safety and convenience. It also has a special storage and washer-dryer service area.

All plans have living rooms and dining areas that overlook the enclosed patio, providing an extension of living and entertainment space and a comfortable outdoor dining area.

The one-story home has a vaulted ceiling and is located at the end of each cluster with only one common wall. It has two bedrooms that are located away from the living and entertainment areas.

The two-story design has two or three bedrooms. The master bedroom suite has its own private balcony providing a retreat for reading or TV viewing. The living room on this plan features a dramatic split-level open stairway.

Homes are priced from $25,490 with five per cent down payment conventional financing available.

Features included in the purchase price are refrigerated air conditioning, wall-to-wall shag carpeting, built-in kitchens that include brush chrome range, oven and dishwasher and butcher block type formica countertops.

The decorated model homes and the sales office are located at 720 S. Valley Center in San Dimas. They are reached via the Foothill Freeway to Covina Boulevard exit, then west on Covina Boulevard to Valley Center.

A dead issue still current

ARNHEM, The Netherlands (UPI) — Druggist Henk Middlebeek said that for years he has been paying the City Council 35 guilders ($13) for the right to use St. John's cemetery as a back door to his shop.

He said that at sometime there was a cemetery there but since he can remember his back door has opened onto a public alley.

He said repeated requests for an explanation on paying the tax have never been answered, but the hand-written tax demands carrying a 40-cent stamp continue to arrive.

Ceremony was barely started

PALO ALTO, Calif. (UPI) — "And now, ladies and gentleman ..." the master of ceremonies at the Cubberly High School Senior Frolics began.

But before he could finish his introduction, six naked girls and six naked boys streaked across the stage and out to waiting cars in the parking lot.

It's serious: jeans shortage

By ERMA BOMBECK

I read something the other day that almost made my heart stop beating.

Rep. Morris K. Udall from Arizona predicted in his newslatter to his constituents to get ready for shortages in wool, cotton and synthetic fibers that will cause clothing prices to soar. Then he added, "There is even talk of rationing blue jeans."

If blue jeans become any tighter, any more faded, any more worn, or any less available, teen-agers are going to have to go through life sitting under a table.

Believe me, this nation cannot stand another "jeans" cutback. In Russia, they are paying $50 a pair for faded, worn jeans from the United States (which is a 100 per cent markup over what they paid for our wheat).

I didn't realize how serious the situation was until my daughter dragged me into a fashionable department store last week.

"Do you have any old secondhand jeans?" she asked.

"Didn't you see the sign?" she asked. "NO JEANS TODAY. OPEN FOR SERVICE ONLY."

"I wouldn't ask only I'm pretty desperate," said my daughter. She took off her coat and turned around to reveal her underwear coming through the seat.

"We have a few jeans for regular customers only," said the clerk stiffly, "but I'll show them to you. Now here's a pair that went through eight owners, two communes, and a rock festival. You'll notice the seat is seasoned and is so smooth it's about ready to break through. There's a patch over one knee, the hems are raveling and they've been bleached over 800 times."

"I love them," squealed my daughter. "How much?"

"$30."

"Thirty dollars!" I gasped.

"Minus your trade-in," she amended.

"What trade-in? You mean that pair of grubby pants that are disintegrating before our very eyes?"

"You'd be surprised what they will bring after they've been bleached a few more times and patched. With the shortage, we take what we can."

I had to ask, "Where did these jeans come from?"

"Well, as you know teen-agers put on a pair when they are 12 and don't take them off again until they are 19, so you see . . ."

"Where did they come from?" I persisted.

"A girl who just turned 20 and went to a convent. Do you want me to put them in a box?" she asked.

"No, they can walk," I said miserably.

'MOB' endeavors to speed court cases and lower waiting time

NEW YORK (UPI) — For many Americans crime is the No. 1 issue of the times. And too often crime does pay simply because of an antiquated and overburdened criminal justice system.

New Yorkers reported 475,752 incidents of crime in 1973 and the system responded with over 200,000 arrests and 22,000 indictments—but only 1,800 trials.

"Because we have thousands of cases every year," Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold said, "a guilty man can slip though the cracks in the system or an innocent man can wind up in jail for months awaiting trial. This has to change."

To help save the system from itself, federal, state and local governments across the country have invested millions of dollars to develop better ways of handling crushing caseloads.

In New York City, one of the most successful experiments is the Major Offense Bureau concept, known as MOB.

MOB's goal: to select and dispose of serious "street crimes" committed by repeater criminals who might otherwise slip through the system.

"The robber, the rapist, the extortionist—they have to go," Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola said.

The method is deceptively simple: allow a single experienced prosecutor to handle the case from arrest to disposition, supply him with adequate support staff and make a courtroom available when he's ready for trial.

Normally, at least five—and as many as 10—different prosecutors "move" a case from hearings, to grand jury indictment, to arraignment, and to trial. This process on average takes anywhere from a year to 20 months.

Meanwhile, witnesses may move out of town, records can be misplaced, or the crime victim gets fed up with wasting day after day on fruitless court hearings.

But MOB cases are different from the start.

As arrest papers are processed, a MOB clerk first fills out a special evaluation form which awards points based on the seriousness of the crime.

"The evaluation form gives us a quick and more 'objective' way of determining whether a crime deserves MOB attention," said Peter Andreoli, Supreme Court Bureau Chief in the Manhattan District Attorney's office.

Every MOB office except Brooklyn (which uses its own system) has changed the evaluation form, developed by Andreoli and his staff, to suit its own needs. For example, while all offices add five points if a suspect has a criminal record, the Bronx adds five more points for every misdemeanor conviction; 10 for every felony conviction. In all offices any arrest which scores over 35 points automatically goes to the MOB prosecutor on duty that day.

"From that point," Andreoli said, "the case is his till the end."

Because MOBs have their own separate court parts, a defendant who wants a trial knows he won't have to spend months in jail waiting for a courtroom. The average MOB disposition takes about eight weeks.

Prosecutors, however, are not surprised that most MOB convictions also result from pleas.

"Eighty per cent of the people who come through here are recidivists (repeaters)," Bronx District Attorney Marola explained. "Many know that if they're patient and stall for time, eventually they might get off lightly." But with MOB, Merola added, "the certainty of justice is there—and that's more of a deterrent to crime than a severe sentence."

The Bronx MOB, started six months ago, expects to "pick up" about 300 cases its first year. Compared to the 3,400 indictments handed down in Bronx County last year, the number isn't particularly impressive but, rather than "quantity" MOB concentrates on the "quality" of prosecution — the thoroughness and speed with which each case is handled.

Because MOB prosecutors have lighter caseloads—between 15 and 20 cases at any one time—each case doesn't become just another statistic.

MOBs now operate in four of New York's five boroughs. If the experiment succeeds even with the city's huge caseload, the criminal justice system in every large city around the country may be affected.

"What MOB has proven," Merola said, "is that if you provide enough money for courts, judges, prosecutors, legal aid, and backup personnel, the system can work pretty well."

Coyote owner should see a lawyer soon

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: My coyote, Split, has bitten the newsboy twice but not badly. I have told him to leave Split alone, that he is not friendly, but he keeps trying to pet him. There has been no legal problem over this so far and I don't want any. As long as I have warned him, it is not my fault any more, is it — J. W.

Dear J. W.: An attorney is the one to turn to for legal advice and I'd certainly recommend your turning to one soon. Generally speaking, the law holds that any wild animal—and this certainly would include coyotes—is potentially dangerous.

Hence the owners of such an animal must keep it confined so that others will not be injured by it. The courts are very strict about this and espcially so where children may be involved. Interestingly enough, an actual physical assault by a wild animal is not required in some cases to produce liability for the owner. On occasion, a person may merely be severely frightened by an unexpected encounter with some pet wild beast and the owner could thereby become liable.

In general, states take the view that wild animals are the possession of the state. Keeping any wild animals (including most of the feline family, coyotes, poisonous reptiles, and all the endangered species) is often subjected to state and-or federal control and licensing.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I, personally, have had a very stubborn infection under a fingernail. It's called Moniliasis. It's a fungus. It's finally getting better. Now my cat, Purpet, has a sore, crusty toenail which is bothering him. Could I use some of my medicine on him if it is the same thing— K. O.

Dear K. O.: Candida albicans can cause lesions in the skin or mucous membranes of humans and, occasionally, pets. Though most often occurring in birds, this fungus infection may also occur in dogs or cats. However, Purpet's toenial could be suffering from a number of conditions and his doctor would be the one to see concerning this. It's possible (but not probable) he would prescribe the same medication you are using. In any event, NEVER attempt to use human medication on an animal without the veterinarina's approval.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Which is better for our parakeets — to spread the grit on the floor of the cage or to have perch papers treated with grit on them.—H.H.

Dear H.H.: Neither method of offering grit has any advantage over providing a mineral-salt grit mixture in a cup.

Bank bandit a fashion plate

NEWPORT BEACH (UPI) — An armed robber wearing a gold leather vest and blue pants stole $600 from a bank recently and fled out the rear door, the FBI said.

United California Bank teller Sheryl Seager gave the robber the money when he pointed a handgun at her and handed her a note demanding the loot, authorities said.

Horse race stamp due on Derby Day

By GUSTAV DETJEN JR.

The U.S. Postal Service announced the design of a 1974 10 cent commemorative stamp saluting the sport of horse racing.

This colorful stamp, printed in yellow, magenta, black, red, dark blue and light blue will be issued on May 4 at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., in connection with the 100th running of the Kentucky Derby. The design shows a group of horses rounding a turn in a race and the words "Horse Racing" in blue at the upper left. The value and U.S. Postage are shown in red.

Organized horse racing in the United States dated back to 1665, when the first royal governor of New York laid out a track on Long Island in the vicinity of Belmont Park, Aqueduct and Jamaica.

First day cancellation requests should be sent to "Horse Racing Stamp, Postmastsr, Louisville, Ky. 40201" with proper payment before May 4.

Collecting horses on stamps is another interesting facet of topical stamp collecting. More than forty countries have issued such stamps. A checklist available from American Topical Association, 3306 No. 50th St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53216.

On March 9 France released a semi-postal stamp in the value of 50 centimes plus 10 centimes to mark the Day of the Postage Stamp.

To draw attention to the establishment of Iceland 1,100 years ago, Iceland released a set of four stamps, to be followed by seven more. The values and designs are: 10 kr.—The Settlement—Norseman Ingolfur and the High Seat Pillars; 13 Kr.—The Establishment of Althing and a Republic of Iceland; 30 kr.—Conversion to Christianity and Establishment of the See of Skalholt; 70 kr.—The Age of Writing. The priest Seemundur Sigfussen the Wise is considered the first Icelandic writer. Further information on this issue and future one from the Philatelic Sales department, Icelandic Post, P.O. Box 1445, Reykjavik, Iceland.

Virgin Islands will issue a set of four stamps for the coming INTERPEX Exhibition in New York City. The stamps feature ships' crests. The 5 cent value shows Canopus, a coastal minesweeper's crest, the 18 cent stamp the crest of the U.S.S. Saginaw, a tank landing ship, the 25 cent value the crest of the H.M.S. Rothesay, and antisubmarine frigate, and the 50 cent one the crest of the H.M.C.S. Ottawa, an anti-submarine frigate type of the St. Laurent class. Further facts from the U.S. and Canadian Marketing Division, P.O. Box 7367, Toledo, Ohio 43615.

Collectors of the beautiful stamps of Liechtenstein may want to write for advance information on new issues to the "Leichtensteiners," P.O. Box 690-D, Bettendorf, Iowa 52722.

In connection with the 25th anniversary of the end of the Air Bridge Berline 1948-49 Berlin will release on April 17 a 90-Pfennig stamp, multi-colored with part ox the Monument created by Professor Eduard Ludwig. At that time three nations, in 200,000 flights supplied 1,700,000 tons of merchandise.

Donald D. Lawton, Box 55-D, Fernadle, Cal. 95536 is the editor of Universal Cover News which regularly furnishes detailed advance information on first day covers and special events covers. Indispensable for the cover collector.

If you do not yet subscribe to a philatelic newspaper, write for a sample copy of Linn's Stamp News, Box 29-D, Sidney, Ohio 45365. This is the philatelic publication with the largest circulation.

WESPNEX, Westchester Stamp & Coin Show, is scheduled for March 29-31 at the Westchester County Center, Bronx River Parkway and Central Ave., White Plains, N.Y.

Stamp Collectors Guide to Europe is a new book being distributed by the American Topical Association, 3308 No. 50th St., Milwaukee, Wis. 53216. This 224 page clothbound book is a handbook for the traveling philatelist with information on the postal systems of 34 European nations, with information what to see, where to go and how to find points of philatelic interest and where to buy. More than 100 photographs. Prepublication price $6.00.

MSAC buys $1,000 worth of art works

WALNUT — Mt. San Antonio College has purchased $1,000 worth of art works at the fourth biennial exhibition which opened last week at the college art gallery.

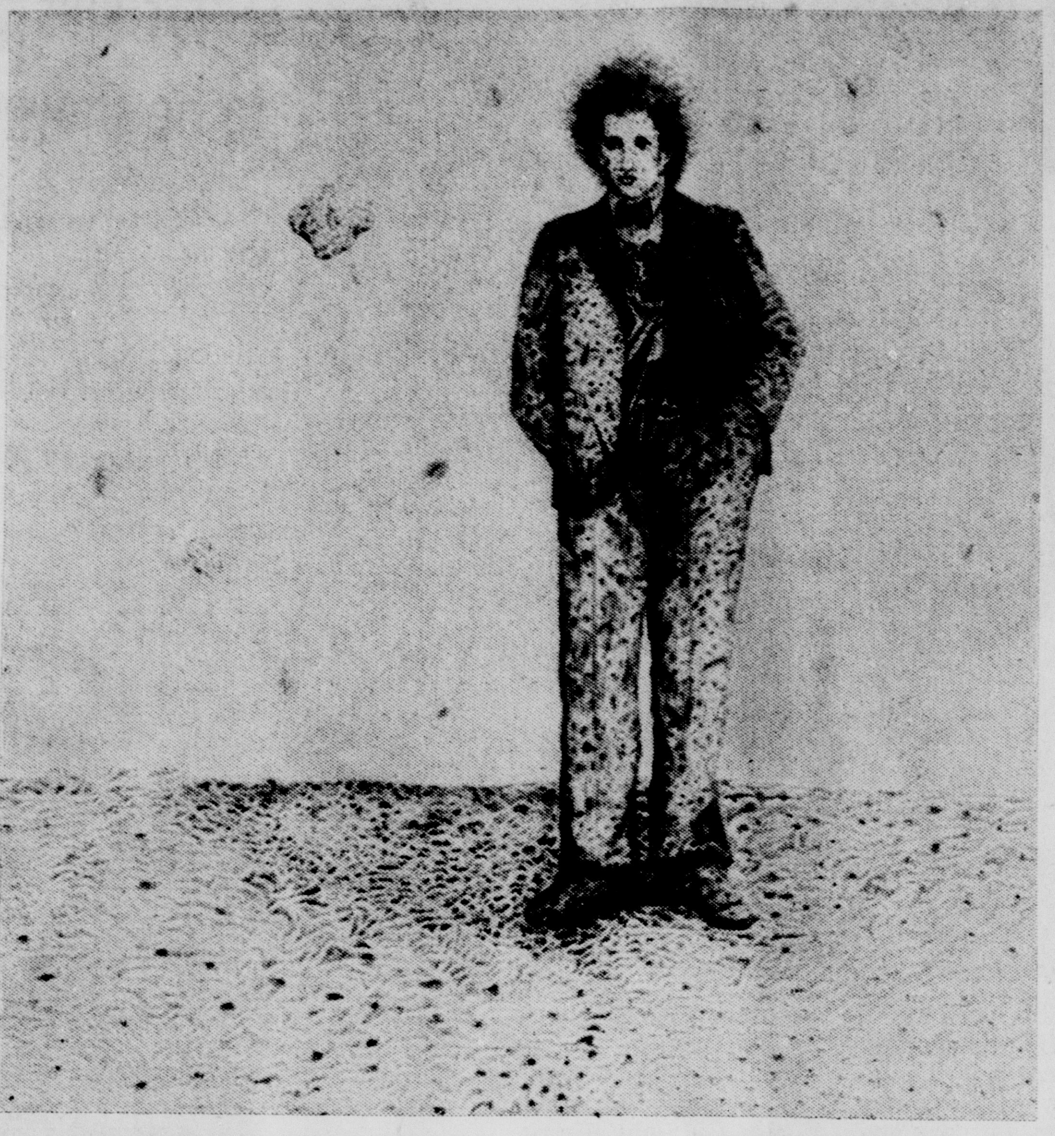
Purchases were made by the college of six entries selected by juror Barbara Haskell, curator of paintings and sculpture for the Pasadena Museum of Contemporary Art.

Biennial purchase awards are "Alone Again," a pencil drawing by Sandra Jackman; "Solitaire," in graphite by George Miller; "Untitled," graphite and charcoal by Bill Porteous; "Series D," pencil by Mary Sue Anderson Ader; "Drawing," pencil by Kyoko Foley, and "Opalescent Opulence," graphite by Joyce Gibbs.

A total of 63 paintings and drawings, representing a myriad of current styles and expressions, will be on display during March.

Beginning April 16, the MSAC Gallery will present "Words and Images," an exhibition of works which make extensive use of words in the art pieces.

Artists represented in the exhibtion will include such internationally known names as John Baldessari and Marcel Duchamp, and such new talent as Douglas Edge and Lyn Horton. During the opening reception April 16 at 8 p.m. visitors to the gallery will have an opportunity to talk with several of the artists whose works are being displayed.



PURCHASE AWARD WINNER — "Alone Again," a pencil drawing by Sandra Jackman, was one of six art works awarded purchase prizes at the fourth biennial exhibition at Mt. San Antonio College. The exhibition is on view through March. Gallery hours are 11 a.m.-4 p.m. daily.

Embarrassing

BATLEY, England (UPI) — Barbara Ward, 22, won the Yorkshire pipe-smoking championship recently, outpuffing 30 men. She kept her pipe going 65 minutes.

French mutton tonnage lags

French mutton production is lagging and France imported 52,000 tons during 1973 to meet demand, officials said.

Odds on 2 royal flushes in same hand: 753,334,487-1

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Dr. Allan N. Wilson, a computer programming specialist and author on gambling odds, disputes a report that the odds are unknown on two persons drawing royal flushes in the same poker game.

Two players drew royal flushes from the same seven-card stud hand in Las Vegas Tuesday, and gamblers there said the odds of only one royal flush came to one in 649,766. The figure for two royal flushes at once, they said, was unknown.

Dr. Wilson, holder of a ph.d. in physics, said the chance was one in 753,334,487 hands.

Dr. Wilson also said that if 5,000 to 10,000 games of 7-card stud per day were subject to news coverage, "one might expect to hear of this event once in 10 years."

Spain execution draws censure

STRASBOURG, France (UPI) — In a stormy night session debate the European Parliament early Friday adopted a resolution condemning the execution in Spain March 2 of anarchist Salvador Puig Antich.

"The repeated violations by the Spanish regime of the fundamental rights of man and of citizens...prevent the entry of Spain into the European community," the resolution said in part.

Communist and Conservative representatives abstained from voting on the resolution.

New book tells joys of gardening

Each season of the year has its own special charm. Autumn turns maple trees to fiery shades of yellow and scarlet; winter robes the vines and shurbs with pristine snow.

Spring brings its particular joy—crocuses and dandelions, soft breezes and the promise of summer. To those who cultivate their yards with shovel and hoe and even those who are not fortunate enough to have their own small patch of earth, the year can be a never-ending opportunity for the pleasures of the garden.

In a new book, A Gardener's Year (Arco Publishing Co., 219 Park Avenue South, New York) author Katherine Twomey says that one need not have perpetual summer and a large plot of land to know the joy of growing things. A terrarium within the confines of a room, ordering packets of marigold and zinnia seeds in preparation for planting, or dreaming over the endless possibilities of the seed catalogs and lists of new and exotic plants are all very satisfactory ways to garden vicariously.

Mrs. Swomey has spent a good part of her time in just this sort of activity. She recounts these pleasures as well as her first struggles with an inhospitable plot of land surrounding her rented house, the sheer delight of returning from a family trip to be welcomed by blooming bachelor's buttons, zinnias and poppies in the same once-hopelessly barren yard, and her numerous other garden adventures.

A Gardener's Year is full of delightful and even humorous accounts that strike a familiar chord in many of us. Although it can easily serve as an authoritative source of information on gardening (Mrs. Twomey has a number of articles on horticulture to her credit), there are no ironclad dos and don'ts on what species to cultivate in varying climates and no lists of cumbersome Latin names to memorize before the next stop at the nursery. There are only personal experiences, anticipation, trial-and-error methods, frustrations and the considerable rewards to be shared.

With spring not too far away, this lovely book should earn its way into the homes of all garden lovers.

Virtues of lettuce

Lettuce, the most popular of all salad plants, is a native of the Middle East. It provides bulk in the diet, and large quantities of vitamins A and B and is low in calories.

Deadly drug being pushed

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (UPI) — A drug used by veterinarians to put animals to death that is so powerful less than a drop of it could kill a person is being sold on the streets by local pushers, police said Wednesday.

A 19-year-old girl has already died from the drug and a 17-year-old girl is in critical condition because of it.

"It comes in two forms and can be taken orally," regional crime lab director Richard H. Fox said. "It is also a clear liquid and if someone injected it, less than one drop would be enough to kill them—and quickly.

"They probably would be dead before they got the needle out of their arm."

The drug is called sodium pentobarbital and is blamed for the death Tuesday of Marilyn Shortell, 19. Police Capt. Donald Jackson said an analysis showed Miss Shortell's body contained "a huge dose" of pentobarbital as did the body of her companion, Mary Ann Treemont, 17, hospitalized in critical condition.

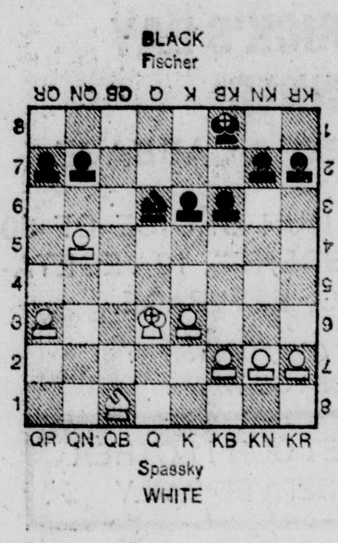
Reykjavik blunder by Fischer recalled

What made "Reykjavik summer, 1972" so extraordinary was that after his mind-boggling antics before the match, Bobby Fischer finally sat down to play and immediately threw the world into a dither in the first game by making an apparent beginner's blunder on his 29th move. "Fischer blunders" was the universal estimate, when in the position in diagram one, he played



29 . . . BxKRP?!

Apparently Bobby had expected that after 30. P-N3, P-KR4; 31. K-K2, P-R5; 32. K-B3, P-R6; 33. K-N4, B-N8; 34. KxP, to play 34 . . . BxP (reaching our second diagrammed position). Here Fischer thought the bishop would make its escape after 35 . . . B-K8. However, Bobby saw in time that Spassky would prevent his bishop's exit with 35. B-Q2, and subsequently gather up the trapped bishop with his king. He elected therefore to diverge from his original plan on the 32nd move, when he played (instead of P-R6) 32 . . . K-K2; 33. K-N2, PxP; 34. PxP, BxP; 35. KxB, K-Q3; 36. P-QR4, K-Q4; 37. B-R 3, K-K5; 38. B-B5 P-QR3; 39. P-N6, P-B4; 40. K-R4 and our third position was reached.

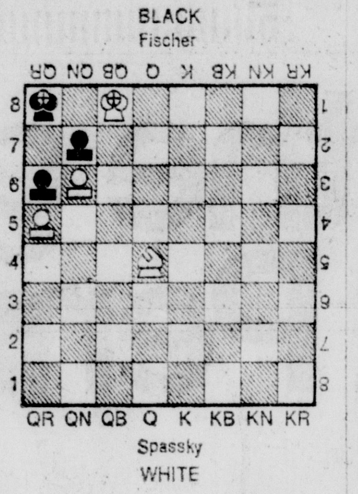
Here Fischer made his second blunder. His 40th move, . . . P-B5 offered minimal resistance to Spassky, who thereupon won easily. When Bobby later said that he, Fischer, a Pisces, had played like a fish, it was thought he had his 40th as well as his 29th move in mind.

But curiously there were at least two ways that Fischer might have drawn despite the original blunder 29 . . . BxRP. We can see the one discovered first chronologically if we look again at diagram three. The evening after the game, chess masters around New York City were wondering if it hadn't been possible to play, instead of 40. . . . P-B5, the alternative 40. . . . K-Q4. After the plausible 41. B-B8, the idea was to play 41. . . . P-K4, followed by 42. . . . P-B5, thus liquidating the lone white kingside pawn. The next step would be to run to the queenside with the black king and either: 1. win or trade the remaining white pawns, or 2. after inducing white to play P-R5, hide with the king in the corner with no worse than a stalemate as shown in diagram four.



The last method of drawing was an elegant idea which seems to work in many variations, and has not to my knowledge yet been authoritatively refuted.

Some months later another drawing possibility was suggested by several Russian grandmasters in the book "Fischer-Spassky, from the Soviet Point of View" (Alfred Kalnajs, Chicago, 1973).

The Russian idea was after 29. . . . BxKRP; 30. P-N3, P-KR4; 31. K-K2, P-R5; 32. K-B3, Fischer could have played (instead of K-K2) 32. . . . P-KN4, and after 33. K-N2, P-N5!; 34. KxB, P-R6, our fifth position would be reached where according to the Russians, "it cannot be seen how white can win."

Apparently even Fischer's "blunders" ought not to lose for him.

For Sunday March 17

ARIES (March 21 April 19) Loosen up a little today. You tend to take yourself and others too seriously. Look for the lighter side.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Yield a bit if discussing with friends issues and philosophies not in accord with yours. They have points to make as well.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can't expect others to be free and lavish if you aren't equally generous with them. Give, in order to get.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Though it appears the other party is selfishly seeking to have his way, he feels the same about you. Try to compromise today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're likely to delegate a task today because you've neglected to do what you should have.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're out among friends today, relax. Let yourself go. Minimize conversation that deals with weighty subjects. You'll bore them stiff.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your house will lack its usual warmth today. Those who enter will sense this unless you make an extra effort to put them at ease.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a good day to take care of neglected correspondence. Write or phone those to whom you owe letters or calls.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's no time like the present to begin to be wise by living within your means. Give the old budget another once-over.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll not want to be idle or feel penned in today. It's best you have some outside activity planned for yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You require mental discipline today or you'll see only shadows where you should see light. Be more positive.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A friend has a serious matter to discuss with you. Up until now you've been unable to get together, but you can today.

Your Birthday
March 17

Reliable friends will play an important role in your affairs this year. Situations important to you will be advanced with their aid.

For Monday, March 18

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll make a faulty decision based upon a resentment harbored against another. It will be to your disadvantage as much as his.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's a problem brewing with a friend over a material matter. Spell out clearly any financial transactions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In a situation where you have a joint interest, someone you're dealing with favors your partners. Be alert.

CANCER (June 21 July 22) Make no major decisions now unless you're certain you have all the facts. Something important is being held back.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It doesn't appear as if you're getting full value for work or service you're having done at present. Compare prices elsewhere.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will find yourself in the middle of an unusual social situation that could cause you unexpected problems.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep a watchful eye on home and possessions today. Be sure other members of your family do the same.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A gathering you're looking forward to may not turn out as pleasurable as you anticipate. Check first to see who else is coming.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Curb your outside spending temporarily. Concentrate your means on family and home. They can put it to better use.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19) There will be some confusions where work or career is concerned. Be sure your goals are in line with co-workers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Funds you have earmarked for something worthwhile may be foolishly wasted for something else at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Avoid if you can large groups of people who hang together clannishly. Crowds spell trouble.

Your Birthday
March 18

Solid achievements can be made this year if you set a course and stick to it. Don't be taken in by flash-in-the-pan offers that look good on the surface.

Young challenger of the Atlantic

WICKFORD, R. I. (UPI) — Bob Gainer's career goal is to become a naval architect, one who designs and builds ships.

But 1974 brings a more immediate challenge. Gainer this summer intends to become, at age 20, the youngest person to seriously challenge the Atlantic in a solo ocean crossing.

Gainer, of East Greenwich, R.I., plans to make the trip in a 22 ½-foot fiberglass Sea Sprite called Hitchhiker, to be launched from Wickford Cove on April 6.

"My original idea dates back into early youth," he said. "I've got notes and plans on the trip that date from at least 10 years ago."

Hitchhiker's hull and deck work are finished and Gainer is bolting down hardware and building the mast himself. He saved for three years to finance the project, getting discounts and other help from interested manufacturers.

Cast-off June 19

Gainer's timetable calls for casting off June 19. He expects to reach Falmouth, England 35-45 days later.

"I'm pretty much going to take the same route (the late) Robert Manry used for Tinkerbelle eight years ago," he said. The route, for the most part, will keep Gainer about 200 miles south of the New York-London shipping lane.

"I expect to have the same kind of weather Manry did, with 20-foot waves and 60-knot winds at least once during the trip, but my boat won't be thrown around the way his was," Gainer said. "It's at least four times heavier."

Gainer said his family in Hillsdale, N.J. wasn't overly enthusiastic when he announced the quest three years ago. "But they finally gave up and realized I was going to do it. So I have their blessing in a way. My dad has helped in outfitting the boat with parts and my mom keeps coming up with ideas."

The young adventurer is no stranger to Atlantic sailing. He made a solo trip to Yarmouth, Nova Scotia three years ago in a Sea Sprite daysailer, a boat the same size but lacking a cabin. He describes it as a "two month leisure trip."

Gainer said he's not worried about the mechanics or possible physical peril on the voyage.

"My only worry is that I'll be asleep when I arrive in England and miss seeing the land as it comes over the horizon," he said. "It would be disappointing after 40 days to wake up and all of a sudden the coast is there.

"It's supposed to be a highlight of the trip to first see birds, then clouds, then grey mist and then England. I think it would be disappointing to miss."

If all goes well, he plans to stay with relatives of American friends after his arrival, leaving the following spring on a voyage home via the Azores and Bermuda. Gainer said he would like to get a temporary job during his stay in England.

Doing what?

"Teaching sailing."

Dow chairman has a vision

Giant corporations could bring about better world

MIDLAND, Mich. (UPI) — Dow Cemical Chairman Carl A. Gerstacker has a vision.

He sees the day when Dow will own an island in international waters from which the company can operate "beholden to no nation or society."

This would allow the company to operate in many different nations without being thought of as an American company, he said. And it would prevent the United States government from attempting to force subsidiaries of the multinational corporation to conform to American interests.

Gerstacker, whose company produces chemicals, drugs and plastics in 28 nations, told UPI he thought Dow and other multinationals are moving closer and closer to his vision.

The result, he says, would be a world with greater distribution of wealth, more international understanding and fewer wars.

"I don't think I'm going to get that anational island for headquarters. The details are going to be very difficult," said the 57-year-old Gerstacker. "But if I'm right in my philosophy, then it's going to go more and more in that direction."

He defends the "international charter" concept from critics who contend it amounts to a power grab by multinational corporations.

"It isn't to evade taxes, and it isn't to evade your social and political responsibility in any place in which you operate," he said.

Many observers disagree with Gerstacker's contention that the multinationals are solving more problems than they create. They say the corporations have become so large that no one nation can control them and that because of their international character they have no allegiance to any given country.

The American-based multinational oil corporations, for example, are being accused of creating an aritificial energy crisis by restricting the import of oil into the United States— creating higher prices and record profits for the companies.

Congress has been considering legislation to limit overseas investment because of fears that such investment takes American jobs with it.

Gerstacker disputed claims that multinationals have exported the jobs of American workers and given them to workers at their foreign plants.

"We insist this is true and I firmly believe it's true that Dow's going multinational and building foreign plants has made U.S. jobs, has been great for the U.S. people and also has done good in Brazil and other places," he said.

Gerstacker, who has emerged as a leading spokesman for the huge companies, said multinationals do a much better job than government in managing technology, resources and people.

"There is no question in my mind but that groups organized for profit can and do do it better than governments — which are political animals," said Gerstacker.

"I do think that spreading technology, spreading jobs, helping the starving and poor and less affluent is to our selfish interest. The more we can do that the more we will get people understanding each other around the world, the less need there will be for wars, because all wars are economic," he said.

Although Gerstacker acknowledges there is a possibility multinationals will not live up to his expectations, he said "if we want to improve the world we've got to try to do something differently than the way we've always done it."

"I think the multinational is the best vehicle to improve the lot of all the people. I think generally people are smart and they'll see this."

Gerstacker said multinationals are creating more international understanding by mixing peoples from all nations and ethnic groups. He calls Dow "truly one international family" in which Brazilians, Koreans, Chinese and Hungarians interact successfully.

"I think that a world like that would lose a lot of the inability to communicate because when people talk different languages or feel they have a separate little group that's when they misunderstand each other," he said.

"We don't misunderstand each other in Dow Chemical because we're all mixed up in one common pot with one common purpose."

He recalls the time when Dow was an exclusively Midland company with no other operations. When it built its first out-state plant in Texas in 1940, Michigan employes began getting exposure to Texans who came to Midland.

"They were treated like foreigners," he said. "They talked differently."

But now, Gerstacker said, Midland and its 36,000 people are "very cosmopolitan" because of the foreigners brought in to work there and the Americans sent abroad who have returned.

Despite Gerstacker's optimism about the future of multinationals, some critics are fearful. Michigan State University economic professor Walter Adams, an articulate analyst of American industry, called the oil multinationals "Frankenstein's monster, partly of our own creation and seemingly beyond our control" in testimony before a senate subcommittee in February.

"I don't know why the world should worry about (multinationals) so much," laments Gerstacker. "It is conceivable they could do harm. But it's also conceivable that they could do a great deal of good.

"I don't think anybody would say that up to now the world has been perfect or that the system we've used has done the greatest good for everybody in the world. Why do we worry about trying something different?

"If it's happening, why not let it happen until it proves that it's doing wrong at least? If we want to improve the world, we've got to try to do something differently than the way we've always done it."

Market shows just modest increases

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street gave a muted greeting this week to news the end of the oil embargo is imminent. Prices gained modestly in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Ironically, the gains occurred almost entirely before investors learned a meeting of Arab oil ministers held Wednesday in Tripoli apparently had decided to end the five-month-old oil embargo against the United States. The two sessions that followed the Tripoli meeting were colorless, resulting in slight declines.

For the week, the Dow Jones industrial average gained 9.78 to 887.83. Since Feb. 11, when the Dow set its 1974 low of 803.90, the index has spurted some 84 points largely on hopes the oil embargo's end was at hand.

But as the hoped-for end approached this week, the embargo issue seemed to have lost its punch as a market factor. As Harold M. Edelstein, investments vice president of Financial Programs, Inc. had predicted, "When the Arab oil embargo is lifted, it will be anticlimactic as far as the stock market goes.. The current rally has been discounting the end of the embargo already."

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 1.50. The NYSE index added 0.80 to 53.18.

There were 1,077 advances, 667 declines, among the 1,962 issues traded.

Turnover amounted to 86,812,260 shares, against the previous week's 84,121,130 shares, and 71,056,912 the year before.

The market's muted enthusiasm this week also stemmed from the conditional basis on which the embargo apparently will be ended—if indeed Arab oil ministers agree to end it at the meeting set for Sunday in Vienna. According to Arab sources, the embargo will be lifted on a two-month trial basis, to be continued if the United States succeeds in disengaging Israeli and Syrian troops in the Golan Heights.

Wall Street also received conflicting statements on the embargo's end — both from White House sources, and from the Arabs themselves.

Government in crisis

From Britain to Denmark

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The sound of Europe these days is the crack and crumble of government mandates and majorities.

No major West European nation has a one-party majority government. The best-known example is Britain, where an election held in economic crisis left the Labor party standing shakily atop a minority cabinet. But few other nations are better off.

Parliamentary democracy in Western Europe is struck with crisis, commented Norwegian Premier Trygve Bratteli, himself the leader of a minority government.

Perhaps Bratteli exaggerates.

No barricades have appeared in the capitals of Europe. One-party rule in any country seems a distant improbability. Election turnouts are still generally some 70 or 80 per cent—higher than in America— with voters content to use ballots, not bullets, to send messages to their leaders.

But it is true that West European democracy, reborn after World War II and reared in postwar prosperity, has entered a troubled maturity in the 1970s.

Increasingly, voters complain that the system fails to deliver the goods. No pundit will predict how it will survive the expected hard times coming.

Local conditions vary from nation to nation. But high taxes and mounting inflation, exacerbated by the energy crisis, combine in most nations to produce disillusionment. For instance:

—All nine Common Market nations, big and small, are led either by coalitions or by one-party minority governments. — Several governments—especially the British, Danish and Dutch—are so splintered or weak that they are given little chance to survive more than a year at best.

—West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, despite his popularity abroad, faces widespread voter disaffection at home. His Social Democratic party lost a major provincial election in Hamburg early this month.

—Scandinavian voters, groaning under 50 per cent taxes, have been turning away from old-line parties, especially the Socialists, who have dominated Nordic politics for years. In Denmark, a new, loosely-knit party led by an admitted tax evader placed second in recent elections.

—Italy, which has had 35 governments since 1943, has none at all now. Wags say that Italian politics "resembles comic opera with the entire chorus trying to sing the tenor lead."

— In France, President Georges Pompidou's health problems are debated publicly while his aides jockey for the succession. Pompidou recently fired Premier Pierre Messmer in the morning and re-installed him in the afternoon.

All this has had inevitable impact on the European Common Market and its relations with the rest of the world.

Several important decisions, especially on energy, have been postponed this year because Britain, Belgium and Italy were simultaneously without a government and, therefore, without a mandate for action.

Commentators generally blame much of the voter disaffections on economic problems — particularly inflation, which is expected to hit an average 12 per cent this year— and the government's inability to do anything about it. But each country has its particular problems.

The sagging popularity of Brandt's party has been attributed to disenchantment with his "Ostpolitik"—the attempt to come to terms with the Soviet bloc—and to fears that an ultra leftwing group is taking over the party.

Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt has complained that "the Social Democratic party has left an unclear impression during the last 12 months."

The government is under intense criticism, mainly for inflation.

The newspaper Le Monde called the Messmer-for-Messmer government switch a "joke" and a public opinion poll indicated 36 per cent less confidence in the new Messmer cabinet than in the old one.

Former British Prime Minister Edward Heath's attempt to control inflation foundered before union demands and loopholds in price control laws.

Eventually Heath called an election on the anti-union platform of "who governs Britain," and was turned out of office by the voters, who refused a majority to either major party but left the parliamentary balance of power with the small Liberal Party and a band of Celtic nationalists.

Italians, plagued by inflation, government inefficiency and a voting system that splits parliament into contentious blocs, joke that their country works better without a government than with one.

There is some truth in that— because tradition forbids strikes during a "crisis," when one government has resigned and the next has not yet been formed.

High unemployment, prices and taxes have brought Sweden's Socialists to the brink of defeat after 42 years in power. Parliament's 350 seats are exactly split, 175-175, between the Social Democrat-Communist coalition and the non-Socialist bloc. Premier Olaf Palme could fall at any time.

In Denmark, the Socialists lost last December's election. The Liberal Democratic party, which leads the new coalition, got only 22.3 per cent of the vote in that election, while 15.9 per cent went to the Progressive Party, led by Mogens Glistrup, a lawyer who boasts that he pays no taxes and wants to replace Danish defenses with a telephone recording that would tell the caller in Russian, "We surrender."

For all the troubles however, Europeans voters show no sign of giving up on democracy.

Britain, with all its divisions and problems, still managed to vote without violence or damage to any political institution.

When it was over, Philip Allott of Trinity College, Cambridge, spoke for many Britons when he said, "Let us praise once more our remarkable political system."

LEICESTER, England (UPI) — Police have reported a holdup man took 6 pounds ($14) from a gas station and ordered the attendant to serve the next customer. When he did, the robber took that money too before driving away.

Phil splits; she's pregnant

By JEAN ADAMS

SIX MONTHS: (Q.) Phil is 28. I am 16. I ran away and lived with him six months. Then we had a fight. He brought me home and left. I haven't seen him in a month.

I am also pregnant. I haven't told either Phil or my parents. If I told them they would hate me. I need your help desperately.—Alone in Alabama

(A.) You need your parent's help desperately. Tell them the whole story now. Do not wait for Phil to come back. You can't count on him. But you can count on your parents. They will help you, and they won't hate you.

TENSION: (Q.) My dad gets mad at me. He says it is because I yell. The other night he tuned the TV up loud. My mom hollered at him. He said he did it because I was yelling. They had a fight and he walked out.

My mom started punching me around like I was a basketball. Is this because of old age? My mom is 42, my dad is 51. I am 12 and the youngest of five children. I can't stand it much longer.—Mistreated Daughter in Maryland.

(A.) Your parents are not old. But it is evident that there is considerable tension in your home. That can hurt people much worse than old age. With so many children to care for, your parents need a better system for handling family differences.

Suggest to them the idea of regular family meetings, in which each member has a chance to say what is on his mind, and the whole family can talk over problems. Talking is easier and more effective when everyone isn't all tensed up because of a fight.

No dream, really won $100,000

SOUTH SALT LAKE, Utah (UPI) — Ralph Davis found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

The 28-year-old machine operator was awekened recently by a telephone call informing him he had won $100,000 in the Massachusetts state lottery.

Davis works the graveyard shift at a paper company and was asleep when the incredible news came.

"I thought I was still dreaming," said Davis. He made a return call to Boston and found he wasn't dreaming —he was rich.

Bay State officials said Davis will collect $10,000 a year for the next 10 years for winning second prize in the lottery.

Mothers of Twins

Set spring party

During a 20-year period since its origin in 1954, Pomona Valley Chapter of the Mothers of Twins Club has played an active philanthropic role in the community. The members have also supported twin boys in Bogota, Colombia for 12 years through the Foster Parents Plan.

The nationwide organization was formed to bring mothers with twin children together socially to discuss twin problems and to exchange twin equipment. As the chapter memberships grew, individual clubs became involved in community endeavors in addition to social activities.

"Premier of Fashions" is the theme for the club's 18th annual spring fashion show and luncheon to be held Saturday at Orlando's. A social hour at 11:30 a.m. will precede the 12:30 p.m. luncheon. Proceeds from the event will be used to further the club's philanthropic activities.

Guests at the luncheon and show will view spring and summer fashions from the Dutch Doors, Glendora, and Magic Cradle-Teeka's Teens, Pomona, according to Mrs. Norburt Becker, show chairman. Assisting with arrangements are Mmes. Alan Coleman, awards; Eddie Lakkees and Howard Wright, tickets; Ted Gilbert, luncheon; Robert Liles and Richard Hart, public relations; David Williams, women's fashions; and Lloyd Gastineau, children's fashions. Mrs. Matthew Quay will be commentator.

Models will include Mmes. Allyn, Earl Bass, Larry Gridley, Lakkees, Williams and Wright.

Twins modeling will be: Michael and David Allyn, Thomas and David Ashcraft, Aaron and Gerrit Becker, Ian and Lana Bergman, Denise and Diane Bradford, Darin and Daryl Coleman, Eric Gastineau, Carrie and Cristie Hart, Lynette and Lyndeen Howard, Robert and Adeeb Lakkees, Leesa and Janice Liles, Ramona and Renee Oronoz, Michael and Jeffrey Peacock, Leslie Stanley, Mindy and Michelle Wright, Anne Marie and Antoinette Newsom and Laila and Laura Gridley.

MODEL SHOW FASHIONS

Posing in ensembles they will wear for the fashion show to be given by Mothers of Twins Saturday, Janice Liles, Cristie Hart, Carrie Hart and Leesa Liles, from left, tour the Padua Hills Theater grounds. Luncheon and style show will be held at Orlando's.

VIEWING THE WORLD

Mrs. Norburt Becker, fashion show chairman, and her twin sons, Aaron and Gerrit, try to find Colombia on world globe as she tells them about twin boys the club sponsors there.

Woman executive gives pointers on climbing corporate ladder

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Climbing the corporate ladder differs little from climbing any other ladder.

One woman who's reached the top rungs says that "first of all, you need a ladder and that means you need a job. A ladder must be firmly based so that it doesn't slip or tilt and throw you off in mid-air.

"You must be in good physical condition, able to climb steadily without losing your breath. And most important, you can't be afraid of the height once you approach the top."

Mercedes Bates offers this advice at a time when the numbers of women seeking careers are steadily growing. Women's liberation, without doubt, is partially responsible, for it's made women feel freer to go out into the professional world.

And another reason: Business and industry are learning how effective womanpower can be.

Ms. Bates is a vice-president at General Mills, Inc., supervising 80 employes in the company's many-faceted consumer center. Next runge The presidency.

At any rate, she advises on ways to move up in a speech reprinted in the current "Journal of Home Economics," publication of the American Home Economics Association (AHEA), of which she is a former president.

She traces her own rise through the basis of a home economics degree, but what she finds is just as applicable to any careerist in any field.

Ms. Bates' working years span the Depression, when she worked in a telephone company cafeteria, through her own food consultant firm and editor on a major women's magazine. Along the way, she studied typing and shorthand.

She says the variety of jobs "contributed to my education. I'm convinced that everyone who wants to move up the corporate ladder should experience a variety of positions that will broaden and add to professional skills."

Health is a very important factor. she says. "If you want to get ahead, you have to work hard and that means you have to be on the job and in optimum health."

Love the job. "I think you must find your work stimulating, exciting and pleasurable or you can't succeed in it."

"There's really only one way up the corporate ladder," she continues, "and that's through becoming a manager . . . In today's world, the manager must be firmly grounded in a skill and must move beyond that skill to the broader role of management.

"For starters, develop and perfect the ability to communicate—both in writing and in speaking . . . Effective public speaking in most jobs today is almost a necessity whether you are communicating on a one-to-one basis or whether you have occasion to address committees, staff meetings or management groups.

"I would like also to emphasize reading. Read widely and regularly in the context of the business world. Learn to read an annual report . . . Through such reports you can learn to see your own job in relation to the structure and thrust of your corporation and in the broader context of your industry." And read the general and specialized business publications.

Another point, she says, is "visibility. Be seen and be heard. Become an active member of appropriate community and professional organizations . . . The experience will strengthen your abilities to communicate and to organize and manage."

In your career aims, Ms. Bates says, "choose a company with a good track record" where women employes are concerned.

"And finally," she writes, "you must prepare yourself for many years of hard work. I'm not sure that women have to work harder than men. The successful businessmen I know work very hard indeed . . ."

Assistance League

Charts spring show

Lea d'Crenza develops fashions with the rhythm of a symphony orchestra. The dapper man of Italian descent possesses a quick wit and bright personality.

A musical fashion review, "Spring Elegance," will be presented by Glo Davis productions for the Assistance League of Upland on April 1 at Griswold's Pavilion. Glo Davis will be the commentator, and the fashions will be d'Crenzas.

d'Crenza does one collection a year and says each of his designs can be adapted to any climate by merely varying fabric and color. His street wear is classic, and his formal wear is exciting. The designer uses only natural fabrics like wool, silk and cotton.

According to Glo Davis, top designs of furs by Giba-Nobilia of Los Angeles, special designs of Julie Miller that are available at Robinson's and Bullock's, and Harris and Frank Men's Fashions will also be featured.

One of the gowns to be shown at the fashion show will be worn for the coronation of the King of Sweden.

Mrs. John Taves, ways and means chairman, anticipated that approximately 500 women will attend the 11:30 a.m. luncheon and show.

Other chairmen assisting with arrangements are Mmes. Eugene DeYoung, Robert L. Fitzgibbons, C. Richard Day, John S. Frost, Barry Brandt, J. Lewis Leisch, Richard S. McElvany, Alan MacCarthy, John Mortensen, John Owen and Philip L. Savage Jr.

Mrs. Dean Smothers, president, has announced that proceeds from the event will support the League's main philanthropic projects, Cucamonga Girls' Club and the San Antonio Community Hospital Dental Center.

Safe design

Parents in search of a crib for a new baby would do well to carry a measuring device to be sure the bed is designed for safety, such as space of slates at a maximum of two and three-eighths inches.

Leaves wrinkles

Corduroy garments stand up better when they are washed only after slight soiling, home economists say, because the hand rubbing or long agitation required in heavy soiling leaves wrinkles.

His professional life includes association with famous personalities and such major bands as Freddie Martin, Russ Morgan, Guy Lombardo, Harry James and Dezi Arnaz.

Forestry seeking seedlings

The Cucamonga-Alta Loma Junior Women's Club urges residents to help replace trees in the San Bernardino Forest which are being destroyed by pollution and the resulting bug infestation.

Since the California Division of Forestry does not have funds to replace these trees, they are asking service clubs in the area to purchase redwood seedlings and donate them to the forestry. Redwoods are not affected by pollution or bugs. The trees will be replanted and cared for until they can withstand the weather without care.

One hundred trees cost $33 plus shipping. For information, contract Jerry Holland, fire prevention officer, 882-1227, or Livia Vallance, 987-2497.

The Forest Service is also selling Fire Prevention Teacher packets used to acquaint children with the dangers of fire on a year-long basis. Each packet costs $6.50 including tax and can be obtained through Mr. Holland.

Reticence of French mostly buck-passing

PARIS (UPI) — A recent radio investigation of French civil servants' notorious insistence on anonymity uncovered a school teacher who even withheld her name from her students.

"I would rather they just called me 'madame the fifth grade teacher'," the elementary school teacher told Pierre Bellemare, a disc jockey for Europe One radio station who conducted the survey.

Bellemare broadcast a series of debates, interviews, and numerous telephone calls he made to government offices posing as a helpless citizen faced with complicated government forms.

Almost all office workers and other government employes he spoke to refused to give their names and some said they were merely following "the law" — although no such law exists.

The notion of "discretion" — the pillar of French manners— discourages name exchanging or familiarity. But Bellemare believes that in the case of civil servants in France's faceless bureaucracies "discretion" is mainly a buck passing convenience.

"When a functionary refuses to give his name, all too often he is trying to shun responsibility," Bellemare said.

Not only did office workers refuse to give Bellemare their names, the majority of listeners calling the radio station defended anonymity as essential to preserving privacy. Bellemare said even most of the callers who backed his campaign to end anonymity refused to give their names.

"I can't understand this reticence," the disc jockey said. "In the United States and in Britain office workers give their names the first thing off when somebody phones. Some even give their names before saying 'hello'. This is the only way to have real human relations, normal relations.

I'M GOING TO HAVE TO RAISE THE MEMBERSHIP DUES OF THE FRIENDSHIP CLUB.
ISN'T THAT GOING TO BE A LITTLE ROUGH ON SOME OF THE KIDS?
UH-HUH ... BUT IT CAN'T BE HELPED.
THE WAY THINGS ARE NOW, I'M JUST ABOUT BREAKING EVEN.
IS IT SO IMPORTANT TO YOU TO MAKE A PROFIT?
WELL, SURE! WHY DO YOU THINK I STARTED THE CLUB IN THE FIRST PLACE?
TO PROMOTE THE SPIRIT OF FRIENDSHIP IN A SORELY TROUBLED WORLD?
WHY DO I SUDDENLY FEEL LIKE I'M ONLY TWO INCHES TALL?

DEAR POLLY — To encourage good grooming for our children we mounted a mirror in the bathroom at a height so they could see how they look, and are prompted to use wash cloth, hair brush and toothbrush without prodding from us. —MARGARET.

DEAR POLLY — A styrofoam ice chest makes a great container for storing washing soap and measuring cup. There is also less chance of the washing powder caking. —SUE ANN.

DEAR POLLY — When your only reason for lining a garment is that it might be "itchy" and uncomfortable, tie a strip of the fabric around your neck, wear it for a while and you'll be able to decide. —GAYNEL

DEAR POLLY — To conserve fuel and still have my potatoes cooked by the time I get home from church, I peel them, cut them up and cover with water. I pour this water off and fill the pot again. This keeps the potatoes from turning brownish. I put the lid on the pot and put them in the oven, along with my roast in a separate pot. When I return from church, my dinner is ready to serve. — DONNA

DEAR POLLY — Paper pants guards are usually on wire hangers from the cleaners. They do prevent creases. Such cardboards will stay on the hanger longer if you put a couple of staples just beneath the hanger wire so it cannot come off. The pants do not slide, either. —HANNAH.

DEAR POLLY — Grocery coupons save us money, but often special bargains are missed because the coupons are left at home. I clip a coupon as soon as I see it and place it in a bright-colored envelope in my purse. Any other bargains are added, and outdated coupons discarded. Another envelope holds soap, cereal and other coupons. I save quite a bit this way and every little bit adds up! —FLORENCE.

DEAR POLLY — When caught short of time for finding placemats, cut out as many as needed from large sheets of pellon. I scallop the edges and use felt-tipped pens and crayons to add designs. They can always be cut up and used for interfacing later. —JUDY

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

DURING THE SUMMER MONTHS MANY PARTS OF THE WORLD HAVE DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME. ALL CLOCKS ARE MOVED AHEAD ONE HOUR. DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME DOESN'T ADD ANY HOURS TO A DAY. INSTEAD, WE GET UP AN HOUR EARLIER. AS A RESULT, AN HOUR OF DAYLIGHT HAS BEEN "SAVED," GIVING US MORE HOURS OF DAYLIGHT AFTER WORK FOR DAYLIGHT ACTIVITIES. WE USUALLY DO NOT HAVE DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME DURING THE WINTER BECAUSE THE DAYS ARE SHORTER, AND NOT SO MUCH DAYLIGHT CAN BE "SAVED" IN WINTER AS IN SUMMER, BUT DURING THE ENERGY CRISIS WE ARE TO HAVE DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME THE YEAR AROUND.

SNOOPY OWES IT ALL TO CHARLIE BROWN

In Charles M. Schulz's voluminous influx of fan mail there is an occasional letter from a "Peanuts" devotee expressing concern that Snoopy, the crafty canine, is getting more attention in the comic-strip than good ole Charlie Brown.

"Nonsense," exclaims the artist-writer. "Without Charlie Brown, Snoopy couldn't even exist."

That Snoopy is a smart-aleck Schulz readily admits. That he is a super-human beagle genius Schulz denies.

"So Snoopy flies around in the skies on his doghouse," Schulz says. "Now we all know who got him the doghouse in the first place—Charlie Brown.

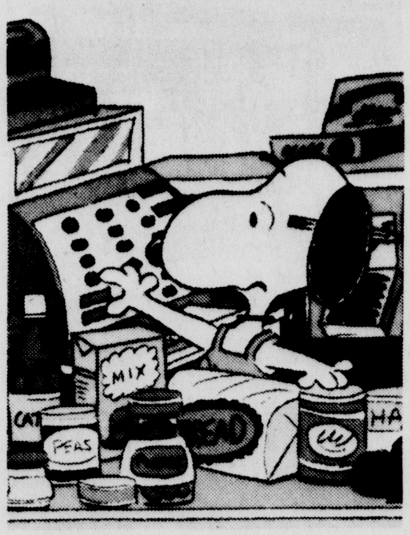
"And we know who feeds him—both his stomach and his ego. Right—it's Charlie Brown.

"And, most importantly, who forgives Snoopy his selfishness, his pranks, his occasional disloyalties and his silliness and remains his steadfast friend? Charlie, of course."

Without Charlie Brown's kindness, says Schulz, Snoopy would be, in "Peanuts" language, "doomed" for sure.

He makes a dogged attempt to be part of the action in "There's No Time for Love, Charlie Brown," on CBS Sunday at 7:30PM.

"Snoopy upstaging Charlie Brown?," asks Schulz with disbelief. "Good grief, no! Not while I'm the one holding the pencil!"



Snoopy, the Peanut beagle, makes a dogged attempt to be part of the action when members of Charles M. Schulz's little cartoon clan mistake a supermarket for a modern art museum, in "There's No Time for Love, Charlie Brown."

A Form Of Snooping

On the Tuesday night episode of Snoop Sisters (8:30PM, NBC) titled "Black Day for Bluebeard,"—in one of the humorist's increasingly frequent dramatic appearances—Mort Sahl portrays a producer of horror films which star Vincent Price.

"Of course Vincent Price," smiles Mort. "Who else were you expecting—Shirley Temple?"

Mort sees humor in the fact that he's appearing on a program called Snoop Sisters, because "in a way I've been snooping for many years in order to gain information I use in my comedy monologues. Of course, it's not really snooping, it's research . . . which, I suppose is a form of snooping."

There is probably no humorist in show business history who has armed himself more fully with facts and figures through research than Mort Sahl. His research is not only through voracious consumption of magazines and newspapers but through intimate conversations with the world's foremost political, social and judicial figures.

Some of Mort's intimates include Senators Fulbright, McCarthy, Humphrey, Supreme Court Justice Douglas—and well, the list could go on and on. Mort Sahl is the only professional comedian ever to officially be on the speech-writing staff of a United States President. Many of the late John F. Kennedy's speeches contained material furnished by Sahl.

Even President Richard M. Nixon—today a favorite target of Sahl's incisive, biting wit—once told a Time Magazine interviewer, "Mort Sahl is the Will Rogers of today" . . . "Well," says Sahl of that compliment, "Our President had it a little twisted. Rogers portrayed a yokel who criticized the intellectuals who run the federal government, while I portray an intellectual who criticizes the yokels who run the federal government."

Sahl is bi-partisan . . . his razor-sharp thrusts are aimed at the right, at the left and at the center. The human comedy—and tragedy—all provide him with fodder with which to convulse audiences on college campuses, in night clubs, and TV. "The fact is," Sahl says, "I get some of my biggest laughs merely by reading verbatim quotes from leading political figures right out of the newspaper. Some of those guys are hilariously funny without meaning to be."

Watergate has, of course, provided Sahl with an almost endless stream of convulsing comments. In fact, he has recorded an album, "Sing A Song Of Watergate—Apocryphal Of Lie," which is a current big seller. His targets are the Republicans and the Democrats whose actions Sahl feels should be exposed via laughter.

"My album is selling," he says, "as fast as people moving out of their White House jobs."

'A SPECIAL SALUTE'

"The American Film Institute Salute to James Cagney," highlighted by presentation of the Institute's Life Achievement Award to the veteran film star, airs as a 90-minute entertainment-event special Monday at 9:30 PM on CBS, with Frank Sinatra as host. Luminaries of the motion-picture world will participate in the event, recalling not only personal anecdotes of their experiences with Mr. Cagney but also incidents of his profound effect upon their professional careers and upon the industry as a whole. The special will feature entertainment numbers and film highlights of Mr. Cagney's 60 motion-picture performances. The Life Achievement Award, set up by the AFI board of directors, honors its recipient not for a single work but "for the whole body of his contribution to American film."

Mr. Cagney, an Oscar winner for his now classic portrayal of George M. Cohan in "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and one of the most popular stars the movies have ever produced, retired in 1961 after 30 years in films. His show-business career actually began in the 1920s when, leaving college for lack of funds, he tried out for the chorus of a musical comedy called "Pitter Patter" and got the job—without any prior knowledge of the art of hoofing. There followed 10 years of theater experience. He and Joan Blondell had played opposite each other to critical acclaim in a Broadway play called "Penny Arcade," and they were brought to Hollywood in 1930 by Warner Bros. to re-create their performances in the film version. Released under the title of "Sinner's Holiday," the motion picture was the prelude to Mr. Cagney's long film career, during which he was consistently among the top box-office stars because of such memorable pictures as "Public Enemy," "The Roaring Twenties," "The Fighting 69th," "Angels with Dirty Faces," "Love Me Or Leave Me" and "Mister Roberts."

'A SPECIAL MOMENT'

"We don't care what it is, we just want it to be healthy." That thought expressed by expectant parents down through the centuries is the basis of an unusual documentary, "David Hartman: Birth & Babies," airing Wednesday at 11:30 PM on the ABC Wide World of Entertainment. In the documentary, the cameras follow John and Candace Farrell through their preparation for the birth of their second child, and the joyous moment when Nina Catherine Farrell weighs into this world at 8 pounds, 13½ ounces. In the process, many questions are answered, ones like: "What can we do to help insure having a healthy baby?" and "Just what goes on during childbirth?" and "What happens if we have an unhealthy baby?"

David Hartman, former star of the TV series, The Bold Ones, is both host-narrator and executive producer of the show. Under his questioning, the experts—Dr. Philip Brooks, an obstetrician; Dr. Donald Lackey, a pediatrician; Dr. William Wright, an anesthesiologist; Ms. Pat Clinton, a head obstetrical nurse; Ms. Edith Gonzal, head of a family centered maternal care group—provide the answers.

TV WEEK'S COVER CLOSE-UP

'POSITIVE FAMILY WITH NEGATIVE INCOME'

From the people that bring you comedy hits All in the Family, Maude and Sanford and Son, comes the contemporary comedy Good Times, seen Fridays at 8:30PM on CBS. Esther Rolle and John Amos star as Florida and James Evans, the heads of a true family unit that works and plays together with the common goal being "survival" in today's hard-pressed world. The characters played by Miss Rolle and Amos on Good Times were inspired by roles they played—in a different environment—on the Maude series.

BernNadette Stanis, Esther Rolle.

Good Times deals with the lives and humor of a black family as their joys and sorrows unfold in a Chcago ghetto. The Evanses are a hardworking, proud family, who, through no choice of their own, just manage to get by in an inflationary world and who don't look to charity or welfare for help, even when things look the darkest.

Also starring in the series are actress-waiter Ja'net DuBois as Florida's best friend and neighbor Willona, Broadway star Ralph Carter as 11-year-old Michael Evans, comedian Jimmie Walker as 17-year-old James Evans, Jr. and newcomer BernNadette Stanis as 16-year-old Thelma Evans.

Allan Manings is the producer with Jack Elinson and Norman Paul as story editors, Eric Monte as script supervisor and Norman Lear as executive producer. Good Times, a Bud Yorkin-Norman Lear Tandem Production, was created by Monte and All in the Family regular Mike Evans, and developed by Lear.

"In today's world, where the dissolution of the family unit seems to be more and more prevalent, our show hopes to show the great strength that can be attained if a family just sticks together," explains Manings.

"Humor often springs from adversity. Throughout history the first exposure one has to the trials and tribulations of a people has usually been through their humor, and Good Times will utilize this method," continues Manings.

Giving us further insight into Good Times, Manings explains that "even though our characters are black, and they may represent the black point of view, their life situation is a universal one. The Evanses are a low income family struggling to keep their heads above water in today's high-priced market, and this circumstance is by no means limited to any one race, color or creed," continues Manings.

Co-star Amos describes his new television family as "a positive family with a negative income. We simply couldn't survive if we cried all the time.

"Poverty is an economical fact of life to the Evanses, not a psychological or philosophical way of life.

"They work hard and fully enjoy whatever they have. The Evanses are happy people because they have love, trust and respect for each other. As long as they have each other, they will never be without riches," says Amos.

"We may be poor, but we're not losers," says Miss Rolle. "If you've got love, you're a winner. And we've got love."

Miss Rolles' childhood background has helped her interpret her new series role, Although she grew up on a Florida farm instead of in a big-city ghetto, she recalls that her real-life family, like her television family, didn't have many worldly possessions. But they were not poor in spirit.

"I was a grown woman before I found out I was poor," continues Miss Rolle, the ninth child in a family of 18 children. "We were a family full of love, and where there's love, it's hard to be depressed."

Miss Rolle now translates these same qualities to the fictional Evans family whose daily dilemmas include meeting the rent, feeding the family, paying their taxes and keeping the kids in school.

'WE THE WOMEN'

Geraldine Fitzgerald's soft Dublin-Irish lilt could be heard during the brief lulls between the clatter of thick china on sticky table tops and the calling out of pancake orders in a small coffee shop near Tennessee's historic capitol building in Nashville. Though unobtrusive, the distinctive non-Nashville sound of her voice caught the attention of early morning breakfasters, few of them realizing, however, that they were sharing the steamy-windowed room with someone who was once introduced to them as Heathcliff's unloved wife, Isabella Linton, in "Wuthering Heights."

From this decidedly non-wuthering atmosphere, far removed in miles and mood from that classic film in which Miss Fitzgerald made her American motion-picture debut in 1939 the famous Irish-born actress stepped down the street, past a downtown urban renewal project, and into her newest role, as Carrie Chapman Catt in "We the Women." This historical special, narrated by Mary Tyler Moore on CBS, Sunday at 8PM, is the first in The American Parade series of 13 hour-long, primetime, American history-oriented programs which will be presented over the next three years in conjunction with the country's 1976 bi-centennial.

IN MEMORY OF
ANTHONY

Miss Fitzgerald's segment of the special, which traces the history of women in America through the accomplishments of some of the nation's leading feminists, was filmed entirely in Nashville. It was there that Carrie Chapman Catt, the woman's suffrage pioneer and co-founder of the National League of Women Voters, realized one of her most important goals by heading a campaign considered to have been a leading force behind the ratification of the 19th Amendment, which allowed women the right to vote in 1920.

The scenes were shot in the capitol building, where the deciding vote was cast by Harry Burn, a 24-year-old member of the state legislature, and at the nearby Hermitage Hotel in the actual room which served as Mrs. Catt's campaign headquarters that memorable summer. Other segments of the special, which also stars Kathleen Widdoes, Vinnette Carroll, Katharine Houghton, Sasha von Scherler and Leora Dana, were filmed in various other locations, including Old Sturbridge Village, Mass., and Philipsburg Manor in Tarrytown, N. Y.

Waiting as the Hermitage Hotel room overlooking the Nashville capitol was being set up with camera equipment, banners, leaflets and an antique printing machine, Miss Fitzgerald praised Mrs. Catt's "dynamic spirit" and expressed the hope that more women would carry that spirit on in their own individual ways.

"Carrie Chapman Catt's way was to stand on a soapbox and say what she believed in." noted the actress. "I try to reach people through my art. But the important thing is to do whatever you can in the area where you can make things happen."

BARBARA RUSH DOESN'T MISS MOVIES

Does a movie actress mind shifting her career from the big screen to television?

Barbara Rush guest stars as the wife of a police chief (John Forsythe) in a Police Story drama.

"I prefer performing on TV rather than movies today," answers Barbara Rush, who guest stars as the wife of a police chief (John Forsythe) in "Chief," a Police Story drama on NBC, Tuesday at 10PM. "The important thing to me is that I'm working, and I haven't had more than a couple of weeks off the entire past year," says the actress. "Since television shows don't take near the time to film that movies do, I can play maybe six totally different kinds of characters in the time I would be portraying the same character in one feature. And I probably make more money." Miss Rush has made only two movies in the past five years.

"As the wife of a police chief in this show," she says of the Screen Gems film, "I must transmit love, respect, pride and concern for a man all at the same time. You can DO something with a role like that. It's what acting is all about. It makes the long hours and the hard work worthwhile."

Barbara is not only seen continuously in television guest roles, she has also performed in various major cities on the stage. "But I wouldn't want Broadway," she states, reasoning that it would take her away from her husband, sculptor James Gruzalski, and son and daughter. The family resides in Beverly Hills, in a home she's lived in for the past dozen years.

'TWO KIDS FROM THE SAME STREET'

Two skinny kids—one named Carol and one named Alan—grew up on the same street in Hollywood where their lives were to be influenced greatly by the movies and movie stars. Is it likely that these two Hollywood kids would grow up to share the stage one day in a hit Broadway play?

The answer is a resounding "yes" if the girl's name happens to be Carol Burnett and the guy is Alan Alda, son of actor Robert Alda. They've proved that they can do just about anything in the theater, as well as television and the movies. Both, of course, are big television favorites—in The Carol Burnett Show and M*A*S*H. Their next vehicle is "6 Rms Riv Vu," their first joint venture, which represents a rare merging of Broadway and television. The production is a legitimate Broadway play, but Miss Burnett and Alda are doing it on television—as a 90-minute special, Sunday at 9PM on CBS.

Carol Burnett and Alan Alda star as two people who are married, but not to each other, who meet while apartment hunting.

Important to the actors is the fact that it is theater and that the play was taped in New York, where they were both so successful before their current television stardom. Miss Burnett triumphed in "Once Upon a Mattress" and Alda starred in "The Owl and the Pussycat" and "The Apple Tree."

"This is really the best of two worlds for me," says Miss Burnett. "It's wonderful to do a Broadway play in a real New York theater in front of a live audience—and at the same time tape it so that it can been seen a month later on television. I can't imagine a better situation." Alda agrees, adding, "Carol's a joy to work with because she's a very, very talented lady, though somewhat of a nut."

"Alan's a nut, too," says Miss Burnett. "I guess that's why everything about the show seems to be working smoothly. I seem to work best with people who are slightly nutty like me. After all, who'd expect me to understand anyone sane after seven years with Harvey Korman (her co-star on The Carol Burnett Show)?"

"Come to think of it, Carol," Alda teases, "your background isn't too stable. I mean, all those years with Garry Moore and then Harvey Korman and Tim Conway! Are you sure you want to continue rehearsing this heavy stuff?" "Look who's talking," Miss Burnett hoots. "You and that mad bunch from 'M*A*S*H.' Maybe I should get out while I'm ahead!" When the banter is over and they rehearse another love scene, funny and romantic at the same time, it's pretty obvious that this light-and-easy effect is only achieved by two talented people working very hard.

"The most important thing of all to me," Miss Burnett adds, "is that this is a New York play, about New Yorkers, and we're doing it in New York in front of New Yorkers. Any laughs or applause we get will be real. I wouldn't do this play with a laugh track or without a live audience. It just wouldn't be fair."

It's interesting to note, however, that Miss Burnett and Alda rehearsed the play in Hollywood only a few blocks from where they were once just two skinny kids, never dreaming they'd one day star together in a Broadway play—on television.

"WHAT EVERYONE IS DOING . . . IS PANICKING."

No, he is not looking for "villains," says Fred Freed, executive producer of NBC News' upcoming two-part special on American solutions to the energy crisis.

"It's so easy to do a TV program right now on the energy crisis and find yourself a villain and scream about it," he says. "It would be so easy to do the wrong thing now because there seems to be villainy afoot. 'This crisis couldn't have happened to us,' we hear. 'except that some terrible people are planning it.' " Mr. Freed's "NBC News Presents: The Energy Crisis—American Solutions" airs on successive Thursdays (March 21 and 28) at 10PM on NBC.

Adrienne Cowles, as field producer for the two-part "NBC News Presents: The Energy Crisis—American Solutions," interviews an oil tanker barge captain on the Arthur Kill River that runs between New York's Staten Island and New Jersey.

"The oil companies are certainly not without blame," says Mr. Freed. "The question is whether we will be helped by punishing them and what kind of reforms there should be. The question is not, 'What will make the oil companies feel miserable?' But 'What will make us have more energy?' " Basically, what people are saying, as he sees it, is: "Tell me who is a bad guy and tell me how to solve the energy crisis. Who's to blame? The oil companies are so big and they're making all this money and if only they weren't making money, that would solve the problem."

It's much more complex than that, Mr. Freed says. "What everyone is doing, because it's a crisis, is panicking. If the oil companies had done the opposite of what they are doing now—if they had used up all the American oil and had not gotten mixed up with Arab oil at all—we would have used our own oil up sooner, and then people would blame them for using up our oil and not using Arab oil.

"The fact is that there is no good solution because in the end we are going to run out of this kind of energy. The big thing is to try to find the answer." There is, Mr. Freed notes, a lot of "wild speculation" on the part of the public. "There are all kinds of rumors like the business of tankers piled up outside the harbor in New York, waiting, but the oil companies are not going to take them in. It's ridiculous."

The misconception, he says, is that people thought those tankers were sitting out beyond the harbor waiting for the price of fuel oil to go up. The reality, he believes, is that the tankers were waiting because the storage tanks on land were already full. It had been one of the warmest of winters; fuel oil for homes was in good supply. But people short of gasoline for their cars found it easy to believe there was no real shortage—just manipulation.

"It's hard to know whether any oil is being held back, what parts of the crisis are manufactured—and by whom," Mr. Freed says. "The oil companies, for instance, don't even know how much money they're going to make out of the oil they're getting out of the Persian Gulf, because some of the countries are imposing retroactive price increases on them. They can't even figure it out."

IT'S NOT THAT SIMPLE

It's a television program without a studio audience, emcee, singing or a script. Thus, it would seem to be a very easy show to produce . . . Not so! When host Tom Snyder raps with a guest or guests in an animated ad-lib discussion on NBC's Tomorrow program, it is the culmination of a lot of hard work by a large staff of researchers, talent coordinators, technicians, a director and a producer.

TOM SYNDER

The guests, some unknown to the general public but experts in their chosen fields, have been researched to make sure that they know whereof they speak. Each has something to say on a variety of subjects, ranging anywhere from mercy killings, infidelity, UFO's, religion, taxes, abandoned children, gambling and political tricks to countless other matters. The staff pours through volumes of books, newspaper clippings, news reports and makes hundreds of calls not only around the country but around the world. When a particular subject is in the news, the staff contacts those who can talk intelligently about it.

Frequently, a scheduled guest might be switched to another date to make room for someone who is knowledgeable about a topic in the news. That person will be flown to NBC's Burbank, Calif., Studios. Tom Snyder, a newsman with the inquisitive mind of a good reporter, has a knack of keeping the conversation animated, and often controversial, by challenging his guest to support his statements.

'THE PAINTED DOORS'

Three years ago, some promotion-minded people on an NBC series painted the doors of the studio where their show was taped with the series' logo. The show was subsequently cancelled by the painting of studio doors has since become a policy at NBC's studios in Burbank, California. The now-defunct series was called The Funny Side and starred Gene Kelly. Soon after Studio Three was decorated with The Funny Side and a caricature of a smiling mouth the staff of Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In decided to paint the doors of Studio 4.

"This job," according to Albert Obregon, foreman of NBC's scenic department, "was by far the most difficult of all the studios. We painted the face of every regular in the cast and that was quite a number. Then, on top of that, they kept dropping and adding people and we were constantly repainting the doors."

After the Laugh-In door was painted, the production company of The Flip Wilson Show was asked to paint the "Flip" logo on studio 2. The company was not anxious because they were already having trouble with Flip's fans breaking away from tours and trying to get autographs. The producer felt that painting the door would be like a beacon leading autograph-hunters to Flip and therefore disturbing rehearsals. But, the network thought the painted doors was a good attraction for studio tours, the door was painted, and Flip was proud. "In TV, it's as close as you come to seeing your name in lights," said Flip. "If I didn't see my name on the studio every morning I might not know whose show I was doing."

Since then, every NBC show taped at the Burbank complex has a painted door. The unit manager of each show consults the art director and they come up with an idea of what to put on the door. Most of the doors are logos (The Flip Wilson Show, Midnight Special) or caricatures (The Bob Hope Show). Then, this year scenic painter Jerry Mouser was hired to paint the door for Sanford and Son. He did a realistic 4-foot-high portrait in oil of Redd Foxx and Demond Wilson as the characters of the show. To do the painting, Jerry used three-foot-long brushes he made himself and only two pints of oil paint. First, he drew the picture (from a photograph) onto paper the same size as the door. He then perforated the pattern which was pounced onto the surface of the door by hitting it with a charcoal bag. The charcoal went through the perforations leaving an outline for painting.

Other shows want more realistic doors now. Johnny Carson's door was once a caricature, now it is a realistic face of Carson, but in black and white rather than in colors. The Dean Martin Show, Lotsa Luck, and NBC Follies (starring Sammy Davis, Jr.,) also have black and white drawings on their doors. Said Foreman Obregon, "I guess we'll always have a door to paint. Right now, we're even painting the doors where the local news is broadcast. When we finish that, some show will get cancelled and we'll have to paint a door for its replacement."

SHELLY NOVACK TACKLES THE FBI

Shelly Novack can run 40 yards in less than 4.7 seconds and tackle a 300-pound man without working up a sweat.

Now co-starring as Special Agent Chris Daniels in Quinn Martin Productions' The FBI, Novack brings an impressive athletic background to his action demanding role. He was a flankerback for the San Diego Chargers, a professional football team, prior to joining Efrem Zimbalist, Jr. in the ABC Sunday night series. The sandy-haired six-footer, who still plays sandlot football, graduated from Long Beach State College with a Bachelor of Arts degree in English and Physical Education and went on to earn a Master's Degree in English. During his senior year, he was named "All-American" Small College Receiver. He also holds the all-time "Pass-Receiving" record in his college league.

Novack says it was a smooth transition from football to acting. "The game is the same. The rules are the same. You just fight for what you believe in or you're dead."

'ILLUSTRIOUS EXPLORERS'

Adventure and patriotism—the rush to plant flags and claim territory for the mother country—were behind much of the early explorations of Antarctica. "Because it is there" might well have been the talisman of the pioneer explorers.

But it was only natural that Jacques Cousteau, for decades an acknowledged giant in marine life research, would one day go to the Antarctic. Last winter (Antarctica's summer), Cousteau and his 30-man crew spent three months aboard his wooden-hulled Calypso plying the Antarctic waters and land mass. The results can be seen on the fourth episode of ABC's "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau," Friday at 8:30 PM, in "Blizzard at Hope Bay."

Many of Cousteau's predecessors are famous. Some are not. There was Captain James Cook, who skirted the continent during several voyages, between 1768 and 1775. But Cook never reached land. He never could find a path through the outcropping ice floes. An American—Nathaniel Brown Palmer—was the first person to actually see the land mass of Antarctica. That was in 1820, the same year that James Weddel discovered the icy sea that bears his name. But it would be another 91 years before the South Pole was attained.

In 1911, expeditions from Norway, Germany, Great Britain, Australia and Japan set out to conquer the Pole. The winner was the five-man Norwegian team, headed by Roald Amundsen. He planted the Norwegian flag at the Pole on December 14th, after traveling for weeks by dogsled across the rugged, glacial terrain.

The biggest loser was Robert Scott and his British group. They actually reached the Pole 35 days after Amundsen. But the long, arduous trek cost them their Siberian ponies, and they were too weak to make it all the way back to base camp before the Polar winter struck. A rescue party reached them next spring, but too late. All had perished.

Commander Richard E. Byrd captured the imagination of the world with his Arctic and Antarctic explorations during the late 1920's and early 30's. Perhaps his most courageous feat came during the winter of 1934, which he spent at the South Pole—alone.

On his voyage, Jacques Cousteau had the benefit of the most modern equipment and technology available. But, as can be seen in "Blizzard at Hope Bay," several brushes by the Calypso with total disaster in the icy seas make it plain that man still is at the mercy of nature.

Captain Jacques Cousteau and his marine adventurers face unexpected danger in the "Blizzard at Hope Bay," when their ship the Calypso, preparing to leave the frozen Antarctic, is buffeted by ice floes and partly disabled, threatening the men's mission and their lives, in "Blizzard at Hope Bay".

"TELE-TALK"

The first "All-Pro Football Olympia," with 48 National Football League players competing in 10 specially created events designed to test the competitors' football and overall athletic skills, airs as a two-hour special on the "CBS Sports Spectacular," Sunday at 10AM. The event took place before an audience at the Orange Bowl in Miami, Fla. Brent Musburger, host of the "CBS Sports Spectacular," will be one of the commentators. Some of the events are: punting for distance, field goal kicking, passing for accuracy, passing for distance, 40-yard sprint race, blocking sled race, 100-yard dash, broken field running, relay, and most versatile athlete.

Ever wonder what goes into the televising of a golf tournament? Ed Proctor, technical coordinator, NBC Field Operations, provides some of the answers. For the first NBC coverage of the $200,000 Sea Pines Heritage Classic (Saturday, 2PM, and Sunday, March 23 and 24) from the Harbour Town Golf Links, Hilton Head Island, S.C. — described by Proctor as "the most difficult place we've ever originated from" — 12 fixed color cameras and one PCP-90 "Creepy" were deployed over the last four holes of the 6,655-yard par-71 course.

Since the tournament site is an island ("and a heavily wooded one, at that, some 45 miles from the nearest transmitter at Savannah, Georgia"), extensive use will be made of microwave. In order to get the transmissions to Savannah, one of three telephone companies working on the project "has erected a 70-foot tower from which they can be beamed." In addition, Proctor says, "14 radio microphones will be situated around the course, while for internal communications there will be five separate on-course radio circuits and 38 portable receivers."

The dollar value of the equipment to be utilized, he adds, "is over $3.5 million." This includes, in addition to two mobile units with six color cameras each, 12,000 feet of camera cable and 60,000 feet of audio.

Time-wise, Proctor says, "setting up for the Heritage for the first time hasn't proven to be much more difficult than any other tournament we've done before." But this, he adds, is due almost entirely to the experienced personnel available—and good prior planning. Fifty-seven NBC engineers will be on hand for the Heritage, which has "the highest budget for any golf tournament NBC has ever done."

"Remember When", a World Premiere movie and a pilot for a projected series, airs on NBC, Saturday (March 23) at 9PM. The story revolves around a family during the World War II years, a time of unity and togetherness that our country has not seen since. The teleplay was written by Herman Raucher ("Summer of '42") with Buzz Kulik directing and Paul Junger Witt producing. Kulik and Witt teamed together previously on the award-winning "Brian's Song."

Jack Warden, Emmy winner for "Brian's Song," stars as Uncle Joe Hodges, the patriarch of the family who helps through the troubled times with humor, wisdom and understanding, even though he too has a son in the war.

The Hodges family has two sons, one nephew and a son-in-law in various theatres of operation and branches of the service. Dan and Ann Hodges played by the accomplished actors, William Schallert and Nan Martin portray the parents who not only have to bear up under the stress of having two sons in service but also must concern themselves with their eldest daughter, Joanna, played by Jamie Smith Jackson, a young mother who has moved back to her parents' home, while waiting for her husband to return from the war; their younger daughter, Beverly, portrayed by Margaret Willock in her film debut, who finds herself falling in love with a young serviceman despite her fears that he'll be shipped overseas like her brothers; and keeping Frankie, played by Robby Benson, their youngest son from volunteering for a war he's afraid he'll miss.

To re-create the typical small American town of World War II, the company went to great lengths to film the 1943 story recalling a time when the appearance of a Western Union messenger could strike terror in the hearts of a family . . . . a time when, a shortage of nylon necessitated the American Woman to create the illusion of stockings with leg make-up . . . . when servicemen relied on USOs to be their home away from home . . . . A time when food and gas were rationed and the only way to get a pair of shoes was if you had a number seventeen ration stamp. It's all there from the big band sound right down to the family Victory Garden.

The War Years were a time when Americans stood up to be counted . . . . a country unified in spirit and determination for a common cause. This unified spirit is a reminder to all, that when we, the American people, speak as one, there is no worthy adversary. Now it is the time to look back and remember when.

'A GOOD SCREAM'

Vincent Price, who says he enjoys roles of the macabre, portrays a hammy former horror movie star trying to make a comeback.

Clearly, Vincent Price was enjoying himself. With flowing black cape and ghoulish makeup he looked like a cross between Count Dracula and the Joker. "There must be some small children around here that I can frighten," he said with a wicked grin.

Price, the veteran of 103 films, was on location in Burbank guest starring as a hammy former horror film star trying to make a comeback in the "Black Day for Bluebeard" episode of NBC's The Snoop Sisters, starring Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick. The segment airs at 8:30PM on the NBC Tuesday Mystery Movie.

Price has played mostly villains in his long career, but in recent years his film roles have been almost entirely about the macabre. "Theater of Blood," for instance, is one of his more recent films.

"Actually, these are sort of gothic tales . . . Edgar Allen Poe type of things rather than outright horror stories," he says. "I love to do them. They're great fun and these films use more tricks and special effects than any other kind of movie."

In "Bad Day for Bluebeard," Price plays a man who is, among other things, a gourmet cook and art lover—two of the abiding loves of the off-screen Vincent Price. "The role was written with me in mind but of course there are some exaggerations made in the character for comic effect," he said with a smile. Price's cookbook has sold more than a quarter million copies and he has written a new book on art.

"That's what I'd like to do more of—write. I love to write and lecture. I write about things I know something about, such as art and food. I haven't any ambition to try fiction," he says. "I write everything in long hand and I'm one of those horrible people who sleeps with a pad next to his bed. I'll wake up in the middle of the night with an idea and start jotting it down."

Price, at 62, is remarkably good-natured and relaxed for someone who has spent his life scaring people or making them mad at him.

"I've had a wonderful life . . . a marvelously varied life," he said. "When I was a young man I thought the best time of my life would be when I got older. And I was absolutely right. I feel like a million and I've never been happier. I'm having great fun with this role. And it's such a delight to work with Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick. But this isn't the first time. It's sort of a reunion.

"I was in a play, 'Victoria Regina,' on Broadway with Helen in 1935 through 1937. And I was in a play with Mildred in the summer of 1936, so we're old friends. But I think we should try to get together more often than every 37 years," he said.

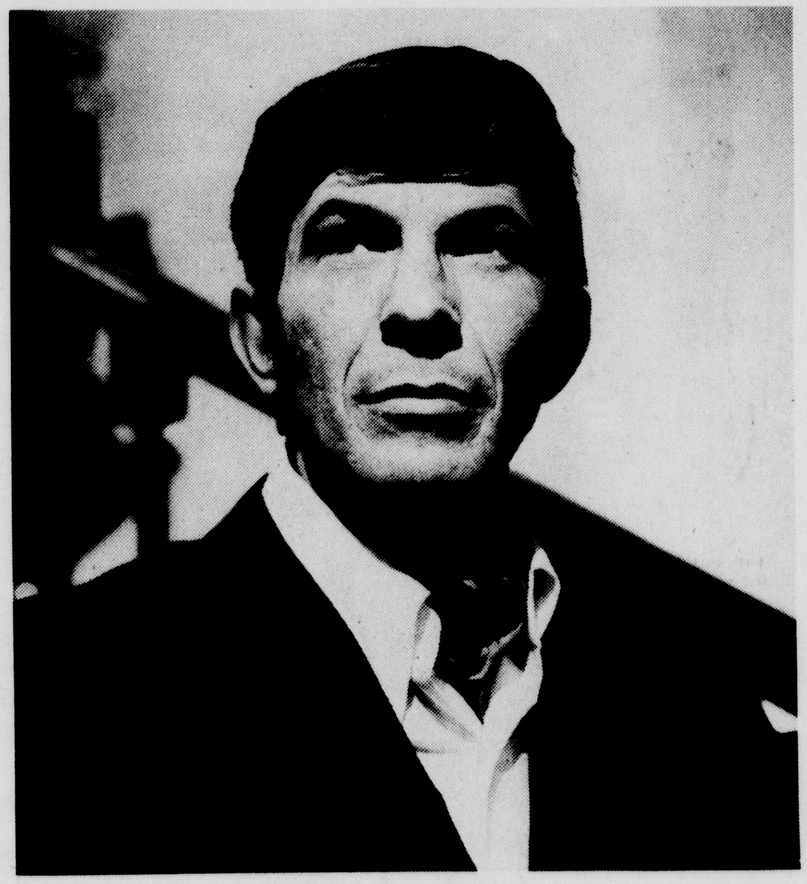
SCIENCE FICTION SOCIETY

"We live in a science fiction society," says Leonard Nimoy, who provides the voice of Mr. Spock for NBC's animated Saturday morning series, Star Trek.

"A lot of people aren't really aware of it. But we really do. We are terribly affected by science fiction in communication, food, transportation, health, medicine, every aspect of our lives," says Nimoy, who played the role of the half-human, half-Vulcan Mr. Spock in Star Trek during its three-year run on NBC as a live-action show.

"The trips to the moon brought a lot of science fiction into focus suddenly. Extra-terrestrial travel and the possibility of extra-terrestrial life (which I am convinced must exist) are simply the next steps. Whatever discoveries are made on other planets will finally put everything into focus and it won't be science fiction anymore. "Star Trek deals with the very near future, really. At the same time, it raises very serious and worthwhile questions about things that we are dealing with now. It is not always possible for an audience to immediately relate to things that we talk about on 'Star Trek' and perhaps that is good, because if they were able to, some of the things that we do on the show would terrify them."



LEONARD NIMOY

Nimoy believes that science fiction enables an author to present things pertinent to contemporary society in an altered form. "You can remove it one step and say, 'This is in the future on another planet, look at what happened to these people, they are all living underground because they destroyed the surface of their planet.' If you can say it's on another planet and they can feel for these poor people, it becomes a good way to raise questions which you can't raise in a contemporary drama, at least not in those specific terms."

Nimoy says he is a fan of the social aspects of science fiction. "There are some kinds of science fiction that don't intrigue me at all. They are the nuts and bolts mechanics of science fiction that have to do with certain kinds of ships battling it out. It's just another way of playing World War II. The rocketry and stuff like that intrigues me to the extent that they're useful as a vehicle to establish another time, another dimension, another planet."

"What Scares Me Most"—Hollywood Stars Talk Frankly

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR CARROLL O'CONNOR

Are you ever conscience-stricken because of the harm and damage you do to American Poles, or is money your only consideration?—T. Wlarorski, Bloomfield, Conn.

● There is not enough money on earth to make me consciously hurt anyone, be it an ethnic, racial or religious group. If you watch the show with an open mind, you will see that Archie never slurs his son-in-law with malice. Archie is a frightened man and has trouble coping with society. He never wins, he is a loser from the word go. The show's foremost purpose is to entertain, and we take great care not to offend anyone. Everyone—from the producer to the writers to the actors to the network censors—checks and double-checks the use of epithets. And we all have one purpose—to look at ourselves with humor and never, never with harm. I send my deepest and sincerest apologies to you and your family, if you feel that I have offended you.

FOR JULIE NIXON EISENHOWER

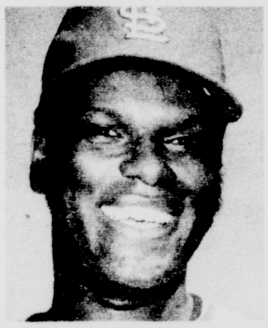
What will your responsibilities be as an editor for Curtis Publishing?—B. J., Oklahoma City, Okla.

● I'm enjoying trying my hand at writing, in addition to editing material for the revitalized "Saturday Evening Post." I'm also working on a special project: an anthology of the best literature from 50 years of Curtis' publications in the children's field ("Jack and Jill," etc.).

FOR KATHY LENNON of the Lennon Sisters

Have you ever thought of breaking up your act to become singles?—M. N., Pontiac, Mich.

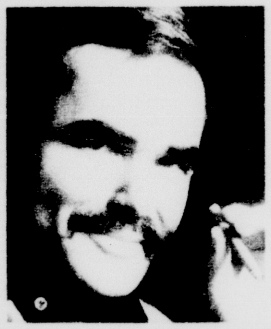
● No. Never. We all feel we need the security of each other. We do solos in the group, but wouldn't care to go out alone. If one of us ever said, "This is too much for me," we'd all quit. We care about each other very deeply.



FOR BOB GIBSON, pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals

You've hit more home runs than any other active major-league pitcher. How would you feel about the designated-hitter rule being used in the National League?—Fred Williamson, Milton, N.C.

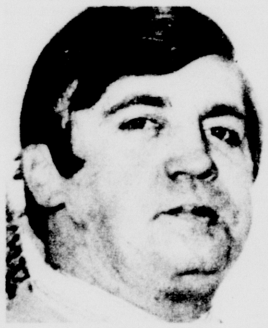
● As a pitcher who enjoys hitting, I don't like the designated-hitter rule. I feel that hitting and defense are parts of my game, just as pitching is.



FOR BURT REYNOLDS

What do you eat to keep your physique so beautiful?—Cindy Anderson, Tulare, Calif.

● I follow a high-protein diet Monday through Friday. I eat pasta or other starches on weekends only, and I never eat candy or sweets.



FOR BUFORD PUSSER, real-life hero of "Walking Tall"

I hear that you've been going around the country promoting the movie based on your career as sheriff of McNairy County, Tenn. How do you react to the scene in which you and your wife are ambushed and she is killed?—J. J. Goodyear, Durham, N.C.

● I turn away from the screen when that scene comes on. Then, when people in the audience start crying, I give in and cry myself.

FOR SUZANNE PLESHETTE

Is your husband in films [Suzanne is married to Thomas Joseph Gallagher III]?—D. H. H., Lorain, Ohio

● No, he's in business—a stock investor. And at first it was quite difficult. He'd ask me, "What time will you be home?" and I'd say, "I don't know, maybe nine or ten." And he would say, "Well, why don't you ask someone?" And I'd try to explain that it doesn't work that way in films. If we're in the middle of a scene, we have to finish it. Now he understands these problems better.

FOR FLORENCE HENDERSON

On "The Brady Bunch" you mother six children and when you go home, you have four of your own. Don't you ever get fed up with kids?—Mrs. D. G. Martin, Tuxedo, N.Y.

● No! I like children. I only get fed up with obnoxious parents who make their children into human beings who obviously don't turn out to be the world's most likable people.

FOR TED KNIGHT of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show"

Is the newscaster you play on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" typical? And how do the men on the network news regard this representation of themselves?—B. V. F., Princeton, N.J.

● Ted Baxter is a composite of several local television newsmen. Everywhere I go people tell me they know who the "real" Ted Baxter is. Network newsmen resented the character at first, but most of them have now come around to where they can see the humor.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Whatever became of Connie Francis? I understand she was booked for a few engagements, but canceled out.—M. Deever, Washington, D.C.

● Connie Francis is alive and well and living quite comfortably. Yes, it's true she canceled several engagements at the last moment; the last one was scheduled a few months ago at the Waldorf's prestigious Empire Room. Her closest associates attribute it to "cold feet," a bit of fear about appearing before a live audience again. But she's safe. She's a millionairess from past record royalties and motion pictures. Also, she has a guaranteed income of $125,000 a year for life from MGM Records. Not bad, huh?

We Asked These Stars, "What Do You Fear Most?"

Compiled by Alan Ebert

Here, in their own words, seven stars of our entertainment world reveal the innermost fears that rest, hidden no more, in their hearts.

Rita Hayworth: "Between the third floor and death"

RITA HAYWORTH

"Several years ago, in Madrid, after dining in the penthouse of a new 23-story apartment house, I entered an elevator with five friends. No sooner did the door close than we plummeted. I can still hear the screams and feel the terror as we plunged downward. And I remember being thrown to the floor as the emergency brakes finally caught and held. We later learned we were dangling somewhere between the third floor and death.

"The worst was not over. For more than an hour, we remained trapped in our cell with no means to force open the door, no air and no way of knowing if we would suddenly fall again.

"I will not belabor the point. Today, I ride escalators or walk, even if that means six or seven flights to a hotel room or a friend's apartment. The doors of an elevator will never close on me again. The very thought produces a cold sweat."

MAUREEN STAPLETON

"That Great Silver Bird in the Sky, the Wrights' Wrongo, the airplane–that's my fear.

"I don't understand the principles of aviation–why the Big Bird doesn't fall down from the sky. So I don't fly – which causes considerable grief to an actress whose work is on both coasts. Only once did I succumb. Many years ago, when in Los Angeles, my agent called to inform me I was signed for a Broadway play. He convinced me to save two days and fly rather than take the train.

"In those days, there were no nonstop jets from California. Planes to New York generally made a tour of the U.S. before falling down on the Manhattan airport. Well, my dears, I am here today by the grace of God. That trip was one long cardiac arrest. They had to carry me off the plane sucking my thumb. I vowed never again. There's no percentage in it. If the plane doesn't crash and kill me, I'll die of heart failure anyway."

GODFREY CAMBRIDGE

"Even the new slim me can't stand small enclosures. In a restaurant, I can't sit facing a wall, only facing front. In an airplane, if I know it's going to be a full flight, I'll buy a second ticket so I can have the space next to me. I get physically ill when I feel closed in.

"The worst experience I ever had was when I decided to commune with nature. I bought a terrific new canvas sleeping bag, put on my Doctor Dentins, and snuggled in for a night under the stars. I couldn't stand it. I felt trapped. And I was! The zipper was stuck and wouldn't open.

"I said to myself: 'Godfrey, you are a reasonable, mature, intelligent, fairly together fellow. Don't panic.' Only Godfrey didn't listen. He was too busy clawing, ripping and biting his way out of that straitjacket!

"Anyone interested in buying a hardly used sleeping bag with a lot of fringe?"

"Before every performance I sit in my dressing room convinced I will lose my voice in the middle of a song; that I'll open my mouth, reach for a note and come up with nothing.

"It happened once in a football stadium before 50,000 people, and Lord knows how many others who were tuned in to the nationwide broadcast. And to make matters even worse, the song was 'The Star-Spangled Banner.'

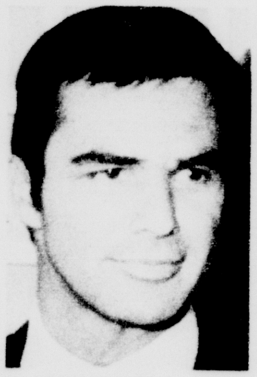
"I can never forget that helpless feeling of standing there before others, desperately trying to make a sound, and being capable of none. I know exactly what I would do if it happened again. I'd hum loudly, break into the three dance steps I know, add a card trick or two, and then run – all the way back to Claremore, Okla., where I was born."

Maureen Stapleton: "One long cardiac arrest"

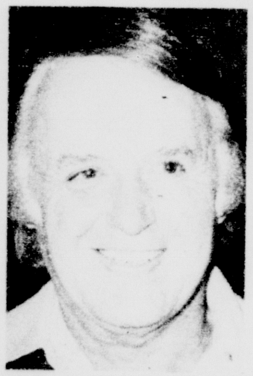
Godfrey Cambridge: Attacked by a wild sleeping bag

Patti Page: A star-spangled bleep

Dyan Cannon: Pollutants and politics



Burt Reynolds: The double rip-off



Rod Steiger: "I ate the w-h-o-l-e thing"

DYAN CANNON

"I am afraid of the growing insensitivity to others in the world today. I am fearful of the self-involvement of which we are all guilty. I am afraid of pollutants and politics–which almost seem synonymous these days. I am afraid my daughter will never see the true beauty in this world before it's destroyed."

BURT REYNOLDS

"There are two things you must hold on to when you become famous – yourself and your friends. Show business, or 'The Fame Game,' as I call it, can rip off both. And that frightens me. Not all the money or fame in the world can compensate for that kind of aloneness.

"Mine is a crazy business. The more famous you become, the more you are surrounded by people. But they are 'paid' people – managers, agents, aides, and when the 'pay' goes, so do they.

"Luck plays a big part in any career, and when you're down on it, if you haven't kept your friendships, haven't kept a true perspective of yourself, you're in big, deep trouble. I've seen it happen to many. When the money goes, so go the lights, the cameras, the action. As I said, man, it's frightening."

ROD STEIGER

"I am fearful of waking up one day to find I have lived my life without ever having lived it all; without having played every card held in my hand; without having dared to experience all there is to experience.

"This fear results in my playing and working with determination. I must do and be all I can. Sometimes it seems my appetite is insatiable, but I want to leave this life feeling I ate the w-h-o-l-e thing."

Pat Loud on Love and Divorce: "In Spite of It All, Married Is Better"

By Pat Loud
Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

"How can we believe in not marrying? To do that . . . is to believe that we have become such spiritual grotesqueries that we should bounce off each other in brief collision like the bumper cars in an amusement park."

Eva Rubinstein

"The main thing I miss," says Pat Loud, "is the companionship, a word that covers a whole lot of territory."

Where are the brides of yesterday? Why are so many of them spitting nails and traveling to the divorce mills of Las Vegas or the Dominican Republic—or just battling it out in hometown divorce courts? Nervous and hollow-eyed, but determined, these are the women who are tearing up their nests the minute the last child graduates from high school. But they are not alone. Many of us who are too timid to go that far talk about divorce a lot when the old man's back is turned or after the second martini has been trotted out to assure a relaxed and congenial Saturday evening.

What's the matter with us, anyway? Why are so many people so dissatisfied with their marriages? Why do the sweet "I do's" of our youth turn into the outraged "I won'ts" of middle age? Most often it's the wife who is more vocal about her dissatisfaction and the husband who retreats into a shell of silence—a "don't-bother-me" attitude that drives her right up the wall. Sometimes he has a lot of other retreats, too. How many of us single and divorced ladies have met a married man who explains that his wife "simply doesn't understand me"? The implication in his complaint is that she is a soulless witch who has ruined the tranquillity of his years and that he stays with her only because of his great spirit of humanity. In an epic loneliness reminiscent of the Flying Dutchman, he now covers every wateringhole inside his limits of time and space, questing for some noble maid who will ease his pain for one brief, erotic encounter.

But then we're all so inept and inanely self-righteous in dealing with our mate's faults. No wonder our household gods seem to have forsaken us. Where did it all start, this inability to cope with the realities of married life? Our bodies sure got older, but our emotions have declined to make the trip. They seem no older or wiser than they were 15, 20 or even 30 years ago.

We've got more than our solid Victorian heritage to confuse us, you know. We remember things like World War II, in which we triumphed over the forces of evil to make the world safe for democracy. But the world didn't seem to work out quite that way, because, somehow, we have been sending the flower of our manhood off to fight and die on foreign shores ever since. That has confused us a little, too. What is real and what isn't has never really become clearly sorted out in our minds.

Obviously, we had to get away. We had to escape. The Great American Tranquilizer was escapism, and some of that confused us even more. Take our popular music, for instance. Which one of us didn't fantasize that Frank Sinatra was standing beside her nonexistent but magnolia-scented garden gate whispering her name in the moonlight? Or that Lena Horne wandered around in stormy weather, covering the waterfront and had it bad and that ain't good?

And the movies. Who dared to ponder the Vesuvian lust rising in the manly heart of that gentleman/savage Errol Flynn as he gazed into the eyes (totally ignoring the cleavage and heaving bosom) of gentlewoman/savage Maureen O'Hara? And who wondered if their romance would still be warm and prosperous ten years later? Not a soul then, but today I'd be interested in what Captain Blood was like after a few anniversaries. And what about the Captain from Castile? We all believed that noble and hot-blooded Spaniard would be forever faithful to the little barroom slattern he loved. The fact is, we never questioned the Captain's future and just weren't interested. To us, our romantic adventure was the Mount McKinley of life. Marriage and the rest were just the inevitable downhill stroll.

So it doesn't seem so strange, in retrospect, that a lot of us married for the wrong reasons. Many of us did manage to make the painful journey into adulthood. But for others, divorce may have been only the logical unraveling of a flimsy little courtship.

Marriage for today's young people is about as different from what it was in my day as Mick Jagger is different from Dick Haymes. There's romance, sure, but also a lot more realism. (Isn't there?) Most young people don't have the same social pressures to marry—nor do they live in romantic isolation booths separated from reality by mirror images of their parents' perfect marriages.

Modern man has been relieved (hasn't he?) of those simpering, over-romantic courtships in which that cute idiosyncrasy of his beloved fiancée became a revolting habit once she was his wife. There is an openness in these new relationships that allows for honesty (real or imagined) and in which frankness and candor exist even as love itself is nurtured. They've solved it, right? Wrong! As wise and logical as they are, it's really a pity that they aren't having any better luck staying married than their parents' generation had.

Pat Loud achieved fame with her husband and five children in the educational-television series, "An American Family." She is the author, with Nora Johnson, of "Pat Loud: A Woman's Story" (Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, $6.95) and, without Nora Johnson, of this article about the state of American marriage and divorce. She and her husband Bill reached their own parting of the ways while the TV cameras rolled. Their breakup was seen by millions of Americans and Europeans.

YOUR NERVES CAN CURE THEMSELVES

once you learn how to de-sensitize them, this doctor's ingenious new way...

If You Suffer From A Single One Of These Torturous Symptoms Of Nerves, Tension Or Chronic Anxiety, THEN THE FACTS BELOW MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT YOU HAVE EVER READ IN YOUR LIFE!

Because they reveal, for the first time, how your nerves have tricked you into the following mental symptoms:

constant nervousness and over-irritation . . . indecision . . . depression . . . loss of confidence in yourself and others . . . feelings of unreality . . . overwhelming obsession with one or two horrible thoughts . . .

a hopeless feeling that your entire personality is coming apart . . . that your identity is dissolving . . . or that you may be helplessly drifting into a nervous breakdown!

And—equally as bad—how your nerves have tricked you into the following physical symptoms:

chronic fatigue, that starts in the morning, and grows worse as the day goes on . . .

"missed" heartbeats—"racing" heart—palpitations—or sudden sharp pains under the heart . . .

sweating hands—or "pins and needles" in either your hands or your legs . . .

"churning" stomach . . . nausea . . . choking feeling in the throat . . . inability to take a deep breath . . . tight band of pain around the head . . . "ready to jump out of your skin" . . . strange tricks of vision . . . weak spells . . . insomnia, that goes on night after night after night . . .

hand shaking . . . panic spasms . . . knots in your chest . . . dizziness . . . difficulty in swallowing . . . vomiting . . . and all the other physical tortures that turn your life into one continuous hell!

And Every One Of These Nervous Symptoms Can Be Controlled . . . And Then Diminished . . . And Then Eliminated—OFTEN BY AS LITTLE AS THIS ONE SINGLE INSIGHT INTO THEIR HIDDEN CAUSE!

And that insight is this:

If you suffer from any of the nervous symptoms listed above, then you must understand at once that your nerves are not ill . . . they have not deteriorated . . . they have not lost their true physical health in any way! What has happened to them instead is that they have simply become OVER-SENSITIZED . . . "rubbed raw" by too much outside irritation . . . and are now ready to discharge the emotional and physical symptoms of panic at even the slightest thing that goes wrong!

Thus, the depression . . . indecision . . . loss of confidence and all the other emotional symptoms you feel are all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves! And the churning stomach . . . palpitating heart . . . never-ending headaches and all the other physical nervous-symptoms you feel are—again—all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves!

And therefore the way to treat ALL these symptoms is NOT with drugs . . . NOT with shock . . . NOT with medical formulations or hospitalizations at all! The way to treat these nerves is to change the poisonous-thoughts that are rubbing them raw!

And this is done (as proven by this internationally-famed physician on thousands of patients) in four simple steps! The first of which stops nervous symptoms (both physical and emotional) from multiplying from that moment on! The second of which serves to tranqualize and quiet down those over-sensitized nerves far more powerfully (and permanently) than any drug a pharmacist could ever give you!

VITAL NOTE!

To gain the wonder-working benefits of this book in every area of your life starting within the first five minutes after you pick it up—there is absolutely no need to STUDY this revolutionary new book or even read it from cover to cover, or expend any more "literary" effort on your part other than to browse through it at your leisure for one or two thrilling minutes a day!

This is NOT a textbook! NOT a study manual! There are no lectures—not a single "blue-sky" theory to ponder over anywhere!

Instead, for the first time; here are revolutionary new breakthroughs that HELP YOUR NERVES DE-SENSITIZE THEMSELVES . . . ACTUALLY DRAIN OUT TORTUROUS MENTAL AND PHYSICAL SYMPTOMS, STARTING THE VERY FIRST DAY—all through a few incredibly-simple techniques that you can put to work for you the very first time you pick it up.

Therefore, we do NOT want you to treat this amazing volume as you would an ordinary book! Instead, we ask you this:

Place it on your bedstand, entirely at our risk, for thirty days! Browse through just a few pages every night before you retire! Skip around if you like! But make absolutely no conscious effort to "study" this book, "work" on it, or even memorize a single one of the thrilling techniques you will find on every one of its pages!

Instead, you'll make this startling discovery in these very first thirty days alone. Instantly—simply by leafing through its pages—your mind will automatically absorb the wonder-working procedures laid out for you in this book! Effortlessly, you will respond to its convention-shattering breakthroughs!

Inevitably—hour after hour—day after day—week after week—you will find your body draining away, almost by itself, the tortures of constant nervousness . . . overwhelming depression . . . lack of confidence . . . chronic fatigue . . . 'skipping' or 'racing' heart . . . pins and needles in hands or feet . . . even nausea, shortness of breath, chest and stomach pains, weak spells, and never-flagging insomnia! And much, much more!

All these—gone! For just a few short moments a day!

WHAT OTHERS SAY:

". . . helped me so much and released me from the particular hell I have been living in since my breakdown six years ago."

"I think of Dr. Weekes with admiration and deep gratitude, as I am sure thousands of other people are doing."

"I am amazed at the progress I made in such a short time."

"It would be no exaggeration to add that your book saved my life."

"The method you give for cure of nervous conditions is so effective—and so simple—I cannot think why nothing remotely like your system has been suggested to me."

"The great reassurance you give about the distressing physical symptoms of a disturbed nervous system is one of the greatest benefits to be derived from your book."

"You cannot possibly imagine what a relief it is to be able to view life normally again, instead of fear-panic all the while."

"I cannot describe the emotion I felt to find, at last, someone who really understood the problem, and to hear her say the condition can be cured. . . ."

"I would like you to know that my nervous condition has so greatly improved through the advice gleaned from your most precious and invaluable book . . . that all symptoms have now disappeared and I rarely need Librium or sleeping capsules."

"My physician is amazed at my progress and of course I showed him your book which he borrowed and read thoroughly and is now recommending to other patients."

"My wife has made a vast improvement since using your book and now feels for the first time like getting away from the hospital altogether. I'm sure if she had had your treatment in earlier years she would never have had to go into the hospital at all."

WHAT THE PUBLISHER SAYS:

HOPE AND HELP FOR YOUR NERVES has sold over 250,000 copies and has been endorsed by medical and mental-health associations throughout the world. Millions of Americans have heard Dr. Weekes on television and radio shows and have read excerpts from the book which recently appeared in Reader's Digest. If you are one of the many whose nerves are on edge and who sometimes feel panic and don't know why, this remarkable book was written for you.

The third of which lets you stop fighting those symptoms (which only intensifies them in an ever-increasing spiral of sheer torment), and—instead—leave them alone in an ingenious way that lets them start healing themselves!

And the fourth of which—the great reward—brings you slowly-but-surely back to the person you used to be! With a new, enduring feeling of control and confidence that nothing can destroy! So much so that this doctor actually comes right out and states bluntly: "The advice given here will definitely cure you, if you only follow it"!

In Fact, Case History After Case History Proves That Cure May Be So Dramatically Quick That Your Friends And Family Will Beg You To Tell Them Your Secret!

Once again, it doesn't matter what physical or emotional symptoms you are now suffering from . . . how "deeply entrenched" they are . . . how long you have been plagued by them . . . how "old" or "weak" or "out-of-control" you may feel today! Here is specific, step-by-immediate-step advice that will (again to quote directly from the doctor) "banish every unwelcome sensation and regain peace of mind and body"!

For example:

The two-minute self-treatment (you perform one ingenious little action with your chest) that ends sudden panic seizures on the spot—including all their side effects such as dizziness, pins and needles, involuntary stiffening of the joints, inability to breathe, and all the rest.

That "lump in the throat that won't go away"—how to banish it in minutes . . . and enjoy eating any food you wish to once again!

Physical weakness—perhaps the most dreaded of all symptoms—and (surprisingly) perhaps the fastest of all to banish!

How to deal with the twin monsters of fatigue and guilt! And leave behind emotional exhaustion . . . morning depression . . . thoughts that once raced around and around in your mind without cessation! (And leave them all behind—for good!)

Why so many patients who tried these simple techniques actually came out of their nervous sicknesses as far finer and stronger people than they ever were before!

How to recover from chronic tension caused by an insoluable problem! The only sane way to overcome it! How to avoid unnecessary suffering, for both yourself and others! And, perhaps, actually turn your worst defeat into crowning success!

The surest and most permanent way to cure obsessions!

How to tap the forces of Nature, every morning, that are just waiting to cure you!

How to bring happiness back into your everyday life! Not by waiting for some great event or reward . . . but simply by developing the eyes to see joy in the little things all around you!

And—the final goal: How to develop the kind of nervous control that automatically turns panic off the instant it starts! That frees you forever from "nerve-crutches" such as drugs or alcohol! That lets you pick up your life again from the point where over-sensitized nerves forced you to abandon it, with absolute confidence that you now have the poise and self-possession to accomplish the goals you have always wanted!

Already a best-seller in nine foreign nations, as well as the United States! Read it from cover to cover. We take all the risk! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon—TODAY!

Continued

So here we are, young and old alike, with more than one in three of us getting divorced and a lot of the others apparently restless but holding fast—at least so far. [According to the best statistics available to FAMILY WEEKLY, more than 36 percent of U.S. marriages are ending in divorce.]

Remember the old saying, "Love is the answer," to which the rejoinder was, "What is the question?" That was a pretty good rejoinder, it turns out. Love just isn't the answer to everything. I think we have to realize that love is a bust as an all-purpose problem solver. We have foolishly expected love to answer too many of our needs.

Is it just plain impossible for most of us to dedicate our integrity to a lifetime commitment? Must prenuptial bliss so often turn into postnuptial boredom? I don't think so—not if there is enough light, air and freedom in the union, and if both parties work hard to keep it that way. To think of marriage as a ball and chain helps create resentfulness and boredom. Yet incredible numbers of people do just that. After my divorce, my married friends knew I sat up on my hill in Santa Barbara every night in a house full of kids. But many of them still envied me. I was free to do whatever I wanted to and they weren't. Yet they were supposedly happily married people!

But how can we believe in not marrying? To do that is to believe that to truly know each other would be a revolting shock. It is to believe that we have become such spiritual grotesqueries that we should bounce off each other in brief collision like the bumper cars in an amusement park. It is to believe that intimacy assassinates love, which is a word too few of us really understand in the first place. It is to believe that life is a tragic joke in which we, ladies and gentlemen, are all portraying fools.

I remember this: When my marriage was good, it was very, very good. I once believed that it would automatically go on forever, that it was not fragile, but solid and substantial. But my mistake was one of immaturity, not sloth or callousness. I like being married, and I think most people do, too, because in spite of the risk and all the ugly statistics, an awful lot of people are still marrying. Even people involved in what they call "experiments in alternate life-styles" haven't really come up with anything very different from the basic family concept, no matter how hard they try. The basic ingredients are a man and a woman who want to distill a life together. It's a primal urge in practically all of us.

Some say love's opposite is indifference. But I seem morbidly unable to conjure up this indifference toward Bill, even though he and I haven't lived together for two and a half years. And that isn't because I'm one of the classic torchbearers, either. I hadn't thought of him as Captain Marvelous for years before we divorced, and it's pretty obvious that I wasn't the sweetheart of his dreams during those same years. Both of us wanted out. Indeed, we had to get out, or we would have wound up cutting out paper dolls and talking to them. So our divorce was more like telling the frontline troops that the war was over than like a visit from the angel of death. We were free to face each other without rancor for the first time in ages. It was like having bad Mr. Hyde turning into good Dr. Jekyll again, and I can now remember my marriage with pleasure instead of anguish. The gentleness of my divorce is largely responsible for that. Bill and I had emerged from the battle of the sexes and we were still friends.

> "Our divorce was more like telling the frontline troops that the war was over than like a visit from the angel of death."

But the price of freedom comes high. Though I don't regret my decision to divorce, I have seen life from both sides now. And for me, at least, married is better. The main thing I miss is the companionship, a word that covers a whole lot of territory. A lot of my unmarried friends use that word to describe what they're missing. I do have a new life and the challenge is exhilarating. I'm not about to retreat from it again, but I like life better and feel more complete when I'm sharing the experience-of-living with a husband. Living alone seems unnatural to me.

My children have to go out, hopefully a lot wiser than Bill and I, and face the challenges of their own lives. They'll have to find their own mates to do that with them. I'm just their launching pad, and that's the way it should be. It's just that I want the same thing for myself, and having had such balance in my life once, I know what's missing now.

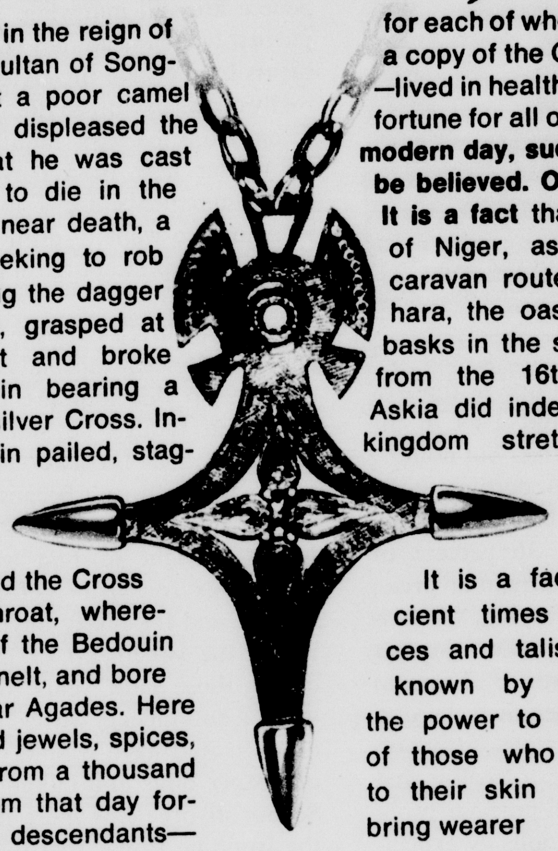
The Legend of the Amazing Powers of

LA CROIX d'AGADÈS



Once upon a time, in the reign of Askia the Great, Sultan of Songhai, it is told that a poor camel driver, Ahmed, so displeased the powerful ruler that he was cast out of the oasis to die in the desert. As he lay near death, a Bedouin came seeking to rob him. Ahmed, seeing the dagger raised above him, grasped at the thief's throat and broke therefrom a chain bearing a strangely carved silver Cross. Instantly the Bedouin pailed, staggered and fell dead! Praising his luck, Ahmed placed the Cross upon his own throat, whereupon the camel of the Bedouin approached and knelt, and bore him to a cave near Agades. Here Ahmed discovered jewels, spices, and gold, looted from a thousand caravans. And from that day forward he and his descendants—for each of whom Ahmed caused a copy of the Cross to be carved—lived in health, riches, and good fortune for all of their days! In this modern day, such tales are not to be believed. Or are they?

It is a fact that in the Republic of Niger, astride the ancient caravan routes across the Sahara, the oasis of Agades still basks in the sun, little changed from the 16th century, when Askia did indeed control a vast kingdom stretching from the desert to the sea!

It is a fact that, since ancient times certain substances and talismans have been known by millions to have the power to affect the destiny of those who wear them next to their skin — the power to bring wearer

Health, Happiness, Luck, Success!

And while it is not known how, or by whom the original Cross of Agades was first copied and smuggled to Europe, it is a fact that Agades was part of the French African territory in the 18th and 19th centuries! And today it is a fact that thousands of Frenchmen and women wear this identical Cross of Agades (always in contact with the skin)! The modern belief is that the curious carving and design of this beautiful piece of jewelry somehow modifies the human body magnetism—that it makes this magnetism positive, capable of repelling harmful and inauspicious waves, and attracting those beneficial to the wearer. (Certainly you have often been aware of the magnetic attraction of those who succeed—who are lucky and happy and in good health. And we often speak of the "good vibrations" we get from certain people!)

THE GENUINE CROSS

We certify that this is a true, in every detail Cross of Agades described in the legends of the orient. We make no claims for its power to change your destiny or improve your health and happiness. Wear it if you like simply as a distinctively beautiful piece of jewelry—delicately carved and beautifully plated in your choice of silver or gold. But we can make it possible for you to test its power for yourself — without risk! If after 15 days of wearing LA CROIX d'AGADES in direct contact with your skin you are dissatisfied for any reason, simply return it and we'll refund the purchase price! Mail coupon at once!

INTERESTED IN ASTROLOGY?

How Your Horoscope Can Bring You Wealth, Love, Success And Happiness

by Norman P. Kennedy - Reporter, World News Agency of Astrology

Canton, OH (WNAA)-Did you know that you can have your personal natal horoscope cast and analyzed free? You can. The American Astrological Association, the largest known astrological society in the world, is conducting astrological research. They need birth information for this project. If you send them your birth data, they'll cast your horoscope on their computer for research purposes. And if you wish, they'll send you a copy of it.

Your personal natal horoscope will consist of about 9 pages and 3,000 words. It will offer you the best psychological analysis of yourself available today. Your horoscope will analyze your strengths and weaknesses. It will tell you how to take fuller advantage of your talents, and show you how to overcome your weaknesses. Your horoscope will discuss your lovelife, tell you who you should be sexually compatible with, and outline your marriage potentials. It will also cover your marital, family, and child relationships along with your health, your career opportunities, and your finances.

An important point should be made. Your personal computer horoscope will not be the general kind found in paperbacks. Your personal computer horoscope will analyze your sun-sign, moon sign, rising sign, and planets according to your exact time, date, month, year and place of birth. Many people don't understand the importance of their moon sign and rising sign. Your moon sign refers to your subconscious mind relating to your past. It also affects your childhood conditioning, instinctive patterns, feelings, and inner nature. Your rising sign shows you how you project yourself. It is the mask you wear before others.

Your 3,000 word, 9 page natal horoscope will be cast on the Association's gigantic 360-65 I.B.M. computer. The computer was programmed by the Association's staff of top certified astrologers. It contains over 24,000,000 bits of authenticated astrological information. No two horoscopes produced by the computer are ever alike.

I have visited the Association and had my 9 page computer horoscope cast and analyzed. I was awestruck at the accuracy of my horoscope. It described me perfectly. It even pointed out some hidden talents which I wasn't aware of until I really sat down and took an honest look at myself. I'm happy to say, that I've now begun to take advantage ot these talents.

Few people realize that the majority of famous people used horoscopes just like the ones produced by the Association to discover and cultivate their talents and thus gain success and riches. Nearly all successful people use astrologers–politicians, movie stars, businessmen, doctors and lawyers. Many famous scientists were astrologers themselves, such as Sir Issac Newton, Carl Jung and Sigmund Freud. Famous business tycoon J. P. Morgan used astrology to achieve his wealth. He did not make a financial move without consulting his astrologer. Astrology helped the allies win World War II by predicting the enemies moves. A horoscope of Adolf Hitler done on January 30, 1933 exactly predicted the course of World War II. See chapter 30 of the RISE AND FALL OF THE THIRD REICH, by William L. Shirer. Astrology was used to find and keep the successful marriage of Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier. Together, they recently had their horoscopes updated by American astrologer, Keith Clayton.

These rich and famous people are no different than you and I, except for one thing. They weren't forced to use the general astrology carried in paperbacks. They could afford to pay a professional astrologer hundreds of dollars to cast their horoscope from their exact time and place of birth. This special research project has changed all that. Now you too can have your personal natal horoscope cast from your exact time and place of birth.

Here's how it works. The A.A.A. will cast and analyze your natal horoscope. They then check to see if your planet placements fit a group that they wish to research. (People who fit this group can receive extra bonuses by filling out a research questionnaire.) Since your horoscope has already been cast and analyzed for research, you may get it for only a $3.00 charge to cover postage, handling, and the cost of making your duplicate copy. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process, which could cost $300.00, free.

To get your personal natal horoscope thru this special opportunity, simply fill out the research computer form below and mail. Include the $3.00 postage, handling, and coping cost for each horoscope or charge your credit card.

If you're not as astounded with the accuracy of your horoscope as I was with mine, return it and you'll receive every penny of your money back. I've been authorized to tell you that your horoscope is covered by a one year - 365 day - full money back guarantee. If you have any questions, call John F. Ford, President of the American Astrological Association, at (216) 478-2171. He'll be happy to talk with you.

WHY PLANT A GROUND COVER?

In many areas and situations, ground covers are more appropriate and more satisfactory than turf. They are able to grow and thrive in sun OR shade, and in poor soil.

On steep slopes where mowing is difficult, ground cover is much more effective and much less laborious to maintain than grass. Ground covers hold the soil as well as turf and the textures are far more interesting.

Small areas of grass are a continual chore to keep mown and trimmed but ground covers require almost no care. They are excellent protection and soil conditioners. They hold the fallen leaves from blowing away, thus helping to add annually to the humus content.

You will receive hardy northern nursery grown plants carefully packaged to arrive in prime condition. An outstanding buy at less than 20¢ per plant in lots of two dozen!

WHY CREEPING RED SEDUM?

One of Sedum's most valuable assets is its full time beauty. Lush foliage begins in early spring, and star-shaped wine red flowers delight the viewer from late June through September. The attractive semi-evergreen foliage lasts well into winter, maintaining its rich green and bronze color nearly all year round.

Besides being one of the loveliest of the ground covers, Sedum also rates high on the other requirements. It is hardy, grows well in sun or partial shade, in sandy soil, clay soil, or good soil.

Its thick foliage and root system hold the soil on slopes or banks. The neat 3-4" cover forms a dense perennial mat to bring green and wine red beauty to slopes, borders, rocky areas, anywhere beauty and durability are needed.

Each plant will easily and quickly spread to fill one sq. ft. Sedum spreads evenly, maintains its uniform smooth beauty at all stages of growth. Unlike some other ground covers, Sedum, also called "Dragon's Blood," stays where you put it — does not straggle out into places where it doesn't belong. Sedum is almost indestructible, enduring and persisting against heavy climatic and nutritional odds.

FULLY GUARANTEED

All items guaranteed to be of high quality, exactly as advertised and to arrive in good healthy condition or purchase price will be refunded. RETURN SHIPPING LABEL ONLY —you may keep the plants. (One year limit).

SEND this Special Offer Coupon TODAY to receive your Red Sedum and Peonies!

Now is a Good Time to Plant RED SEDUM!

Your young Sedum plants will establish themselves and begin to spread a few days after planting. In a month or so they will already be 3-4 inches in diameter. They may lose their foliage as the first winter progresses but will leaf out again in early spring. During a long growing season they may reach 12" in diameter, always maintaining their neat regulated shape.

People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Do You Dot Your i's?

(It Could Be a Clue to Your Character!)

Jim Jackson

True or False: The size of your signature tells a lot about how you regard yourself. (See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Most people talk the way they write.

2. People with illegible handwriting are likely to be accident-prone.

3. People who stay young despite their advancing years write differently from those who get old before their time.

4. The size of your signature tells a lot about how you regard yourself.

5. If you frequently fail to dot your i's, it indicates you're lacking in self-confidence.

6. You can tell from a person's handwriting whether he's an introvert or an extrovert.

ANSWERS

1. True. In studies in which samples of subjects' voice recordings were compared with their handwriting, many similarities were noted. For example, handwriting of people with loud voices tends to be characterized by bold strokes and heavy pressure. Hesitancy in speech may be reflected in "breaks" in the handwriting, with longer spaces between words. People whose speech is forceful, persuasive, and who try to influence the opinions of others, often underline words when they write to add extra emphasis, and so on.

2. True. University studies have shown that people whose penmanship is characterized by indecipherable scrawls and undisciplined flourishes tend to be more prone to accident than others. This was found to be true even in the case of schoolchildren, where "poor penmen were rated as being restless, impatient and lacking in physical coordination."

3. True. A study of more than 500 subjects of various ages and walks of life has shown that people who retain their vigor and zest for life, irrespective of the number of birthdays they have under their belts, write much faster than those who "feel as old as they are."

4. True. As one behavioral scientist has observed: "A man reveals more than his name in his signature. The writing of his name, an action performed over and over throughout his life, can be seen as a repeated test that indicates that man's estimation of himself." Research at Wesleyan University on groups of people of varying status in life—including blue-collar workers, university students and professors—showed that a man's signature tends to grow appreciably larger as his status increases. Similar studies at Brigham Young University resulted in the same finding.

5. False. A team of investigators at Illinois State University made a psychological study of more than 100 men and women students. Each was given a battery of standard personality tests. Then the handwriting characteristics of each person were carefully tabulated. The characteristic that stood out most significantly as an indicator of personality traits was "missing i dots." The personality tests showed that people who frequently skipped dotting their i's tended to display self-confidence, self-sufficiency, non-submissiveness, an outgoing temperament and an interest in and liking for other people.

6. True. In psychological studies that compared handwriting characteristics with the results of personality tests, it was found that the handwriting of introverts and extroverts tended to differ markedly in one particular respect: the size of the handwriting. The extrovert's writing was appreciably larger than the average introvert's. The study showed, however, that the handwriting of both introverts and extroverts is affected by personality conflicts, emotional crises, neuroses, and so forth. fw

Do you suffer from painful elimination?

First of all, you should know that you are not alone. Thousands of people experience pain from dry, hard stools. The reason is often constipation or hemorrhoids. What's needed is something that will soften intestinal waste for smooth, comfortable relief.

And that's exactly what Serutan does. Serutan is a softening laxative that helps relieve painful elimination. It forms a smooth, mild gel that supplies moisture and bulk to bring effective relief without strain or griping.

Serutan is the same formula as the laxative prescribed by many doctors to give their patients the relief they want with real comfort.

Do you suffer from painful elimination? Try the Serutan way to gentle regularity. Soon you should discover that elimination can be as smooth, easy and comfortable as nature intended.

When People Criticize— How to Come Out Ahead

By Robin Worthington

"I'm only telling you for your own good. . . ." "Now, please don't take this personally, but. . . ."

Instinctively, when we hear those words, most of us cringe. We know what's coming–the put-down.

Yet we don't have to let criticism damage our self-esteem. We can't do much to change our critics, but we can change our own response to criticism. Instead of consenting to let criticism tear us down, we can make criticism work for us.

"The key to coping with criticism is to evaluate it," say the human-behavior experts. Easier said than done? Right, but you can find help as close as your nearest dime store. Carla, an attractive young wife I know, did just that.

"I used to pretend I didn't even hear criticism," she confided. "But by myself, I'd brood. Was I really as bad a housekeeper as my mother-in-law said? Was I really as much of a klutz at the card table as my husband said?

"One day I decided to get firm with myself. I marched down to the dime store and bought a spiral notebook. I started writing down what people criticized me for–the way some people keep track of calories.

"At first I was scared–it seemed such a negative thing to do. Then I discovered I felt very brave writing everything down. I could decide for myself whether my critics were right–or if I cared. For instance, my husband's criticism about my bridge-playing–I decided he was right! I do play badly, and bridge is important to us. So I signed up for bridge lessons, and I'm improving already.

"Buying that notebook changed my life. Now I'm finding out what I think is important instead of getting upset because I can't please everyone."

There are several ways we can improve our ability to cope with criticism. Here are some guidelines:

1. When you're criticized, stall for time. Take a deep breath. When you're under stress, you tend to breathe shallowly and rapidly. If you inhale and exhale deeply, you not only increase your sense of well-being, but you play for time before answering your critic–whether boss, wife or boyfriend.

2. Is the criticism really directed at you? Next time criticism seems misplaced, ask yourself if you're the cause of the other's wrath or merely the object. Maybe your critic is really mad about commuting traffic or inflation or taxes.

As one wife says, "Life got simpler the day my husband admitted he isn't mad at me when he pays the bills–but he doesn't have anyone else to shout at."

3. Evaluate your critic's competence. Your neighbor criticizes your taste in home furnishings, but she wouldn't know a Picasso from a planter box. Don't seethe, just shrug. If your boss criticizes your sales report, listen. If he tells you how to raise your children better, his criticism may be no more valid than that of your maiden aunt Martha.

4. Consider your critic's motives. Some people think they pull themselves up by pulling others down. If you realize that their criticisms often reflect their own fears, it's easier to remain calm. If your co-worker criticizes your skirts as too short, maybe she's worried about her own attractiveness.

5. Your critics could be right. All your critics won't be wrong all the time. If you've heard a certain criticism many times before, it just might be true. And, as marriage counselor Dr. Allan Fromme says, "We are not adults if we cannot face a moment of truth with ourselves."

6. Motivate yourself — the right way. Motivation experts tell us it doesn't help to make vague resolutions like, "I won't let criticism bother me." To make criticism work for you, evaluate the criticism, then write down your action decision in one simple, positive phrase on a 3x5 card. Keep the card where you'll see it during the day–on your mirror or in a desk drawer. Every time you see the card, reaffirm your decision.

Oh, yes–then give yourself a pat on the back each time you follow through on your decision to make criticism work for you. fw

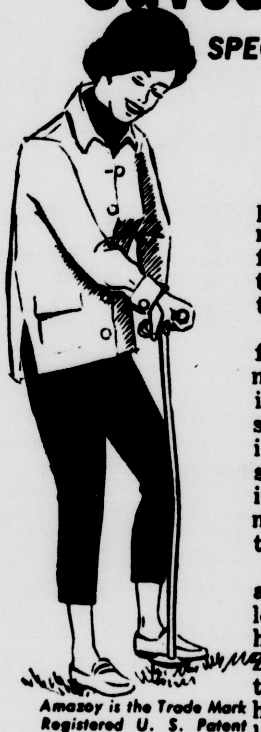
Lady Plugs In Zoysia Grass Saves Time Work & Money



Amazoy is the Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office for our Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass.

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER! ORDER NOW AND GET UP TO 200 PLUGS FREE!

By Mike Senkiw
Agronomist

Every year I watch people pour time and money into lawns that fail them just when they want their lawns the most.

I see them reseed, feed, water, weed and mow, mow, mow! When it turns to hay in midsummer, I feel like calling out, "For Heaven's sake, when are you going to stop throwing money away and switch to Zoysia Grass."

In comparison, I'm always happy to get letters from people who have plugged in my Zoysia Grass, because they write to tell me how beautiful their lawns are even in midsummer heat and drought.

IT'S AS HARDY AS BEAUTIFUL!

A typical Zoysia owner, Mrs. Harry Winslowe in the heart of wintry New England tells how she got rid of weeds with Zoysia: "We had a lawn that was a disgrace. My husband used weed killer for every known weed—but next season new weeds sprang up. We dug the lawn up twice and re-seeded before we learned about Zoysia. It does everything you say . . . how pleased we are with our Zoysia lawn."

And from Iowa came word that the State's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn—nearly perfect" in the area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August.

Cuts Your Work, Saves You Money

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement . . . ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by 2/3.

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick rich, luxurious Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long. It will NOT winter kill. Goes off its green color after killing frost, regains fresh new beauty every Spring—a true perennial!

FOR SLOPES, PLAY AREAS, BARE SPOTS

If slopes are a problem, just plug in Amazoy. When established, it will end erosion—also plug it into hard-to-cover spots, play-worn areas, etc.

YOUR OWN SUPPLY OF PLUG TRANSPLANTS

Your established turf provides you with Zoysia plugs for other areas as you may desire.

WEAR RESISTANT

Your Amazoy lawn takes such wear as cook-outs, lawn parties, lawn furniture, etc. Grows so thick you could play football on it and not get your feet muddy. Even if children play on it, they won't hurt it—or themselves.

NO SEED, NO SOD!

Do not mistake Amazoy pre-cut plugs for sod or seed of any type of grass. There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass carries with it the same problems as seed—such as weed, diseases, frequent mowing, burning out, etc.

Order now for Bonus Plugs Free; earliest delivery at planting time in your area. Each order is shipped the same day as taken from the soil, shipping charge collect, via most economical means.

MEYER Z-52 ZOYSIA GRASS WAS PERFECTED BY U.S. GOVT. • APPROVED BY U.S. GOLF ASSOC.

PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into holes in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checker board style. Every plug 3 sq. inches.

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth, including weeds. Easy planting instructions with order.

No Need To Rip Out Present Grass

Plug my Zoysia into an entire lawn or limited "problem areas." With the same leaf color and appearance as blue grass, it will blend perfectly. Plug it into poor soil, "builder's soil," clay or sandy soils — even salty, beach areas, pool areas and I guarantee it to grow!

Every Plug Guaranteed to Grow In your Soil In your Area

- WON'T WINTER KILL—has survived temperatures 30° below zero!
- WON'T HEAT KILL—When other grasses burn out, Amazoy stays green and lovely!

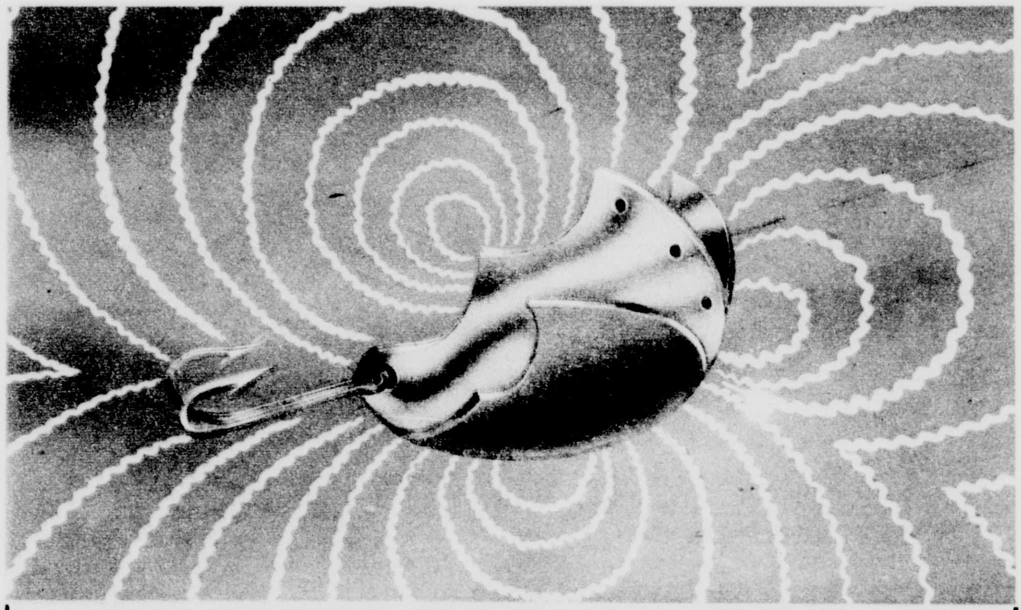
Weird New Sonic Lure Caught Fish Like Crazy!

By Lyman Walton, Co-Inventor
As Told to Paul Stag, The Weekend Fisherman

Think of it! My new VIBRATING LURE gives loud, GURGLING, SPLASHING, BUBBLING sounds as you skitter it along the surface of the water! Sends out up to 200 vibrations every minute underneath that water! Looks COMPLETELY UNLIKE ANYTHING THAT ANY FRESH WATER FISH HAS SEEN BEFORE.

And has already used this weird sight and weird sound and weird sonic vibrations — in one of its very first Summer trials — to lure fish into attacking it so savagely that they actually knocked it out of the water. Hauled in trout, bass, muskie, walleye, and pike, even when other lures had caught little or no fish right next to it! Here's why —



THIS IS AN ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF THE VIBRA-BAT LURE AND IT'S SONIC EFFECT UNDER WATER! I believe it to be irresistible to fish! Try it entirely at our risk!

CAUGHT! 120 FISH IN ONE HOUR!

Yes! Imagine that YOU were there — at Cattail Lake, Illinois, on August 20, 1961. A hot summer day! A beautiful stream-fed pond — 90 by 60 feet wide! Fishermen trying lures, flies, natural bait! But despite the fact that this is a stocked trout farm with no limit, there is only an occasional strike. It looks like a wasted day!

And then, three die-hard friends decide to try their luck with me! We start to cast from the edge of the water. At the end of our lines is an ENTIRELY DIFFERENT LURE — a weird little metal monster that casts like a bullet, and flutters back through the water like a drowning bat!

EVEN EXPERIENCED FISHERMEN WATCHED IN AMAZEMENT!

Almost at once THAT QUIET WATER EXPLODES INTO ACTION! The first strike causes a shout of excitement! And then a second strike! A third, fourth, sixth, seventh, eighth! Beautiful rainbows and browns still shimmering from the water — being pulled in at the rate of more than one every minute!

Now the water is almost exploding with fish striking! Sometimes four and five trout savagely attack one lure at the same time! Fifty — seventy — ninety fish are caught and released! People along the shore stop to watch the spectacle!

Meet Lyman Walton
co-inventor of the amazing VIBRA-BAT LURE.

In one short hour, we have caught and released 120 fish! All WITH the very same weird little lure that can go to work for you next week, without your risking a penny!

WHAT'S THE SECRET? UNDERWATER SONIC VIBRATIONS!

Why did this bat-shaped lure catch fish by the stringer-full — even after ordinary lures, and natural bait have caught little or nothing? For this simple reason —

Because this lure gives off unique GURGLING, BUBBLING, SPLASHING SURFACE NOISES — plus up to 200 sonic vibrations every minute underneath that water — that I believe FISH FIND IRRESISTIBLE!

Yes! I am certain that sonic pulsations are the answer to every fisherman's prayer. I have studied the Navy Fish Biologist reports about the sounds fish make between themselves in the water! I have seen fish follow the propellers of a boat as though they were hypnotized by the sound!

And I have always believed that if I could take those gurgling, bubbling, splashing surface sounds and underwater vibrations — that actually seemed to CALL FISH TO THEM — and build that sound into a "Vibrating Lure" then it could haul in eye-popping catches, even where ordinary lures had caught little or nothing at all! Even in hard-fished waters where the wise old fish run away from ordinary lures!

JUST READ THESE FISH-CATCHING ACHIEVEMENTS! TRY IT AT OUR RISK!

Yes! Research showed me that lures, like fish, create Sonic Vibrations in the water by their movements! So I have designed a lure that I estimate FLUTTERS THROUGH THAT WATER UP TO 200 TIMES A MINUTE! Wing-shaped — bat-like — JERKING AND FLUTTERING MADLY THROUGH THAT WATER — SENDING OUT IRRESISTIBLE SONIC WAVES — GURGLING, SPLASHING, BUBBLING SURFACE SOUNDS THAT TRAVEL THROUGH WATER IN EVERY DIRECTION, AT THE RATE OF 4,760 FEET EVERY SECOND, THE ACTUAL SPEED OF SOUND UNDER WATER!

No wonder this "VIBRA-BAT" lure caught a 10 pound 7½ ounce Northern on one of its first tests — only moments after it hit the water — hauled in six bass in sixty minutes in another test, all 2½ pounds or larger — pulled in perch by the dozens in a third test at Belmont Harbor, Illinois, even after live bait and lures had scarcely a strike, and CONTINUED to land so many fish, so quickly, THAT FISHERMEN WATCHED IN AMAZEMENT!

No wonder our tests show this revolutionary new lure hauls in trout, bass, muskie, walleye, pike, salmon and other fresh water fish even in hard fished waters — produces strikes even when other fishermen alongside it are going almost unrewarded!

AMAZING 6-MONTH TRIAL OFFER

You simply cannot believe the fish-catching powers of this amazing lure until you try it yourself, FOR 6 FULL MONTHS ENTIRELY AT OUR RISK! We cannot guarantee, of course, that these amazing VIBRA-BAT SONIC LURES will produce for you in every pond, river or lake everytime you go fishing BUT WE DO GUARANTEE that these VIBRA-BAT LURES will definitely catch MORE fish for you . . . make you agree that this is the greatest little lure you've ever used — OR SIMPLY RETURN THEM ANYTIME WITHIN SIX FULL MONTHS FOR EVERY CENT OF YOUR PURCHASE PRICE BACK!

You and you alone are the only judge! You have nothing to lose! Send in the Six Month Trial Coupon TODAY!

SPECIAL NOTICE

Harrison Industries has told on this page the amazing story of the VIBRA-BAT as related to us by Lyman Walton.

We have received signed statements from Lyman Walton and other fishermen that these facts are correct.

Incidentally — the words "Gurgling — Splashing — Bubbling" are Walton's particular translation of the weird sound. Actually no two fishermen would agree on a description of this sound. But you will agree on its amazing results, or your money back!

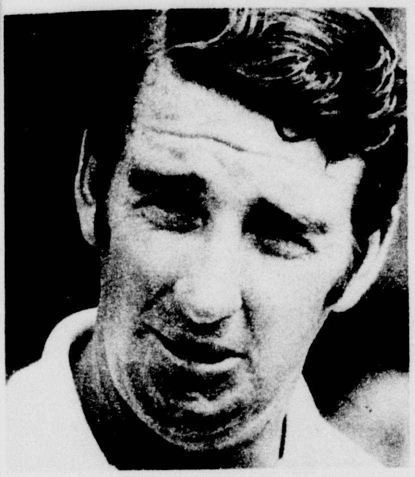
J. C. SNEAD:

"My Uncle's Like a Father to Me"



A broken ankle turned out to be a blessing for Jesse Carlyle Snead. It convinced him to give up baseball and switch to golf. That switch has brought the name "Snead" back into athletic prominence. J. C.'s uncle is Sam Snead, one of golf's all-time greats. . . . Sam didn't influence his nephew to take up the game. "When I was in school, people were always throwing it up to me about being a Snead," J. C. recalls. "I got tired of hearing it. I'd answer, 'So what if my name is Snead? I'm not a golfer!'" To get out from Uncle's shadow, J. C. picked baseball and played three seasons for a Washington Senators' farm team. The broken ankle helped convince him that he couldn't make the big leagues. He decided to forget his sensitivity and follow his uncle's trail. . . . As a youngster, J. C. rarely got to see his famous uncle. It was only when J. C. turned to golf full-time that his uncle provided coaching tips. J. C. has won nearly $100,000 on the tour during each of the last two seasons. "Sam's just like a father to me now," J. C. says. . . . When J.C. started on the golf tour, he couldn't find any sponsors to back him. Uncle Sam thought this was a good thing. "He was helped by the fact that he had nobody to lean on. It made him determined to become as great a golfer as possible," Sam points out. . . . In appearance, J. C. and Sam don't look related. J. C. is bigger and heavier. Nor can J.C.'s golf swing match the grace and rhythm Uncle Sam used to display. But what J. C. lacks in style, he more than makes up for in power.

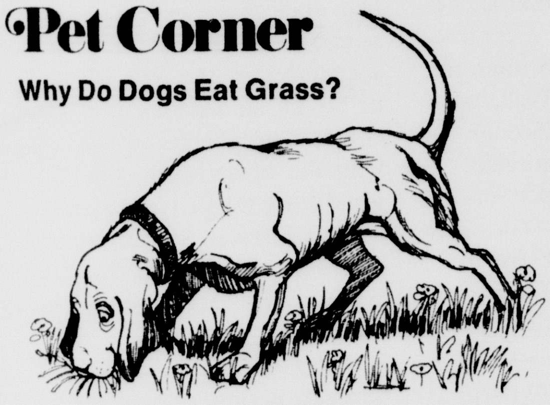
Why Do Dogs Eat Grass?



City dogs often gorge themselves on grass the minute they feel the green stuff between their toes. Country dogs find it less of a novelty and are apt to munch more moderately. Opinions differ as to why dogs eat grass. Some authorities think it is because they need a tonic; others believe Bowser is trying to get vitamins and minerals or a little roughage for his gastrointestinal tract. Whatever the reason, there is nothing basically wrong with grass-eating unless it is carried to extremes. If Bowser overindulges this vegetarian diet, the grass can wad up and irritate his stomach. He may then regurgitate the stuff. To be sure Bowser is getting all his vitamins, feed him a quality commercial dog food and not table scraps.—By Felicia Ames

Childbirth in 1974: Eight Things Every Young Parent Should Know

By David Hartman

David Hartman: "There are things many of us parents and potential parents could do and should do to insure that we have the healthiest babies possible."

When the ABC television network asked me to do an hour and a half show for "The Wide World of Entertainment," I said I would—if I could pick the subject. The subject I chose was "Birth and Babies." It will be aired on March 20.

Why did I pick this subject? It interests me. Someday I hope to marry and have children. And there are things many of us as parents and potential parents could do and should do to insure that we have the healthiest babies possible.

I am not a doctor. I watched and learned like any other layman as we filmed at Cedars of Lebanon Division, Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, Los Angeles. Dr. Philip Brooks was the obstetrician-gynecologist who delivered the baby and Dr. Donald Lacky was the pediatrician who looked after the newborn infant. I was most impressed by these men, who seemed fired with renewed enthusiasm each time they delivered and cared for a newborn infant.

The following are salient points—some old hat, some new—that I learned and think should be passed on:

1. Every birth must be treated on its own terms. Each is different. And the more the medical team that officiate know about the father and mother and fetus, the better prepared they are.

2. Having a baby a few years ago was like giving birth in the Dark Ages. Today parents can work and study together to understand the development of the fetus and to know what to do during labor. The father is, in a way, a coach, and his presence not only lends strength to the mother during labor, but brings the family together at its greatest moment of joy.

3. Labor is defined as hard work—and it is. A basic principle of physics has to be overcome to give birth. Women sometimes get so intrigued by what is happening to them that a contraction may catch them unaware. And for the man? Well, what the woman goes through is nothing less than a miracle!

4. The mental attitude of the mother at the time of birth is very important, and correct guidance during her pregnancy and knowledge of exactly what is going on alleviate her anxiety. This, in turn, minimizes the need for medication.

> "Having a baby a few years ago was like giving birth in the Dark Ages."

5. Monitoring devices are now employed so that one can tell exactly how the fetus is reacting to what is going on during labor. Any sign of distress can be detected immediately.

6. The delivery is a team effort, not only on the part of the father, who coaches the mother in breathing and bearing down, but by the anesthetist, nurses and doctors as well. The neonatologist—a pediatrician who specializes in the first 28 days or so of an infant's life—also comes onto the scene. He can help the obstetrician-gynecologist during the delivery by positioning the fetus, keeping an eye on the monitoring and then taking over the care of the infant after birth.

7. After the birth, the woman needs a period of time to get acquainted with this new human being who simply didn't exist such a short time before. Everyone—mother, father and infant—has adjustments to make.

8. Babies are not merely small adults. They are unique. Babies in trouble need specialized care, specialized equipment. It behooves all parents to know if their newborn child might need this care. If it is suspected that the baby might, they should find out where to get it. The obstetrician is the one to ask. fw

How to keep your money from being MURDERED!

by Gary Halbert

© 1974 Good News Publishing Co.

If you are lucky enough to have any money set aside for a rainy day and you're keeping it in a savings account, you are really loosing money hand over fist.

Your money is probably earning about 5¼ per cent interest. Since inflation is averaging 8 per cent to 10 per cent a year, you are not even breaking even. And the way things are going this year it can only get worse.

Do you realize that you have to spend $1.49 to buy as much steak as you could buy for a dollar only a few months ago?

If you have any money invested in the stock market, you are really asking for it. Eighteen months ago Winnebago was considered one of the safest of the blue chip stocks on the New York Stock Exchange. A thousand dollars invested in this "safe" stock only a year and a half ago, as of this writing, would have shrunk to $145.00. And hundreds of stocks have done even worse.

What about U.S. Savings Bonds? As an investment they are really a joke. Ten years ago if you had invested $1,000.00 of your hard earned money in series "E" government bonds you would have by now earned only $7.44 a year in purchasing power.

Well, how about keeping your money hidden in an old sock under the mattress? Had you tucked away a thousand dollars in this manner in 1957, by now your purchasing power would have dropped a full 40 per cent. Are things about to get better?

No way.

The year 1974 promises to produce the highest inflation rate in the last 22 years. Prices, as you may have noticed, are going no where but up. Some, like meat and gasoline are going right out of sight. The plain fact is that your money is in more danger right now that at anytime since 1929.

Is there a way out? Is there any place at all to put your money where it is safe? Where will it earn enough interest to keep ahead of inflation? Where you can get at it instantly in case of an emergency? Is there?

You bet there is!

The answer is going to surprise you. The best place to keep your money is probably the same place you are keeping it now. In your bank in a savings account. You've got to start doing things a little differently, however.

Here is just one of the things you can do if you know how. You can go to your bank, take out your savings, fill out a new deposit ticket, put the money right back into another savings account and increase the interest on your savings from 6 to 15 per cent. All in one day! Hard to believe isn't it? But this is just the beginning.

Listen to all of this!

- When you open a new account you can get ten bank gifts instead of one.
- You can withdraw your money and still earn interest on it.
- You can have two savings accounts paying you interest at the same time on the same money.
- You can earn interest on money you have spent months ago.
- You can earn more money on your checking account than most people earn on their savings accounts.
- You can earn interest on the money other people have on deposit.

All of this is perfectly legal. Everything you will be doing is not only permitted but actually encouraged by banks and other financial institutions because the more money you make the more money they make. In fact, they use these techniques themselves. And during all this, your money will be insured 100 per cent by the U.S. Government. All of this is carefully explained in a new book titled, "How to Rob a Bank Without a Gun."

The book was written by an Ohio school teacher named George Jenney as part of a research project for a publishing company. The book is easy-to-read, easy-to-understand, and can lead you step-by-step to a new financial independence. The book is not now available at book stores or newsstands.

You can get a copy if you hurry by sending your name and address and $6.95 in cash, check, or money order payable to The Good News Publishing Co., Dept. No. 1095. 7576 Freedom Ave., N.W., North Canton, Ohio 44720.

The book will be sent to you promptly by return mail. The publisher guarantees that this book will show you how to at least double the earning power of your money.

If not, or for any reason you are dissatisfied, you can return the book for a full and immediate refund of your entire purchase price. You can't lose.

Send for the book today. Remember, now more than ever you have a real money fight on your hands and it is only going to get worse.

Here is a chance to put the odds on your side.

CHUCK CONNORS
A blanket security system

A pistol-packer on film (and rifle-slinger on TV reruns), Chuck Connors also keeps a gun next to his bed in his home. In fact, he has one of the most intricate security systems in all of Los Angeles. "I have everything from closed-circuit TV to a Westinghouse Alarm System that sets off an alarm and alerts the security guard; two German police dogs, a searchlight that can immediately light up the whole place and a shotgun next to my bed. No one," he adds, "has ever penetrated my defense." With that kind of setup, who would dare try?

RON BLOMBERG & PETE GOGOLAK
Hair's the thing . . .

Do you laugh at TV commercials that show professional athletes in locker rooms discussing hair sprays, hair creams and hair dyes? Well, maybe it's more serious than you think. Recently Ron Blomberg, the left-handed power hitter for the New York Yankees, got himself a "weave job"—a complicated process by which hair is woven into the already existing tufts to cover the bald spots on top. Football star Pete Gogolak of the New York Giants has the opposite problem. He has his hair, but he's a compulsive comber. The last thing he does before going on the field is to run a comb through his locks. In his new autobiography, Gogolak writes: "A thousand guys have said to me: 'This is one hell of a time for you to be worrying about your hair,' and I agree with them. It is." But, he explains, long, messy hair "could spoil my concentration. I don't want hair flapping around my neck when I'm trying to make a 50-yard field goal. Besides, long hair is a pain after a game. I don't want to spend half an hour getting my hair dry enough to go outside." From "Nothing to Kick About," by Peter Gogolak with Joseph Carter (Dodd, Mead & Co., $6.95).

Jadee started out as a Playboy bunny in 1962. She is now a "bunny mother," supervising the 96 beautiful bunnies of New York's Playboy Club. "At the time I started," says Jadee, "wearing the bunny costume was very sexy and risqué, but now the outfit looks like a bathing suit. People, including the families that come in, are looking for service in a nice, clean atmosphere and not sex, sex, sex. In fact, bunnies have lost some of their mystique, but we've always stressed personality anyway. If I had a daughter, I'd think twice about encouraging her to be a bunny. It's a lucrative job and the hours are flexible, but it's totally physical and exhausting. I reached a point where I didn't want to carry around 30-pound trays of glassware, throw together salads and take out food. But I like what I'm doing now."

ARMOUR'S ARMOURY

CAN DO

Our trash can quickly filled with trash.
We bought a second, feeling rash.
That trash can filled, in just a wink.
Does trash, then, swell? Do trash cans
  shrink?

Although it seemed a bit absurd,
We did, in time, procure a third,
And that too filled up to the top
With trash each week. Where will it stop?

With trash I stuff each can and rant:
The thing is not a can but can't.

The big-city reporter asked the small-town editor why people bought his newspaper, since they already knew what everybody in the town had done that week. "They buy the paper," the rural editor explained, "because they want to find out which ones got caught."

A traveler in the mountains of West Virginia stopped to talk with a woman sitting on her porch one bright autumn day. They both were admiring the breathtaking view of forests and hills, the smoke rising from the chimney of a distant cabin, the tilled fields on the steep hillsides, the woods filled with game, a fresh creek gurgling nearby.

"This," said the stranger, awed, "surely is heaven."

The woman, with full knowledge of the hardships of rural living, made a face. "It's heaven if you're a man or a dog," she said. "But it's hell if you're a woman or a mule." —Dan Bennett

Wife missing more than 24 hours

Banker pleads with kidnapers for some word

LINO LAKES, Minn. (UPI) — A distraught banker, standing in the cold in front of his country home, Saturday appealed "earnestly and intensely" to his wife's kidnapers to contact him, adding, "Eunice, I love you."

"I've heard nothing further from her abductors," said Gunnar Kronholm, 60, who has said he would comply with any demand they made.

"It's been 24 hours now. They've passed very painfully, I can assure you," he told a news conference outside his home where family members gathered to comfort him.

"Earnestly and intensely I plead with the abductors to make some form of contact. I beg of you to do this," he said.

Then Kronholm, his voice breaking, addressed his wife: "Eunice, I love you, and all of us offer prayers on your behalf."

It was Kronholm's second news conference since the disappearance of his 46-year-old wife which was followed by a telephoned threat to raise all the money he could.

Kronholm's son, Mark, a goalie for the Notre Dame hockey team, had not been reached and apparently wasn't aware of the abduction, the banker said.

Kronholm's gold-haired wife disappeared Friday. He said he became concerned when he was unable to reach her in several calls to his home and that in the afternoon he received a call from a man who said: "We have your wife. Deliver all the money you have to a station at . . ."

The banker said he didn't understand the rest of what was said before the caller hung up.

He said the FBI assured him it would not interfere with any instructions he received to pay ransom.

"In fact," he said, "I'm asking that no one interfere."

Mrs. Kronholm told her husband before he left for his office Friday that she had "several things to do" during the day. They planned to meet in the afternoon.

Kronholm is president of the Drover's State Bank in South St. Paul. the couple has six children, none living at home.

The Kronholm home in this woodland area dotted with lakes on the north side of St. Paul is a green ranch style building at the end of a winding two-mile tree-lined road.

Lino Lakes is across the twin cities from Wayzata, where the sensational and still unsolved Piper kidnaping occurred in August of 1972.

Virginia Piper, wife of the board chairman of an investment company, was taken from their suburban home and a $1 million ransom was demanded. The money was paid and she was found alive—chained to a tree. The abductors were not caught, but from time to time marked bills paid the kidnapers turned up in business places and banks in Minnesota.

Closer to embargo lift

Lower oil price—Saudi; answer is 'no'

VIENNA (UPI) — Saudi Arabia called Saturday for a decrease in the price of crude oil beginning April 1, but Iran said the world's oil exporters would not lower their prices.

The announcement by Iranian Finance Minister Jamshid Amouzegar came as the Arab world moved closer to the probable lifting the oil boycott against the United States.

Earlier, Saudi Arabian oil minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani said he made the proposal to lower prices at a meeting of ministers of the 12-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), which produces 85 per cent of the world's oil exports.

Yamani told newsmen that Arab oil ministers would meet separately in Vienna today to decide conditions for lifting their oil embargo against the United States.

"The embargo will be lifted," Yamani said. The ban on shipments of Arab oil to the United States was imposed last October because of U.S. support of Israel during the 1973 Middle East war.

OPEC officials said Saudi Arabia, the world's largest oil exporter, wanted Middle East crude oil posted prices to go down from $11.65 to $10 a barrel. Libya and Algeria were pressing for an increase of up to $14 per barrel, OPEC officials said. Venezuela—a principal U.S. supplier—opposed any cuts.

Amouzegar, who was asked by newsmen if prices of crude oil would be reduced, increased or frozen at present levels, said that: "One thing I can say for certain is that prices will not go down."

Amouzegar made his remarks after a six-hour conference of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) to fix crude oil prices for the second quarter of 1974.

"The prices may go up. They may remain the same. But certainly they should not go down," Venezuelan mines minister Valentin Hernandez said in an interview.

He said no decision on prices had been reached during the ministers' three-and-a-half hour morning session. The conference also met in afternoon session.

OPEC member nations—Abu Dhabi, Algeria, Ecuador, Indonesia, Iran, Iraq, Klwait, Libya, Nigeria, Qatar, Saudi Arabia and Venezuela—tripled their prices in the past five months, pushing up gasoline prices in some countries by more than 100 per cent.

Shur-r-r and it's a great day for the Irish

By United Press International

America's Irish began St. Patrick's Day celebrations a day early Saturday with a showing of the green in two of the nation's biggest cities—New York and Chicago.

Louisville, Ky., had its first St. Patrick's Day parade since 1916—revived by Mayor Harvey I. Sloane whose wife, Kathy, is Irish.

The parade in Sacramento, Calif., was joined by two male nude streakers. One of them was arrested and charged with indecent exposure and resisting arrest.

Boston will hold its parade Sunday, as will Annapolis, Md., and many other communities.

Crowds up to 10-deep lined Fifth Avenue to observe New York City's 212th annual parade.

It was a day for bagpipes, marching bands, and highstepping baton twirlers celebrating the holiday of more than one million New Yorkers of Irish background.

Mayor Abraham Beame, Gov. Malcolm Wilson and most other politicians were on hand to march or view the proceedings.

"It's great to be here among my fellow Irishmen,' quipped Beame, the city's first Jewish mayor.

Among the generally amiable crowds, only one heckler chided the mayor's choice of the British luxury liner, the Queen Elizabeth II, as the site for his upcoming birthday celebration.

"Change your party to an Irish ship," yelled one man, who said he was a member of the National Association for Irish Freedom.

It snowed on Mayor Richard J. Daley's Chicago spectacle, replete with 70,000 marchers and 50 floats. The parade route, State Street, sported green stripes.

Five Irish International Airlines stewardesses and Irish Consul General Timothy Corcoran presented Daley with a bowl of shamrocks picked in Ireland.

Chino, Industry herds infected

Harmful bacteria found in raw milk

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — County health officials Saturday urged all persons buying raw milk during the week to return it because a second batch of samples from a dairy have been found to contain bacteria.

A sample of raw milk from the Alta-Dena Dairy's City of Industry herd was tested Saturday and Salmonella Dublin bacterium, which causes a severe intestinal infection, was found, the Health Department said.

The County Milk Commission ordered the infected milk to be pasteurized. They said the treatment removes the disease danger.

Salmonella Dublin bacteria is especially harmful to sick persons and infants, the health department said.

The City of Industry herd has more than 1,000 cows, but it was not known how many of the cows had the bacteria, health officials said.

The milk commission Friday ordered raw milk from Alta-Dena Dairy's herd in Chino to be pasteurized because six cows in that herd were found by blood tests to have Brucellosis, a similar disease to Salmonella Dublin.

Raw milk from the herd was banned from sale in San Bernardino County because the cows were a possible carrier of Brucellosis. But the milk was placed on sale in Los Angeles County all week with the knowledge of the milk commission.

The commission ordered milk from the herd to be pasteurized before sale here.

The infected cows were killed.

The commission lifted its original pasteurization order early in the week because tests of the milk showed no signs of brucellosis organisms. But they reversed their decision Friday and placed the restriction for treatment of the milk before allowing it for sale in the county.

Pilot runs out of gas, lands in Claremont field

CLAREMONT — A Burbank pilot became a victim of the energy crisis when he was forced to make an unscheduled landing in a vacant field on Indian Hill Boulevard, just south of the San Bernardino Freeway Saturday night.

William Townsend, 35, ran out of fuel and force-landed his single-engine Cessna 150 plane about 6 p.m., police said. Townsend and his passenger, Carol Sawyer, 28, of Ontario, were not injured and the plane was not damaged, officers indicated.

The plane's gas gauge indicated the pilot had half a tank left, police added, but it apparently was a faulty gauge.

Townsend was flying from Catalina Island, he said, headed for Cable Airport in Upland.

Claremont police were forced into an unfamiliar role, also, of "baby-sitting" the aircraft for several hours until Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) officials arrived to investigate the landing.

UNSCHEDULED LANDING

William Townsend, 35, pilot of single-engine Cessna 150 that force-landed in vacant field off Indian Hill Boulevard south of San Bernardino Freeway Saturday night, seems happy to have escaped injury. He talked things over with passenger, Carol Sawyer, after landing. Plane ran out of fuel enroute to Upland.

A LITTLE COUNTRY MUSIC, FOLKS

President Nixon provides own accompaniment as he sings on stage Saturday at the opening performance of the Grand Ole Opry at its new location in Nashville, Tenn.

Nixon makes it a night at the Grand Ole Opry

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — President Nixon played "Happy Birthday" to his wife and "God Bless America" to the crowd on the piano Saturday night, highlighting a gala opening of the Grand Ole Opry's new $15 million home here.

Nixon and his wife took the stage along with Roy Acuff to a thunderous ovation from 4,400 persons attending the opening of the new Opry House, and the President won the audience when he pulled a yellow yo yo out of his pocket, began yo yoing, and quipped, "I just learned to play this thing."

The yo yo had been given to him by Acuff, who likes to twirl it between numbers when he is on stage.

After Mrs. Tex Ritter, widow of the country music great, presented Mrs. Nixon with a dulcimer, a stringed instrument, Acuff turned to the President and said, "It would be very appropriate if you would play the piano for us."

Nixon replied, "In this very professional company, I am embarrassed," but he sat down and played "Happy Birthday" for Mrs. Nixon, who celebrated her 62nd birthday Saturday. Then, warming to the keys, he played "My Wild Irish Rose."

Nixon brought the house down when he said someone once told him that the only thing stronger than country moonshine was country music, and added, "I saw two fellows outside combining the two and, believe me, that was strong."

Nixon said people had traveled from all over the country for the opening of country music's new home, but he said Mrs. Nixon claimed the record. "My wife flew 5,000 miles from Brazil to get here," he said, referring to her return from a six-day Latin American journey.

'Keeping my word, I want Patty home,' Hearst says

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Randolph A. Hearst said Saturday he was keeping his word to the kidnapers of his 20-year-old daughter and doing everything he can to meet their demands.

"The one thing I want above all is to get Patty home as quickly as possible," Hearst said.

Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner and son of the late newspaper giant William Randolph Hearst, issued a brief written statement at his home in suburban Hillsborough.

His daughter, Patricia, was abducted from her Berkeley apartment Feb. 4 by a terrorist group calling itself the Symbionese Liberation Army.

In his written statement, Hearst dealt with the demand of two imprisoned SLA members, Russell Little, 26, and Joseph Remiro, 27, that they be allowed to appear on nationwide television with a proposal for freeing the kidnaped girl.

He also explained why the food ransom program set up in an attempt to win his daughter's freedom had been suspended temporarily. The statement was made in response to the fifth taped communique received from the SLA by the Hearsts a week ago.

"Earlier this week I stated that I would have a detailed response to the latest communique from the SLA," Hearst said.

"My reason for not doing so to date is that this last message is more complicated than previous messages in that it deals with more objectives. As an example, the People in Need program (of food distribution) has been temporarily halted so that the next distribution will concur more fully with the SLA demands.

"I am doing all I can to facilitate the appearance of Remiro and Little in a televised news conference. I believe such an appearance can be very helpful to the release of Patricia. Unfortunately, these things take time as the people involved include lawyers, judges, district attorneys and sheriffs.

"I have not broken my word to the SLA, and I am doing everything I can to carry out their demands. The one thing I want above all is to get Patty home as quickly as possible, and, I repeat, I am doing all I can to bring that about."

Remiro and Little went to court last Wednesday across the bay in Martinez seeking permission for the national television appearance. A judge is scheduled to rule on their petition Tuesday. As the two came into court in shackles, their attorney admitted theirs was a "most unique and unprecedented request."

Two days ago A. Ludlow Kramer, director of the People in Need program, said the giveaway was near an end for lack of funds. He said the food distribution scheduled for sometime next week could be the last.

But gas could cost 70 cents a gallon

End of the gas shortage—maybe

By ROBERT F. BUCKHORN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The end of the Arab oil embargo will sharply reduce the gasoline shortage and make the government's rationing plan obsolete, but the price of gasoline will rise to record highs, energy officials agree.

There may be secondary economic effects. President Nixon has said the oil embargo was a primary cause for inflation and the decrease in automobile sales and housing.

The first effect of the lifting of the embargo is expected to be the end of Sunday gas station closings, which have had a sharp effect on the tourist industry.

Gasoline station operators also will be free to fill up a motorists' tank rather than selling gas only if the tank is less than half full, the officials predict.

But other conservation measures — the 55-mile-an-hour speed limit, and the fuel allocation program —will stay in effect.

John C. Sawhill, deputy administrator of the Federal Energy Office, said the new supply of Arab oil could cut the U.S. shortage as low as 2 to 4 per cent compared to a high in recent months of 14 to 20 per cent. He said the gasoline allocation program would remain in effect through the summer.

But if gasoline is to become more plentiful, it will cost more. Some experts predict gasoline could rise as high as 70 cents a gallon.

The first shipments of Arab oil probably will not arrive in the U.S. for four to six weeks after the embargo is lifted. The major reason is simply transportation.

A tanker must reach a Saudi Arabian port, load its cargo of oil, and then travel 11,000 miles to U.S. ports. Many U.S. ports are not equipped to handle supertankers, which must then unload their oil in the Caribbean and ship it to the U.S.

However, some tankers already at sea could be rerouted to U.S. ports.

Energy Chief William E. Simon also has said he will urge U.S. oil firms to tap the nation's 217-million-barrel stockpile of gasoline to provide added gas for the U.S. while awaiting the first Arab oil shipments.

One major effect of the end of the embargo could be economic.

President Nixon Friday told a Chicago audience that the energy crisis led to economic difficulties. "It is one of the primary reasons we have an inflationary spiral at the present time," he said. "It is one of the primary reasons for difficulties in automobile sales.

But with the end of the embargo, and an easing of the gasoline shortage, observers predict the recent sharp drop in the sale of automobiles will be reversed and the supplies of industrial products that depend on petrochemicals will go up.

Response to Reagan plea

More gas stations open Sunday?

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Following an appeal from Gov. Ronald Reagan, at least 371 more service stations were expected to be open Sunday.

Reagan's plea was apparently at odds with White House statements urging Sunday closings for service stations.

The governor telegrammed the oil firms asking them to open company-owned stations because of "continuing difficulties many people are having in obtaining gasoline."

Responses to the governor's office indicated that an extra 371 stations would open, and responses from some major firms were awaited.

More Israel-Syrian clashes, but accord near, says Egypt

Syrian and Israeli artillery dueled on the Golan Heights Saturday for the fifth consecutive day, but in Cairo the semi-official Egyptian press predicted an agreement on Syrian-Israeli troop withdrawals could be reached "within days."

The Damascus command reported some Israeli soldiers were killed and wounded, but said there were no Syrian losses. The command also said an Israeli artillery emplacement, military installations and the headquarters of a tank unit were destroyed by Syrian artillery fire.

The Tel Aviv command said it received reports of "firing here and there but nothing serious so far, just what we call drizzle."

The Israeli command said the Syrians fired recoilless rifle shells into Israeli positions in Mizrat Beit Jann, but caused no casualties.

Despite the new fighting, the semi-official Egyptian press said Saturday a troop separation agreement between Israel and Syria on the Golan Heights could be reached by the end of this month.

Other Egyptian press reports said King Hussein of Jordan wants to convene an Arab summit on the future of the Palestinian land claims. The reports said Hussein was willing to meet with his archrival, Palestinian guerrilla leader Yasser Arafat of the Palestinian Liberation Organization.

The influential Cairo newspaper Al Goumhouria said a reconciliation of Syrian-Israeli views on disengagement is likely to be reached "within days."

The predictions came as a surprise to most Arab commentators, who had been expecting a long and difficult wrangle between Syrian and Israel over the extent of Israeli withdrawal on the barren cease-fire line.

Al Gomhouria gave no indiction of how these differences were being reconciled. But it said "a number of points were reached that could serve as the basis for military talks on disengagement" in contacts in Washington between American, Syrian and Israeli officials.

Youth sought in Pomona robbery

POMONA — Police today are searching for a teenaged bandit who robbed a liquor store at 928 W. Second St. of $60 in cash after simulating a gun.

Officers said the robber, about 17 years old, entered Bill's Liquor and Deli Friday night and asked for a paper sack and cigarettes. He then ordered a clerk to empty the cash register into the sack.

After making the clerk lie on the floor, the bandit fled eastbound on Second St.

'Cruelly, unjustly assaulted'

Tricia comes to her dad's defense

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tricia Nixon Cox, the President's eldest daughter, charges that her father has been "cruelly and unjustly assaulted" for Watergate by people who want him removed for all time from public office, according to an article published Saturday.

In one of her strongest public defenses of the President, Mrs. Cox refuted in the latest issue of the Ladies Home Journal what she described as accusations and rumors about her personal life and that of her family's.

Tricia denied that her marriage to Edward Cox, a New York City attorney, was breaking up and said accusations they did not pay their income taxes was false.

On Watergate, she said, "I think history will record that Watergate was a politically motivated matter that used the mistakes of a handful of foolish people to try to force out of office, by resignation or impeachment, a man who was innocent of all the fiction, not fact, of which he was accused.

"These people wanted to be rid once and for all of Richard Nixon, to satisfy their own jealousy of a man who by his daily, weekly and yearly accomplishments reminded them of their own ineptitude and failure."

She said she pitied those who talked of impeaching the President, "for their hypocrisy, for their prejudices.

"I think it would be interesting to let these accusers, God help us all' try to run the country for a week and show them the consequences. But in the next three years they are not going to have this opportunity."

In an interview with People magazine, Tricia's husband, Edward Cox, said he gets along fine with his father-in-law but admits he calls him "Mr. President."

"We get along fine," Cox said of his marriage. "We both work very hard—I in my law practice and Trish in the house. The divorce rumors were so unbelievable that when they were first published, Trish didn't even bother to phone me."

Of their separation which spawned the rumors, Cox said, "She was in San Clemente (Calif.) with her parents, but I wasn't able to get off work. When she returned I was out of town on a case. When we next saw each other I found her cleaning the kitchen floor. Now, if a divorce was pending she wouldn't be cleaning the house."

On the President's problems, Cox said, last fall "I wanted to take leave from my law practice, and help without pay in the President's defense. But even though I would have been a volunteer, I gave up the idea. It would have had the appearance of nepotism."

Cox said his political philosophy was "very, very similar" to that of the President and he denied rumors he does not get along with Nixon.

"It's difficult for us to really disagree on anything, because he's such a great listener...no one could ask for a better father-in-law."

He said he was always careful to call Nixon "Mr. President" and said the two watched televised football games together last year.

Report to solon

Gas withheld to put independents out of business?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Richard S. Schweiker, R-Pa., said Saturday that he had received reports the major oil companies were deliberately trying to put independent retailers out of business by withholding gasoline.

Schweiker asked for an investigation in telegrams to U.S. Attorney Robert E. J. Curran and to Joseph LaSala, the Federal Energy Office administrator for Pennsylvania.

Schweiker said he had received reports the oil companies were telling small stations no more gasoline was available at the same time that company-owned stations received extra gas.

"If these most serious allegations are true, they probably constitute an illegal restraint of trade in violation of federal law," Schweiker said.

He said he had asked Curran, the attorney for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, to assign "experienced antitrust investigators" to look into the complaints.

Schweiker said he had been told the oil companies were discouraging small gas station operators from applying for extra supplies. If they do ask, he said, the oil companies were said to recommend disapproval or "manage to lose the papers, or sit on them for days on end."

Windows broken

POMONA — Vandals smashed two windows at the library at John Marshall Junior High School sometime Friday night or early Saturday, police said. Officers reported the windows were broken on the north side of the library but nothing was taken.

Heard nothing but praise for Nixon on trip, says Pat

MIAMI (UPI) — Pat Nixon said Saturday she heard nothing but praise for her husband's administration during a six-day trip to Latin America and that she has nothing to fear from the Watergate scandal.

Mrs. Nixon ordered "drinks and champagne for everybody" aboard her Air Force plane to celebrate her 62nd birthday Saturday. Her staff gave her a party with baloons, signs, specially written songs and a cake with "Happy Birthday, Mrs. Nixon in Portuguese. A birthday celebration is planned at the Nashville, Tenn. airport, where the First Lady is to be reunited with Nixon and both will dedicate the new Grand Ole Opry building.

Watergate was not mentioned until the birthday interview she gave aboard the plane. Mrs. Nixon saw Carlos Andres Perez become president of Venezuela Tuesday and Gen. Ernesto Geisel inaugurated president of Brazil on Friday.

Mrs. Nixon said she was treated warmly by Perez and Geizel and the other diplomats. She was asked if any of them discussed Watergate.

"No, this isn't covered there," she interrupted. "It's only covered in the metropolitan newspapers. Even out in the country in the USA it isn't."

Asked what has sustained her during the past year while her husband's administration has been surrounded by scandal, Mrs. Nixon replied:

"The truth sustains me because I have great faith in my husband. He's an honorable, dedicated person and when you know the truth you have nothing to fear. I have a very positive outlook."

When she was asked to talk about the strain of the past year, she appeared stunned and abruptly cut off the question.

"No," she said9 "I really don't wish to speak of it. It's a personal thing and why bring that into the trip. You all who follow me day after day know how positive I feel about everything. And I really have faith in the judgment of the American people and the press people."

Discussing the Brazilian emphasis on militarism, Mrs. Nixon remarked, "they do awfully well."

"They don't have economic problems, I've got news for you," she added. Her State Department briefing book cited a 15 per cent inflation rate in Brasilia last year.

She said she was bringing back several messages for her husband from Geisel.

Some of the messages were stricly for her husband, she said, but added that Geisel wanted her to tell Nixon "what a great job he's doing."

She said she invited Geisel to come to the United States at Nixon's request.

Mrs. Nixon was generally enthusiastic about her trip.

"Although I only went to two countries," she said, "peoplewise, I feel I was all around the world because I met delegates from leading countries and they all came up and gave me messages for my husband and also remarked about the fact that this administration has done more for peace in the world than has been done in a long time."

The Russian delegate she said, told her he was looking forward to the Nixon trip to Moscow this summer.

Contradicting an earlier statement, Mrs. Nixon said she did not discuss oil with Perez in Caracas.

Asked what wish she would make on her birthday, she replied: "Well, you know I always make those kinds of big wishes —peace in the world and all those things we're all working for. But that's what I always think of. I don't think of things personal."

Mrs. Nixon said she heard from the President by message Friday but there had been no communication between them since because the telephone system in Brasilia was "pretty bad."

Died 15 hours later

'Accidental' death for man who came alive in surgery

BIRMINGHAM, England (UPI) — A coroner's jury has ruled accidental death in the case of a man who came alive during an operation to remove both his kidneys for transplant.

The inquest on Michael McEldowney, 64, heard testimony from surgeons and nurses at Selly Oak Hospital who participated in the surgery Feb. 19, three days after McEldowney suffered critical brain injuries in an auto accident.

He died 15 hours after the attempted removal of the kidneys. The operation was not carried out until later and the kidneys were successfully transplanted to a recipient.

Coroner George Billington said McEldowney, a bachelor, had only a five per cent chance of recovering from the accident and his relatives gave permission for his kidneys to be transplanted.

Dr. Susan Padmore, the hospital's senior house officer and anaesthetist, said McEldowney suffered a respiratory arrest Feb. 19.

She pronounced him dead an hour later and alerted a transplant team led by surgeon Anthony Barnes, she said.

Dr. Padmore said when Barnes opened McEldowney's abdomen she saw the patient's feet twitch.

"I heard him cough, and he started to breathe of his own accord—regularly and with reasonable depth," she said.

After the cough Barnes asked, "Did he do that or was that you?" nurse Anna Whitcomb said. Dr. Padmore replied, "No, he did that,"; 53 nurse said.

Barnes immediately sealed up the eight inch incision. McEldowney was returned to the intensive care unit but died 15 hours afterward.

Pathologist Dr. J.S. McKinnell said he carried out a post mortem and did not believe the first attempt to remove the kidneys contributed to or accelerated the death.

"In fact it is possible it prolonged his life by 15 hours," he said.

Barnes told the inquest he had to remove the kidneys within an hour of death which he said he assumed had been confirmed by two doctors.

"A surgeon has a duty to his patient not to transplant dead kidneys. He also has a duty to society to see he does not act precipitately. He is walking a tightrope," Barnes said.

Nazis picket, trade insults with L.A. Jews

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Members of the National Socialist White People's Party (NAZI) picketed the Jewish Community Center for a half hour Saturday, trading insults with a half dozen Jews, who carried non-operational, carbines and semi-automatic rifles.

No incidents were reported between the Nazis and the six Jewish counterprotestors, who lined up in front of the center with the weapons. The Nazis have clashed with the Jewish Defense League in the past.

The Nazis, dressed in brown shirts and black pants with helmets and arm bands, protested the Yom Kipper war of last October, the latest Arab-Israeli confrontation, which led to the Arab oil embargo.

Carrying swastika and American flags, the Nazis marched two abreast up Vermont Avenue after the protest chanting, "We want white power ... We want white power."

Police examined the weapons of the Jewish protestors and said they were non-operational.

Bleachers topple; 7 go down

GLENDORA Seven persons were thrown to the ground when a bleacher tipped over backwards at a baseball game at Glendora High School. No one was injured seriously enough to require hospital treatment, police said.

They were standing on the top row of the bleacher when spectators seated on the bottom row jumped up - and over went the bleacher. They were parents of players and a student bus driver.

The game, played Friday afternoon between Glendora and Covina high schools, was won by Glendora 10-9.

Newsman dies in air crash covering story

HOUSTON (UPI) — Radio newscaster Johnny Gilbert, 27, died Friday in a plane crash as he broadcast news of a chemical fire.

Gilbert, who was working a "Traffic Watch" program for KULF-FM, was alone in the plane above the blaze.

He circled lower and lower over the fire in northeast Houston, talking all the time live to his listeners.

"It looks like . . ." he said and then silence.

One witness, Wallace Campbell, said Gilbert was flying low.

"The plane was making passes over the fire, and he was in the process of making a stalling turn to the left and it nosed to the ground and crashed," Campbell said.

Gilbert, formerly was a disc jockey at that station and at stations in Miami and Phoenix.

A spokesman at the station said, "We lost him and there was no indication anything was wrong. We did not realize at the time that he crashed until some people at the scene called us."

Pomona gearing up for transfer of 9th graders to high schools

Here's what will be done for big move

Garey

- 8 portables to be added
- new shower, locker space

Ganesha

- More locker space and a portable room

Pomona

- Remodeling of shower and locker areas

By PHYLLIS CANNON
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Certain expansions are planned on all three public high school campuses this summer to accommodate ninth graders when they report next fall.

The 1974-75 school year will be Pomona school district's first year with a ninth-through-twelfth grade high school program. In addition to having more room, the high schools also will have expanded staffs and programs next fall.

District administrators, accompanied by an architect, toured Garey, Ganesha and Pomona high school campuses Friday to outline work to be done.

At Garey, eight portable classrooms will be moved onto the campus this summer and a large existing room now used for storage will be converted into shower and locker space.

A 10x10x35 foot metal shipping bin will be installed to make up the storage space.

Within two years, a permanent classroom building and additional restroom facilities will be built at Garey to replace the portables.

At Ganesha High, additional lockers will be installed this summer, and a portable classroom building will be moved on campus to be used by the drama department next fall. Now the drama department uses the music room.

Pomona High School has enough clasrooms to accommodate its incoming ninth graders but it needs minor remodeling to create space for a boys' shower and locker room for ninth grade athletic teams. This remodeling will be done this summer.

Projected enrollments — including the ninth graders—call for 1,737 students at Ganesha next year, 1,751 at Garey and 1,658 at Pomona.

Currently, with only 10th, 11th and 12th graders, Ganesha has 1,113 students enrolled, Garey has 1,093 and Pomona, 1,184.

Ganesha was built to handle a maximum of 1,784 students, Garey to handle 1,478 (with no portables) and Pomona, 1,800. Peak enrollment periods in the past have recorded 1,612 at Ganesha, 1,250 at Garey and 1,750 at Pomona.

Numbers of students enrolled can at times be misleading when use of school facilities is under consideration. Consistently, absenteeism in the high schools runs about 10 per cent. And, another 10 per cent of the student body is engaged in activities either off campus or in an area other than a regular classroom. These situations lead to a 20 per cent cut in numbers of students in classrooms.

High school staffs have been expanded next fall to teach a sixth period for all ninth graders (as is required) and to teach the sixth period to 10th, 11th and 12th graders who want or need it.

The expanded staff also will make it possible for each high school to develop a marching band, to expand career education and work experience programs and, if there is sufficient interest, to offer advanced language, math and science courses.

The situation at the junior high schools, where only seventh and eighth graders will attend, will be greatly changed next fall.

District educators feel the tension and conflict which has moved down into the junior highs will be greatly relieved by the smaller schools, and the younger students will be able to learn to live and work together in a more peaceful manner.

Counselors can concentrate on the needs of the younger students and not be concerned with high school and college programs for the ninth graders. Teachers will be able to study curriculum and make changes according to the maturity level of their students.

In the past the ninth grade, which legally is a part of high school, has pretty mudh dictated seventh and eighth grade programs and, in some case, not in the best interests of the younger students.

The junior highs will have elbow room, at an age when their students need it, to set up resource centers. If there are spare permanent rooms they can be used as enrichment centers.

Currently Fremont Junior High has two portable classrooms, Lorbeer has three, Marshall has two and Simons has six. These portables will not be used as basic classrooms in September.

And, the "floating" teacher—the one without a permanent classroom—will be eliminated in the junior highs next year. Each teacher will have a classroom.

Projected enrollments call for significant drops at the junior highs. Currently Emerson has 791 students and is expecting 525 in September; Fremont has 856 and will get about 607; Lorbeer's enrollment will drop from 671 to 514; Marshall from 840 to 575; Palomares from 695 to 454 and Simons from 933 to 589.

Some projections may have to be revised, administrators say. They projected a 900 drop this year, but lost only 600. At the same time, the district has gained 140 students at the elementary level just since school started. The increase is credited to large young families moving into the district.

However, projections call for a decline of 400 students at the seventh-eighth grade level in five years, and no decline at all at the high school level in the next five years.

Pomona district has experienced a decline of 2,700 students in five years. Enrollment in 1969-70 stood at 22,164. Today it is 19,464.

While Anglo enrollment has decreased steadily, minority enrollment has increased steadily.

In 1969, in round numbers the district had some 4,000 black students, 3,600 Chicano students and 15,000 white students. Today, in round numbers, it has approximately 5,500 black students, 4,400 Chicano students and 10,000 white students.

Pomona High girl beats drama pros in directing

The Pomona High School Drama Department received the three most important awards at the second annual Citrus College High School Play Festival held during the week of March 4.

Southern California high schools which participated in the play festival performed on either Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday. Pomona High competed against two other schools on Thursday, receiving the Best Play of the Day award, and was asked to return the following day, Friday, to compete for the highest awards.

Its production, "Stop The World—I Want To Get Off," was judged outstanding and received a first place award over two other schools who competed for the same award on Friday.

Kathy Lane, a junior at PHS, directed this award-winning play and received the Best Play certificate of honor. During both the Thursday and Friday competitions, Kathy defeated professional drama coaches and teachers and became the first student director to ever win the Best Play award at the Citrus College Play Festival.

More importantly, however, Kathy is the first student director in Southern California who has ever won a Best Play award or its equivalent.

Frank Kohel, also a junior at Pomona High, received an award for Excellence in Acting as Littlechap in the production of "Stop The World—I Want To Get Off." He was presented with his award on Friday, as was Kathy.

Peggy Weis, a senior at pomona High, was awarded an Excellence in Acting certificate for her performance on Friday night as the characters "Anya, Jenny and Evie."

Only eight Excellence in Acting awards were given out by the judges, and two of these were received by Pomona High drama students.

On Thursday, three judges determined the winner of the day. Each judge could award a total of 30 points to the individual performances put on by the different schools. They took off one-half point for each minute the performance lasted over the 45 minute maximum. Kathy's "Stop The World—I Want To Get Off" received 28 points. Had the students not performed four minutes longer than they did, they would have received a perfect score. As it was, the PHS Drama Department production gained the largest amount of points both Thursday and Friday.

All three students are part of the Drama 2 class at Pomona High and have performed and produced plays throughout the year in the Devils' Ring Theatre at PHS.

Depletion allowance explained

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The oil depletion allowance is one of the oldest and best known of the tax "loopholes" that benefit thousands of Americans from the corporate board room to the poverty family.

Through the years, this tradition-encrusted tax advantage has been maligned by reformers as an unconscionable break for big business, and defended by the oil companies as a necessary incentive to more oil exploration.

But what is the oil depletion allowance? Where did it come from? How does it work?

The 22 per cent depletion allowance is not some new phenomenon designed to induce greater oil production. In fact, it is five decades old, and was enacted to simplify a World War I loophole which proved too complicated to figure.

There are two different types of depletion allowances affecting oil and other natural resource industries such as coal and ore.

The first type, dating back to the original income tax law of 1913, is called "cost depletion." Basically, this allows a tax deduction for the per-unit cost of the material taken out of the ground, based on the amount of money you have invested in it and the estimated volume of the resource.

For example, if you buy a coal mine for $50,000, and there is an estimated 100,000 tons of coal in your field, then the per unit cost would be 50 cents per ton. For every ton you take out of the ground and sell, you can deduct 50 cents from your income for that mine.

But it is the 22 per cent depletion allowance that is known to most laymen as the "oil depletion allowance." It is this tax break that the reformers are trying to do away with.

The rate of percentage depletion has changed over the years. In 1969 it was lowered from 27½ per cent to 22 per cent, where it remains today.

This means that oil companies may deduct 22 per cent of the gross income of an oil property for tax purposes, up to a maximum of 50 per cent of the taxable income of the property.

Today, an oil or mineral company may choose either percentage depletion or normal cost depletion, whichever gives it the greatest tax break.

For most wells, percentage depletion gives the greater break. It is estimated that elimination of the percentage depletion allowance would cost oil companies about $2 billion a year today.

The percentage depletion allowance actually came about because of complications in figuring cost depletion in those early years.

When the income tax first became law on March 1, 1913, oil and mineral companies were allowed to declare the value of their deposits on that date as the cost from which to figure cost depletion, rather than what they originally paid for the mine or field.

During World War I, when efforts were being made to increase oil production, the concept of "discovery" value was written into law to give post-1913 wells the same tax break as the 1913 wells. Basically, this meant that oil companies were allowed to use the estimated value of the oil reserves in figuring cost depletion rather than what they paid for the field.

But computing the discovery value proved too complicated, and in 1925, the percentage depletion allowance was substituted for cost depletion based on discovery value.

Star of 'Dirty Sally' likes Montana, rugged outdoors

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Jeanette Nolan, the tobacco chewing, whiskey-slurping star of "Dirty Sally," sometimes looks like the character she plays when she's a thousand miles away from Hollywood in her mountain home.

Jeanette chops firewood, mends fences and rounds up the livestock in Montana's Yaak Valley where she and her husband, actor John McIntire, have forged a frontier cabin from the wilderness.

"My ego doesn't rest in my beauty," said Miss Nolan during a respite from the show. "But every night in Montana after I've worked on the ranch all day, I take a swim in the lake or one of our streams. Then I put on a lovely dress and fancy makeup for my husband.

"But I must admit, sometimes when I come in out of the rain and mud I look more like Sally than I do myself."

Jeanette Nolan is, in fact, a fine looking woman with even features and arresting blue eyes. In makeup, a two-hour process to transform her to Sally, she makes a convincing crone.

"I like the role because I enjoy making something out of nothing," she said. "It's the same way with my life style. As a wilderness wife I'll stand up against anyone. I can tough it out.

"We get snowed in for days on end sometimes. And the inside plumbing doesn't always work. We have to heat our own water, and our nearest neighbor is about 10 miles away.

"John and I love the beauty and the hardships of the wilderness. We only come to Hollywood to get a grubstake together."

The McIntire's own a half-section of land (320 acres) comprising a huge meadow with two streams and a lake and part of a forested mountain. From one horizon to the next there is not a sign of another human being.

When they work in Hollywood, their home is a 43-foot cabin cruiser docked at Marina Del Rey. The interior is polished wood, lighted by coal oil lanterns.

"We've tried to make it as much like the mountains as possible," she said.

"SICK STOMACH OK NOW"

Says Mrs. Ruiz, " Ihad stomach trouble mucho malo. It used to burn like fire and I couldn't eat anything without terrible pains. I was so nervous I could hardly think. Then my brother told me to see Dr. Wing, and after a few weeks I was much better. Soon I was well enough to stop all treatments and it is now 10 years ago and my stomach and nerves are fine."

Streak shirts -- fast sellers

NEW YORK (UPI) — The newest T-shirts are gray and have printed on the front "Streaking Team."

They're being sold in a lot of college bookstores mostly. They look just like the school-issued shirts for other sports.

Also coming up are shirts proclaiming:

—Streaking, The Real Thing.

—Two Can Streak as Cheaply as One.

—Be a Streak Freak.

—Caution: Streaking May Be Hazardous to Your Health.

—Be a Sneaker Streaker.

—Streaking Team Cheer Leader.

Jack Mermelstein's firm in New York, Accessories Unlimited, started taking orders for the shirts last week. That's the firm that was first out with a Smile face on sweatshirts a few years back. Millions were sold, breaking records for a one-design item.

The Smile shirt was hot for nearly two years, according to Mermelstein.

"It it doesn't get out of hand," he said, "the streaking thing can last a long time. If overexposed by publicity or if it gets in a wrong vein, it can be killed overnight."

The firm's orders came in large lots. Like 10,000 dozen, and up. Big orders are coming in also for another T-shirt and sweatshirt introduced by Accessories Unlimited last week.

These feature Whackie Pack spoof labels on the front. The Whackie Pack stick-on funny labels are big with the grade school boys and girls. They come in gum packs.

Mermelstein said the rights to use the designs on shirts was acquired from the Whackie Pack people at Tops Gum Co.

The Whackie Pack shirts pick up where the streaking shirts leave off in creating smiles.

Official French dictionary is only up to the letter D

By ALINE MOSBY

PARIS (UPI) — After 38 years, the 40 members of the French Academy—official keepers of the language—at last have reached the letter D.

The traditional project of their honorary organization is writing the official dictionary of France. But the dictionary's snail-like progress has brought outcries in the press and intellectual circles.

Most members of the 339- - year - old academy, the most prominent writers and artists of France, never will see 60 again.

They now labor on page 342 of the planned 1200-page dictionary. At their current rate of nine pages a year (allowing for lost wartime years) they have about another 80 years to go.

One reason for the delay is censoring out those English-American words that have infiltrated into the French language, according to the chairman of the Academy Dictionary Committee, writer Jean Mistler.

Protect the language

"We are obliged to fight this considerable influence," announced Mistler at academy headquarters during a pause in the battle.

Cardinal Richelieu, advisor to King Louis XIII, created the French Academy in 1635 to protect the French language by writing the country's official dictionaries.

The first one appeared in 1636 —a lightning job—and revised editions came out in 1718, 1740, 1762, 1835, 1878 and 1935-36. After each edition is published, the academicians begin on the next, starting again with the letter A.

The French Academy, along with other honorary groups such as the Academy of Science, is housed in the Institute of France, a vine-covered, domed palace constructed in 1663 near the River Seine.

Up a wide staircase each Thursday afternoon walk veteran members to their weekly meeting in a room rich with marble columns, a painting of Richelieu and leather-bound copies of the early dictionaries. For hours they discuss word definitions.

Weekly work published

Newspapers solemnly publish each Friday the work of the academy, announcing recently that definitions were studied "at yesterday's session of the words 'depouillement, deprave, deprecier, depressif, depareiller.'"

After the meeting the eight members of the dictionary committee retire to their small meeting room to work over the revisions on a green felt-covered table.

The academy halls are not exactly a beehive of activity because of several hurdles, Mistler said.

"In the 17th Century there were 16,000 words in French, now there are 35,000 and academy members argue over every one," Mistler said, shuffling galley proofs criss-crossed with corrections.

The academicians drop out-of-date words. They expand definitions. The word "culture" of the 1935 edition has been padded with philosophical culture, Marxist culture, etc.

Search-and-destroy

Since World War II, English words in economics and technology have sneaked into the French language. Mistler, businesslike in his dark suit, termed his search-and-destroy mission "extremely complex and delicate."

"Many words for agriculture and war were added in past centuries to our language from German, for law and commerce from English, for maritime subjects from Dutch. We accept some English such as gentleman, express, rosbif (roast beef) but we eliminated 'derby' as old-fashioned.

"We are suppressing many American words such as marketing, merchandising, software and hardware because French words can be used. The French say 'doping' of horses. Why not 'dopage' which uses a French instead of English ending?

"We must protect the French language."

Increased production

Mistler said he has plotted to increase production.

"We will not read to academy members all the details of the book because everybody argues," he said. "Also we must engage a real staff including scientists to work on scientific words. Then we could reach a rate of 40 pages a year and come out with the first volume in about six years.

"The second volume," the white-haired writer added with a smile, "will be published by my successor."

Accomplishments

Cranston says President's 'overselling'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Nixon administration is trying to "oversell" the President's foreign policy accomplishments, according to Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif.

The California Democrat said that there could be "a backlash of public disillusionment if the great expectations that the administration has raised do not produce concrete results."

"It would be tragic indeed — for us and the world —if there were to be a new American isolationism," he said.

Cranston said Nixon "fully deserves" praise for some of his foreign policy accomplishments but that there had been "serious shortfalls" as well as successes.

He cited Southeast Asia as an example, saying that even though "we have stopped throwing away precious American lives" the United States was still spending $2 billion a year on arms, ammunition and fuel in Indochina.

Hard pill to swallow

Cincinnatians face time when they'll be no more

CINCINNATI (UPI) — No more Cincinnatians?

The Cincinnati area dropped below Zero Population Growth (ZPG) the first two months of 1974, according to the executive director of the Greater Cincinnati Hospital Council, which means, if the downward trend continues—and immigration to The Queen City ever reaches zero—eventually there would be no more Cincinnatians.

ZPG is the point at which births are equal to deaths. minus-ZPG figure is large points at which deaths outnumber births. Thus, if the minusZPG figcdd c os large enough— and less and less folks move to the city from other towns— there would come a time when Cincinnatians would be no more.

The 1970 census placed Cincinnati's population at 452,524.

Council Executive Director Jerry Ransohoff says birth control pills have been responsible for the area reaching ZPG.

"The reason is the pill," said Ransohoff. "Parents are waiting longer to have their first child and not having as many. The concept of planning has a much broader application than ever before."

Seven obstetrics units have been closed here since 1960, Ransohoff said, and another 250 beds have been transferred out of the units.

Beds at one of the largest obstetrics units in the nation, Cincinnati's Good Samaritan Hospital, are down from 135 to about 80, and Ransohoff said births at the hospital decreased to 4,200 last year from a peak of 6,200 annually in the late 1950s.

Not arrester, but arrestee

BERLIN (UPI)—A 33-year-old West Berliner chased two youths he saw breaking an outside mirror off an automobile and took them at gunpoint to a police station.

Police charged him with possession of firearms without a permit.

Fortunately not

Auto experts divided on worth of safety converters

DETROIT (UPI) — While automakers gear up to add chemical smog-control devices to their 1975-model cars, the question of their safety and the availability of unleaded gasoline continues.

A federal environmental researcher recently renewed charges the government is sanctioning a public health risk in hopes of gaining better fuel economy from next year's cars equipped with the catalytic converters.

There's also the specter of motorists, already waiting in long lines for gasoline, having to search desperately for the service stations that have supplies of the unleaded gasoline needed in the catalytic converters. Present fuel will "poison" the systems, which are expected to add about $150 to the cost of next year's models.

About half of all the 1975model cars will be equipped with catalytic converters, including every car sold in California under orders from the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA). General Motors expects to use the new smogcontrol system on every car it builds except the subcompact Vega.

By adding the muffler-like catalytic converter to the exhaust system, the automakers will be able to remove some of the devices, such as exhaust gas recirculation, that have robbed power and gasoline economy by about 15 per cent from uncontrolled cars built before 1970.

Exhaust altered

The catalytic converters use platinum and palladium to alter the exhaust which contains carbon monoxide and unburned hydrocarbons. The oxygen in the catalyst pellets or honeycomb combines with the hydrocarbons and carbon monoxide, changing them into harmless carbon dioxide and water.

But there are other chemical reactions going on within the complex system that could produce new, and even more dangerous, pollutants, says John B. Moran, an EPA researcher.

"We're dealing with a phenomenon in these systems that we really don't understand and I suggest we proceed with caution," Moran said. "I don't feel we know enough about these systems yet.

"It's an inappropriate risk to expose the American people to these devices until we can find out how great the public health risk."

In the process of removing the carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons, the converters also change the sulfur in gasoline into solid sulfates and sulfuric acid mists that are blown out the exhaust pipe. Under certain conditions, the public's exposure "will be in excess of health levels," Moran said.

Water supply danger

He also warns that the "noble" metals — platinum and palladium—used in the converters may break apart in use or during scrapping of the cars. They could find their way into the nation's water supply and become toxic like mercury reacting with organic compounds.

And if that's not enough, hydrogen sulfide gas could be emitted from the exhaust in minute quantities. The quantities might never reach toxic levels, but might be enough to produce a rotten egg smell.

Moran is director of the fuel and additives program at the EPA's research center in North Carolina. His views are not necessarily shared by top EPA officials who gave the go-ahead to install the catalytic converters on the 1975-model cars. One reason that Moran's views were over ruled, he says, is the "carrot" of improved fuel economy held out by backers of the catalytic converter.

It's estimated that about half of all cars sold next year— about 5 million—will have the catalytic converters. Moran says it will take at least two model years before any dangerous pollution levels are reached. That, he says, will allow enough time to define the problem caused by the catalytic converters and abolish them if they are really harmful.

By July 1, all gasoline stations that annually sell 200,000 or more gallons of gasoline a year will have to offer unleaded gasoline. The 1975-model cars will have smaller fuel tank inlets that will accommodate only the nozzles of pumps with unleaded gasoline.

John J. Riccardo, president of Chrysler Corp., who has been a long and vocal critic of the government's anti-pollution standards, expects most motorists to simply ignore the difference between leaded and unleaded gasoline.

"It is unrealistic to expect gasoline buyers to sort themselves out into two separate lines at every gasoline station, one for leaded gas and one for unleaded gas," the Chrysler president says.

"It is foolish to suppose that the driver of a catalyst-equipped car, arriving at a station with only leaded gasoline, is going to park his car and walk home," Riccardo said. "The result will be poisoned catalysts and no emissions control at all."

S.F. Co. joins odd-even sale program

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — San Francisco is joining the list of California counties in which the odd-even method of selling gasoline will be used.

The Board of Supervisors voted 8-1 recently to ask Gov. Ronald Reagan, to include the county in the mandatory fuel distribution system.

Wesley Bruer, the state Energy Planning Council's executive director said it shouldn't take more than two days to approve the request once it reaches Sacramento.

Under the system, gasoline will be sold for vehicles with even-number plates on even-numbered days and those with odd-numbered plates will be fueled on odd-numbered days.

Fuel will be sold for cars with personalized plates on odd-numbered days.

Emiliano Zapata nunca fue heroe, dice un general

MEXICO, D.F. (UPI) La historia sangrienta de la revolucion mexicana a tomado un nuevo turno con la queja presentada por el hermano del hombre que mato al lider rebelde Emiliano Zapata.

El General Juan Jose Guajardo a pedido a last Cortes mexicanas suspender la produccion de la pelicula, "Emiliano Zapata."

La pelicula continua con la historia generalmente aceptada, de Zapata como un heroe de la reforma agraria. Guajardo dice que esto es "un manojo de mentiras."

El se opone principalmente a la presentacion de su hermano, Jesus Guajardo, como un "cobarde", y dice que el mismo Zapata era "bandido ordinario."

La demanda de Guajardo ha recibido bastante atencion, por ser algo que aun lastima, recordando que esta fue una de las revoluciones mas sangrientas de este siglo.

Principio en 1910, la revolucion termino despues de mas de 10 anos estimandose que las personas muertas fueron mas de tres millones.

Despues que el dictador Porfirio Diaz fue destronado, los revolucionarios continuaron peleando entre ellos mismos.

Zapata aparentemente fue muerto por ordenes de Venustiano Carranza, otro heroe revolucionario cuyos restos son honrados en el gigantesco Momumento a la Revolucion en la ciudad de Mexico.

Emiliano Zapata fue asesinado por el hermano de Guajardo, Coronel Jesus Guajardo, el dia 10 de abril de 1919, por ordenes del Gen. Pablo Gonzalez, quien apoyaba a Carranza.

Ademas, el General Guajardo dijo, "Zapata nunca fue un heroe, el era un bandido ordinario que siempre estuvo fuera de la ley."

El General pidio al presente presidente mexicano Lic. Luis Echeverria que apoye sus quejas, agregando que Echeverria en un tiempo era el secretario particular de uno de los hombres que ayudaron a Guajardo a asesinar a Zapata.

Cooperacion resulta en censo hispano E.U. mas preciso

WAHINGTON, D.C. — La cooperacion entre el Buro del Censo y el Comite Presidencial de Oportunidades para Hispanos habilito un calculo del nlmero de hispanoamericanos en el pais mas preciso segun los jefes de ambas agencias federales.

Comentando sobre el estudio reciente del Buro del Censo que indica que la poblacion hispana contaba con 10.6 millones en marzo, 1973, comparada con 9.2 millones el ano anterior, el Presidente del Comite Presidencial Henry M. Ramirez dijo:

"El personal del Comite Presidencial ha estado trabajando con el Buro del Censo con el fin de mejorar los metodos de contar a los hispanos ya que en el pasado no han podido determinar el total actual."

"Nos agrada ver que el Buro del Censo respondio positivamente a nuestras sugerencias," anadio Ramirez. "Segun el ultimo informe, yo diria que nuestros esfuerzos cooperativos estan produciendo resultados positovios para los hispanos."

Ramirez dijo que el Comite Presidnecial ha tratado de conseguir un calculo mejor ya que fondos federales se distribuyen a la comunidad a base de su poblacion.

Hace poco tiempo el Presidente del Comite Presidencial rijo que el censo de hispanos estaba equivocado por 8 a 10 por ciento.

Incluidos en el ultimo censo hecho por el Buro fueron 6.3 millones de mexicanos, 1.5 millones de puertoriquenos, 700,000 cubanos y 2 millones de sudamericanos y centroamericanos.

El reporte indica que el nuevo total, basado en el calculo de poblacion hecho en marzo, 1973, no esta de a acuerdo con el del ano anterior porque:

—La clasificacion de ninos de origen hispano de menos de 14 anos de edad se extendio para incluir el origen hispano de la esposa del padre de la familia. Si la esposa es de origen hispano el nino se clasificara como hispano, aunque el padre no sea de origen hispano.

El ano anterior mas de 400,000 ninos hispanos vivian en hogares donde el padre no era de origen hispono.

—La indentificacion de personas de origen mexicano se aumento a incluir la categoriaas de mexicanoamericanos, "chicano" y mexicano. El reporte indica que estas nuevas categorias posiblemente aumentaron el numero de personas de origen mexicana.

—El aumento de poblacion anual igvalmente contribuyo a la diferencia, y el Buro del censo reviso sus metodos para mejor reflejar esta crecimiento.

Algunos grupos hispanos han estimado que la poblacion hispana se acerca mas a 16 millones pero en general la mayoria acepta un total de cuando menos 12 millones.

Ramirez anadio que el personal de Comite continuara ayudando al Buro del Censo "para que se realize un censo de hispanos mas preciso."

Tales about vitamin aimed at gullible

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I notice your answer to a question as to the benefits of Vitamin E. I was so shocked at your flat answer that it had "no value whatever," because it showed your ignorance of all the tests that have been made with this vitamin. There are several books on vitamin E that you should get and read so you can tell your readers the truth—and not merely your personal opinion.

I am aware that the AMA has blocked all efforts to test vitamin E in the U.S., but tests have been carried on very successfully in Candada. It is time that AMA progresses and works to keep people well rather than just treating them after they are ill.

DEAR READER — I am sorry that you are upset because I don't agree with your opinions. Your opinions, however, are not based on solid information. Much of the information hawking vitamin E is from profit-making organizations and does not represent the thinking of top level scientists, nutritionists or physicians in the United States, Canada, England or any other country.

Before going further, I should like to point out to you that the National Academy of Sciences—National Research Council's Food and Nutrition Board has just reviewed the need for various vitamins, minerals and foods. Their recommendations are based on all the available scientific information. That includes all of the valid material on vitamin E as well as other vitamins. This is a U. S. Government organization and is not part of the AMA. The maximum amount of vitamin E they recommend for any age for a daily dietary allowance is 15 units (about 15 milligrams). You easily get these amounts in any reasonable diet. These recommendations are for 1973.

So, it is not just my opinion, as you have wrongly stated, but the opinion of the best group of nutritionists and scientists in the country that you can and should get all the vitamin E you need from a reasonable diet.

The fairy tales about vitamin E have been used to bilk the gullible for many years. It has been investigated, contrary to your statement, in many leading universities in this country and abroad. This includes Canada. And incidentally, The Canadian Medical Assn. has been busy trying to protect the Canadian public against false claims originating in that country.

Vitamin E probably is necessary in small amounts. But you don't need a special diet to get that amount. It may have some benefits in isolated medical problems, but it does not cure arthritis, heart disease and all other human ills.

It is true that some animals need vitamin E. The cow and the sheep, for example, will develop heart failure if they don't get it. Man does not behave the same way. Apparently we are able to substitute other chemicals into the metabolic system and use them instead of vitamin E.

Differences in species with regard to vitamins are well known. A common well-known example is our dependence on vitamin C. We can't manufacture it in our body. But the cow and most animals make it out of carbohydrates. We lack an important enzyme that would enable us to do this. In the case of vitamin E the shoe is on the other foot, or hoof, and some animals need it much more than man.

Send your question to Dr. Lamb, in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on balanced diet, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for "Balanced Diet" booklet.

Electric grid links East Europe

PRAGUE (UPI) — The lights on the olive-green panel— covering most of an entire wall —blink incessantly.

Two male technicians—East Europe's power supply at their fingertips—monitor the oscillations on the illuminated dials.

"Within minutes they can switch East Europe's power supply to provide, for example, Poland with electricity from Bulgaria," said Stefan Mishev, Bulgarian-born Director of the Central Dispatching Office (CDO) Management Board.

From their office overlooking one of Prague's busiest shopping centers, Mishev and his technicians control an electricity network stretching from East Germany to beyond the Russian Urals.

Founded in 1962 to assure sufficient electricity supply for the Communist countries of East Europe, it links the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Last year, mutual exchange of electricity to compensate brief power shortages in East Europe's energy block totalled 23 billion kilowatt hours.

"Besides the possibility of mutual energy supply, the system enables the member countries to reduce their electricity reserves to a minimum level," Mishev said.

Most important source of energy in Europe's East is still coal. But the number of nuclear power plants and hydro-electric plants in Eastern Europe is growing.

"Electricity consumption, which is now about 300 billion kilowatt hours per annum, will increase by seven to eight per cent annually during the next years," Mishev said.

In Czechoslovakia, two nuclear power plants equipped with Soviet water reactors fueled by moderately enriched uranium are to be built by 1980.

"Miracle Cure?"

5,000 YEAR OLD CHINESE HEALTH REMEDY FOUND

PEKING (Special — Health researchers in China have uncovered an amazing rare old Chinese herb remedy that possesses spectacular healing qualities and reportedly has been used for 5,000 years to cure or give relief to a host of the most common illnesses suffered by mankind. Dramatic claims are being made that this "miracle herb" called ginseng, may actually hold the key to a longer healthier life. Indeed, there is one historical case of a user living to be 256 years old.

Helps Many Illnesses

Like acupuncture, the many healing properties of this remarkable herb were once considered "folklore and superstition", but modern researchers around the world are suggesting that it may actually regulate many of the body's proccesses to increase SEXUAL potency, help heal ULCERS, relieve ARTHRITIS, check graying or loss of HAIR, improve DIGESTION, slow down ARTERIOSCLEROSIS, relieve ASTHMA overcome FATIGUE, improve DIABETIC conditions, relieve inflammation of the URINARY TRACT, help chronic INSOMNIA, relieve BACKACHES and PAINS, and generally improve your health by increasing your body's potential to heal itself.

Safe, No Side Effects

Ginseng is not a drug, but an herb or vegetable that is extremely rich in vitamins and minerals. What's more, this amazing natural remedy is completely safe and non-toxic with no side effects. Unfortunately, high-grade ginseng is in short supply, and brokers and processors around the world are bracing themselves for a "run" on the market as the herb's purported "near miraculous" healing properties become more widely known to the genral public.

Now Available in U.S.

Now you can get a generous 30-day supply of this amazing natural remedy direct from a major supplier by sending only $10.00 in check, cash or money order to Health Laboratory, Dept. 1, Box 2142, Palm Springs, Calif. 92262. This wonder herb is said to have helped millions of other people, and it may help your health problem too. Isn't it worth a try?

Men's wear

Football giant has clothing problems

NEW YORK (UP) —Bob Tucker of the New York Giants is 6-feet-4 and weighs 225 pounds and naturally he has a lot of trouble getting clothes that fit. But since a lot of his teammates run about the same size they solve some of their problems by swapping outfits in the locker room.

"He might leave the house one day wearing a navy blue Cardin blazer and return home wearing a brown and white plaid sports coat," his beautiful wife Lorraine said the other night over a dinner of steak, lobster and lambchops. "Sometimes it's hard to recognize him."

Tucker, 28, considered by many to be the best tight end in football, isn't particularly big as players go these days. Ed (Too Tall) Jones, drafted by the Dallas Cowboys from Tennessee State, runs 6-feet-7 and weighs 295 pounds, for instance. But Tucker does have troubles.

In the off season he sells insurance for the New York firm of Walsh and Walsh, Inc., —"everything but life insurance" —and travels the country as a goodwill ambassador for Eastman Kodel, which manufactures polyester fibers and helps him with his clothing problems.

Alteration problems

"The trouble is they will say there is a black tie banquet in Dallas or somewhere and 'don't worry about bringing a tux, we'll supply it.' So you get there and they bring out a tux and maybe you can get into the jacket but you stand there with the pants bunched around your waist with safety pins and extra belts and the legs four or five inches above the ankles, hoping they won't see it when you're speaking behind the rostrum."

That is because Tucker, being an athlete, is tapered. He wears a 46 long jacket but his waist is only 35 inches and when manufacturers make a 46 long suit they make the pants with 42 inch waists. The alteration problems are horrible to contemplate.

"Since it is so hard to buy a suit my wardrobe runs to about three or four sports jackets or blazers to each suit," Tucker said. "That's one of the reasons you see so many athletes wearing sports jackets all the time. It's not that they don't like suits —they're just almost too much trouble."

"I have a lot of trouble with shirts, too. I wear a 17½ neck but the sleeves are 37 inches. So if I can't find the right size I might wear a shorter one and sit there with the uncomfortable feeling that my cuffs are halfway up to my elbow. That's especially true when they outfit you in a tuxedo."

Trouble with shoes

It is probably the long arms that help Tucker catch passes. In his rookie year with the Giants in 1970 he caught 40 for 571 yards and five touchdowns and was close to being the rookie of the year. In 1971 he was the first tight end in National Football League history to take the receiving title, catching 59 for 791 yards and four TDs. He won all-NFL honors in 1972 with 55 passes for 764 yards and the Giants did not have what is considered a good year. That is, they won two games.

Tucker has to be well-dressed in business and he was the other night. He was wearing a navy Cardin blazer, blue, tan and white checked slacks, black Gucci shoes, a plain blue shirt which he pointed out was made of Kodel fibers, and a striped paisley tie.

"I wear a size 14 shoe and Guccis is the only place I can find any that fit," he said. "I know they cost about 60 bucks but they seem the only ones that fit me. They usually have to send out for a pair but it never takes very long. But that is one of the problems of being big."

Tucker, of Polish and Tyrolean descent, lives with his wife and son Robert, Jr., in New Jersey and ends up buying most of his clothes at Schlesinger's men's store, a friendly neighborhood store in West New York, N.J. They've seen him so often they usually keep some 46 longs in stock.

"But tailoring it to fit is a pain," he said. "Maybe I'll take up the new craze —streaking."

Irish Republic plans big St. Pat's Day celebration

By Donald O'Higgins

DUBLIN (UPI) — Festive ishmen planned a mighty . Patrick's day celebration this year despite continuing olence in Northern Ireland nd economic woes at home.

"We are going to make it e biggest and best celebra on for many a year," an of cial organizer said. "All the gns point to a greater parti pation from overseas than e have ever had."

It won't be all funnning. In e morning, shamrock-wear g Irishmen will pack into hurches to hear special ser ons on the national apostle ho converted the Pagan Ir h in the 5th Century. But hen, on to the celebrating.

A score of planned attrac ons ranged from Gaelic foot all and Hurley games to orse racing and, of course, e traditional dog show at shionable Ballsbridge, once e haven of thirsty Irishmen hen it boasted the only legally opened bar in Dublin.

Ballsbridge's attraction was o great it once prompted the te playwright Brendan Behan, himself a prodigious mo er of pints, to berate an elderly lady who bumped into him clutching a poodle in her arms.

"What a hell of a place, madam," roared Behan, "to bring a dog!"

It's Wetter Now

But things have changed since the government repealed the "dry" laws a decade ago. Now Irishmen can "wet" the shamrock in hundreds of sawdusted little bars across the country. In addition to the traditional and always enormously colorful pageant in Dublin, hundreds of local parades are held in towns and villages across the country in which singing crowds back the local brass and piper bands.

But, inevitably, the continuing war and the daily toll of bombs and bullets across the border in Northern Ireland cast their grim shadow over the traditional celebrations.

"Although St. Patrick's has never been a divisive feast day in the sectarian sense," an organizer said, "we must take great care nothing we do here can spark trouble elsewhere."

For the first time since the Northern troubles broke out more than four years ago, the heavy hand of security dominated all other considerations in planning this St. Pat's day.

Strict Security

All preparations for parades, sporting fixtures or any other event designed to attract crowds, were scrutinized by security chiefs with a view to reducing to the minimum the risk of bomb attack.

New rules applied to the official St. Patrick's Day parade through the center of Dublin. Only organized groups in "recognized and acceptable uniforms, marching in step" were given permits to join the marching ranks, estimated in advance at 50,000 backed by the music from 50 bands.

The tight security was aimed at preventing the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) or other extremists from seizing on the parade for a propaganda demonstration.

"God help anyone who tries to disrupt it (the parade)," an organizer said. "I don't think a couple of hundred thousand Irishmen would take too kindly to such an exercise."

Big Parade

The Dublin pageant, the official highlight of the celebrations, will trace the Republic's industrial growth since Independence more than half a century ago. Pride of place will go to native products that have won worldwide recognition— Waterford glass, Donegal tweeds, Irish whisky and Guinness stout.

The parade will be boosted this year by scores of overseas marchers, some from Europe, the Commonwealth countries, and more than a dozen from the United States including the Bishop Kearney High School Band from Rochester, N.Y., always a popular feature of the Dublin parade.

Government leaders will review the parade from a stand outside the General Post Office, scene of the 1916 Easter rising and a shrine for all Irishmen. The building itself looks spruce and clean after a facelift that scraped off more than 50 years of grime.

Although the Irish Republic, in common with the rest of Europe, is groggy with inflation, spiraling prices, a gasoline famine and energy crisis, no one planned to let these things interfere with this day. That simply would not be Irish. Or, as one of the official organizers of the day's events put it:

"It would be a poor Irishman who would let economic disaster or bombs and bullets interfere with his celebrations."

Burr gives art to law school for an auction

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — Raymond Burr, who once played attorney Perry Mason on television, has presented more than 200 works of art to the University of Pacific's McGeorge School of Law for an auction.

Gordon D. Schaber, dean of the school, recently said money from the sale will go toward construction of the school's new $460,000 "courtroom of the future."

The auction will be held April 28 at the Crossroads Shopping Center in South Sacramento.

"We hope this auction will attract people with interests in all styles of painting, because that was the intent of Mr. Burr when he presented this gift to help us fund construction of our new courtroom of the future," Schaber said.

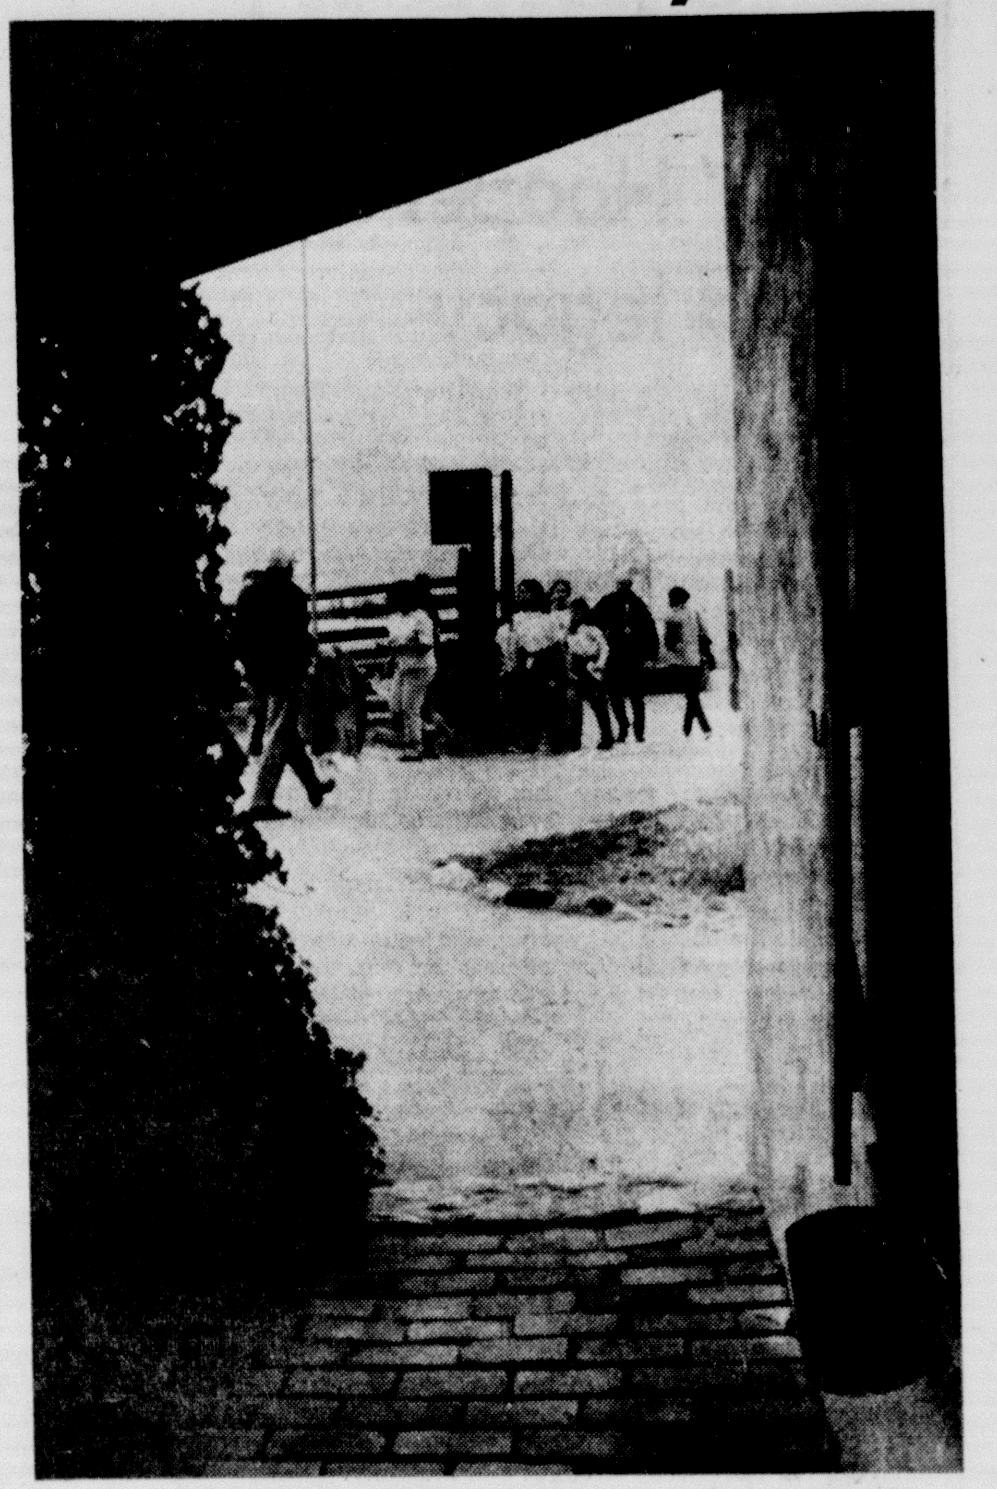
OFF AND RUNNING Cesar J. Goncalves, with his dogs Taffy and Chiquita in tow, leads the way down the Walk for History route Saturday morning. It was reported 148 valley residents took part in the fund-raising event.

Getting in step with history



CHECKING IN

The Palomares Adobe was a busy scene Saturday as participants in the Historical Society's Walk for History completed the second leg of the 25-mile route through four cities.

148 residents hoof it to build restoration fund

POMONA — A total of 148 valley residents turned out Saturday to take part in the third annual Walk for History sponsored by the Historical Society of Pomona Valley.

Clem Niebel, the society's past president, reported that approximately $2,700 was raised by the participants by 1:30 p.m. Saturday. The amount will go higher as more walkers complete their walks.

Two walks were actually held, one over a 13-mile route and another over a 20-mile route. Only 25 persons chose the shorter walk.

The walk got under way at 8 a.m. at the Pomona Civic Center and wound through Pomona, Claremont, La Verne and San Dimas. Checkpoints for the participants were at some of the valley's historical sites, such as the Carrion and Palomares Adobes, the old San Dimas Hotel and the Phillips Mansion, where the walk concluded.

Each participant in the walk secured pledges from relatives, friends and neighbors for each mile of the walk he completes.

Awards are to be presented to the walkers who raise the most money.

Proceeds from the event will be used for the acquisition and restoration of historical landmarks in the valley.

The first four to complete the 20-mile walk were Laurie Messmer, Dawn Lavers, Donna Shaw and Mike Esparza. The oldest walker was Charles Dewey, 77, of Pomona, who finished the 13 mile trek.

Baby's fall from couch leads to legal hassle

This letter concerns my husband, myself and our two children.

One day about two months ago my husband and I were painting our living room. Our daughter, four months old, awoke from her nap and my husband went to change her. He brought her out to the living room and put her on the couch. He then went to get a wash cloth to clean her off.

While he was gone she fell off the couch and was knocked unconscious. Coming back into the room, my husband found her not breathing.

In an admitted panic, he began hitting her on the rear and the chest in an attempt to reinstate her breathing. In the meantime I was calling an ambulance. By the time the ambulance arrived our daughter was crying.

She was taken to the hospital for tests. She had a fractured skull, so police were called. At that time our daughter and our son, 2 years old, were taken away from us. The doctor said the bruises where my husband had hit our daughter to reinstate her breathing looked suspicious.

At a later date we were summoned to a hearing. The children were declared wards of the court and were placed in a foster home.

My husband requested a lie detector test and passed but the judge stated he would have to see a doctor for counseling and evaluation, at which time the children would be returned to us.

The case worker set up an appointment with a doctor for psychiatric evaluation. After talking with him, the doctor recommended that the children be returned home as soon as possible.

He also stated he didn't see why the children were taken away in the first place. He sent his report to the social worker. Now she tells us that we have to write to a judge to set up a new hearing, which she was to do herself. We feel all they are doing is giving us the runaround.

My husband is black and I am white. It has been suggested to us that it is a case of prejudice pure and simple. Our personal feelings lean toward the possibility of some great lack of concern for our family's unit, whatever the motive. — Mrs. B. C., Ontario.

We talked with your "doctor," who proved to be a psychiatric social worker. He said that he had interviewed you and your husband and that his recommendation was that the children be returned to you soon and that you continue counseling.

Paul Morsen, community relations coordinator of the San Bernardino County Welfare Department, told us he found no evidence that the return of your children is being unnecessarily delayed by the county's child welfare services division.

He said you had repeatedly refused to talk to the child welfare services worker you mentioned in your letter.

When you appeared in court, Morsen explained, you were ordered to enter a counseling program but the meeting with the psychiatriac social worker was evaluative in nature and should not be considered as a counseling program.

Before your children can be returned, a second hearing must be held. Morsen said the judge wrote to you recently that he will not consider a hearing before January 1975.

Morsen said there was no indication in your case record of any prejudice or discrimination against you and your husband.

"There is no lack of concern for the unity of the C— family," he said. "In fact, our very concern is for the family's welfare and especially for the welfare of their children."

He told us that the child welfare services worker would be happy to work out a low-cost or free counseling plan for you.

44% of cars fail inspection test

Lights, exhaust most frequent troubles in CHP valley exam

CLAREMONT — Did your car flunk inspection?

Don't despair. Some 44 per cent of those checked last year by the highway patrol's mechanical medics in the Pomona Valley failed to qualify for window stickers. Statewide, more than 55 per cent failed.

But some of the time the cars were not all at fault. Drivers were often guilty of not having their operator's license or the vehicle registration cards.

During 1973, 73,131 vehicles passed through random vehicle inspection lanes in the Pomona Valley. Only 41,024 passed while 32,107 needed something corrected, said Capt. W. C. Jones, area CHP commander.

This compares statewide with 1.7 million vehicles checked, 751,070 passing and 953,728 failing.

The highway patrol has 71 vehicle inspection teams assigned throughout the state to make random checks of passenger cars. They are equipped with exhaust emission analyzers and make safety inspections of lights, brakes, tires, glass, suspension, registration and driver's licenses.

Two such teams are assigned to the Claremont office which has a service area extending from Kellogg Hill to Cucamonga and Mt. Baldy to the Riverside County line.

They inspect sedans, station wagons, pickups, campers, motorcycles, and on one occasion, a bicycle. Motorists generally spend only a few minutes in the inspection lanes while inspectors check it from bumper to bumper.

A Claremont College coed surprised the vehicle inspectors recently when she pedalled into an inspection lane set up on Foothill Boulevard.

She wanted to know if the bike met all safety requirements. It did and the cyclist later rode to the CHP office in Claremont to get her bicycle safety sticker.

The most common infraction is headlights being out of adjustment. They may be aimed too high or too low.

Many motorists are surprised to find that even their new cars have misaligned lights, said Jones.

Other major defects include exhaust systems, tires, registration, pollution devices, and faulty wipers.

Less common infractions include gas caps, bumpers, mirrors, fenders.

Officers gave this breakdown in violations issued in this area last year:

—Lights, 19,532; exhaust, 10,642; tires, 8,133; registration, 7,29; pollution devices, 6,678; wipers, 5,413; driver's license, 2,821; horns, 1,785; carbon monoxide, 1,371; parking brakes, 1,361.

Steering, 1,289; suspension (defective shocks or vehicle too close to ground), 1,088; glass, 879; hydrocarbons, 746; mirrors, 725; fenders, 580; wheels, 505; bumpers, 269; and fuel caps, 142.

ROBIN WILLIAMS, tour leader-lecturer, will present his film, "This Is Paris, Jewel of Europe's Cities", for the Pomona Forum audience Monday at 7:45 p.m. in the Education Center auditorium. The film is an intimate and comprehensive study of the people there today, how they live, work and play in their city of proud monuments, grand palaces, wide boulevards and tree-filled parks.

Dairy testing herd after 6 diseased animals found

CHINO — A new series of tests will be performed starting Monday on an Alta-Dena Dairy herd here in an effort to detect any further infection of brucellosis in the animals.

Six animals from the herd were destroyed last week after annual blood tests revealed that the animals were infected.

Although the herd is only one of 40 in the state to record an incidence of the disease within the last six months, a minor controversy was created when it was reported that raw milk from the herd may have been sold to the public and represented a health hazard.

Brucellosis can cause severe fever in humans who consume raw milk products contaminated with the disease. It cannot infect humans, however, if the milk has been pasteurized.

"This thing has been blown way out of proportion," said Paul Virgin, a spokesman for the dairy. He said that all milk from the herd is now being pasteurized in compliance with orders from the San Bernardino County Health Department and the Los Angeles County Milk Commission.

Most of the raw milk products that Alta-Dena Dairy markets, said Virgin, is from the dairy's herd in the City of Industry. Milk from the Chino herd is used to supplement the City of Industry supply, however, and some milk taken from the Chino herd, after brucellosis was discovered, may be present in the dairy's raw milk products marketed last week.

"All that milk was tested at the state laboratory and no brucellosis organisms were found in it," Virgin explained.

Split develops on private vs. public financing

County to vote on golf course improvement offer

The life of Pomona's Mountain Meadows Golf Course will be in the balance Tuesday when the Los Angeles County Board of Supervisors decide whether to accept $2 million in proposed improvements for a 32-year lease.

The offer has been made by a group of investors headed by pro golfer Billy Casper, and details of the agreement have been worked out over the past year by the county's parks and recreation department and First District Supervisor Peter F. Schabarum.

Just when acceptance of the proposal appeared to be a shoo-in, complications arose that threaten to kill the whole project.

At last Tuesday's meeting, Supervisor Baxter Ward turned against the agreement. He claimed that he was both against the long-term lease and private financing. He said the improvements could be financed with revenue sharing funds that will be allotted to the county over the next three years.

Ward found a supporter in Board Chairman Kenneth Hahn, and the vote came to a 2-2 standoff with Supervisor James Hayes supporting Schabarum. Supervisor Ernest Debs was absent.

Event though Debs is a supporter of the golf course agreement, his vote will not be enough when the matter comes up Tuesday because approval of the proposal requires a 4-1 majority.

Schabarum's office has spent the better part of the week trying to convince Hahn that the proposal is worthy of his support. Whether they have succeeded will be determined when Hahn casts his ballot.

Under the proposal, the improvements would include construction of a new clubhouse and restaurant, and improving the present 18 holes.

Originally part of the $20 million package under which Bonelli Park is being developed, the golf course project was cut out by Schabarum 1½ years ago as part of an austerity program.

Schabarum at that time claimed that the county could acquire the golf course through a private investment under the lease-back arrangement.

'Buck' Hooper's proud legacy

D.F. "Buck" Hooper retired from the San Dimas City Council last week after eight years of distinguished service, four of this as mayor of the city.

Hooper, who retired from the Los Angeles County Fire Department after 35 years of service, is recognized as one of the community leaders who has shaped the community San Dimas is today.

Hooper, always ready to listen and debate all sides of every argument, is the type of man who speaks out on issues and everyone knew where he stood. He could also be stubborn at times when he felt he was right.

He has lived in San Dimas for the past 30 years and is not ashamed to share his warm feelings for his town. He says the proudest moment of his life is when he was elected mayor of "the town I love."

In the 1974 world that is clouded with suspicions about the integrity of politicains, Buck Hooper's honesty and sincerity is refreshing. His voice will be missed on the City Council.

Suicide unlike Bill Knowland

The enigma of the death of Oakland Tribune publisher William F. Knowland is the total contradiction of suicide to the entire life pattern known to his friends and intimates.

Bill Knowland, most who know him concur, was a man with whom you could strongly agree or disagree on any given issue, but he was a totally rational person with great strength and integrity.

When news of his death on the grounds of his Sonoma County summer home was received, the sheriff's office reported that it was caused by a self inflicted gun shot was like the slap of a wet blanket to his myriad friends.

It may well be that the sheriff's office is absolutely correct — but it is unlike the man.

It may well be that there is conclusive evidence that Knowland died at his own hand. It has not been made public as of this writing.

It may well be that the sheriff's office is absolutely correct in closing the case. But the character of the man and the temper of the times demands an absolutely conclusive public explanation of "why".

There is no simple explanation for the quirks of human nature nor is there any method known to man to unravel a mind.

But the Bill Knowland California knew, that the nation knew, in fact that the world knew, was a person about whom there were certain verities. For instance, he was an intensely dedicated United States Senator who was more concerned with the security of the nation than diplomatic niceties. This at a time when in many a living room around the country is wasn't nice to laugh off the United Nations as an impotent instrument in times of international strife.

Bill Knowland retired from the Senate and ran for Governor of the state of California when the state already had a Republican governor and many observers were convinced he couldn't win and would gravely damage his party within the state. That's what happened. But Knowland was clear, concise, unequivocating and totally honest in his run. This was not a man who walked away from a contest of any type.

As a publisher, Knowland delved deeply into the life and times of his beloved East Bay and learned to understand it and to know it intimately.

This then is the enigma of the death of William Knowland — legislator, Senator, publisher, citizen. It may well have all happened as reported and certainly there is no reason for anyone to tell it other than as it is.

But in an era of terror and tragedy and unrest it would be nice to have the nagging doubts resolved. The means of so doing may be at hand. They should be. And they should be made public.

Thoughts for today

"Has not man a hard service upon earth, and are not his days like the days of a hireling? So I am allotted months of emptiness, and nights of misery are apportioned to me." — Job 7:1,3.

"Having a hope in God which these themselves accept, that there will be a resurrection of both the just and the unjust. So I always take pains to have a clear conscience toward God and toward men." — Acts 24:15,-16.

And every one who was in distress, and every one who was in debt, and every one who was discontented, gathered to him; and he became captain over them. And there were with him about four hundred men. — I Samuel 22:2.

As we keep or break the Sabbath, we nobly save or meanly lose the last best hope by which man rises. — Abraham Lincoln, 16th U.S. President.

Mafia money finances dope racket

WASHINGTON — Like so much floating jetsam, countless millions of dollars in stolen, counterfeit and altered securities are awash on the world's financial seas. No one knows exactly how much there is.

Yet organized criminals are circulating the stolen and spurious securities on a massive scale to finance heroin purchases, prostitution, assassinations, bookmaking, bribery, smuggling, loan sharking and labor racketeering.

The bogus stocks, bonds, currency, warrants and travelers checks are also used by organized crime to build or renovate villas along the Costa del Sol in Spain, fun palaces on Florida's Gold Coast and casino-hostelries in Las Vegas.

The alarming new element in this ocean of fraudulent paper, aside from the increased volume, is that banks around the world are being used more and more to generate solid cash from bad securities.

"The Swiss are up to their necks in it," one frustrated federal investigator told us. Dubious bank deals have also been found in Belgium, Holland, Hong Kong, Lebanon, Luxembourg, Panama, Sweden, Thailand and West Germany.

The vast influx of shady Mafia money has had a direct effect on us all, warn the federal sleuths. It is used to expand the dope racket, which produces more addicts, who commit more robberies to pay for their habits.

The fresh funds also finance more underworld takeovers of legitimate businesses; more corruption, extortion and pornography; more bribed officials and gang wars.

We have traced the tortuous trail of some stolen stocks to Mafia drug peddlers. The loot may be 50 or 60 cubic feet of slightly imperfect securities on their way to be destroyed, as happened in Los Angeles at the Jeffries Banknote company.

It may be the astonishing disappearance of $15 million or more in government bearer bonds from a Chase Manhattan vault. It may be $84 million in assorted securities, which vanished in transit from a printing plant. Or it may be the proceeds of a bank stickup.

Fraudulent stock issues may also be counterfeited in the world's counterfeiting centers, New York and nearby New Jersey, by artists whose work only microscopes can detect as fake.

All these securities—in single certificates, stacks and even bales—are sold at great discounts below their face value. The "inside" man, who tips the locations of the vault or the exact time of the securities shipment, and his free-lance confederate who pulls off the heist, may get only 10 cents on the dollar from the Maffia.

But the Mafia racketeers make a killing, sometimes quite literally.

A few years ago, they might simply use a go-between and place the stock in a border-line bank for collateral on a loan. Or they could peddle it through a crooked broker, or sell it to an unwitting investor.

Stolen securities were cashed, for example, by President Nixon's banker friend, Bebe Rebozo, although Rebozo vehemently denied he knew the securities were stolen.

But now, far more sophisticated techniques are used to escape detection. In one common hustle, the Mafia sells the phony certificates for cash to a failing company, sometimes going through a dozen intermediaries, each one a little "cleaner."

The failing company does not resell the certificates for cash, which would be risky. Instead, it simply puts the certificates in its sale. There, the unwitting accounting firm verifies the existence of the securities and duly approves the company's books.

Thus the spurious certificates are listed as assets by reputable accountants, enabling the firm to borrow money from a bank. If the company manages not to fail, no one is the wiser. If it does fail, the banks are usually protected by insurance, so they have no compelling reason to inquire into the integrity of the paper that has shored up the failing company.

The profits for the Cosa Nostra and its allies on such a deal may run up to 800 per cent. What they buy for a dime on the dollar, they can sell from 35 to 80 cents, depending on how "hot" the paper is and other factors.

Sometimes, the Mafia simply takes over the ailing firm in exchange for "saving" it, then milks it and bankrupts it. Or else the racketeers demand a major interest in it, ensuring steady income without a foot-pound of work expended.

The public has tended to think, when it thinks of it at all, that stealing securities is a white-collar crime. But we have been able to trace some major securities hustlers directly into narcotic trafficking and other vicious crimes.

—Sebastian "Buster" Aloi, a major South Florida mobster, has been identified by Sen. Henry Jackson's Investigations Committee as a stolen stock dealer. Our check of federal narcotics files shows he is also a bigtime heroin dealer. Other government records show he has a record for bank robbery, loan sharking and extortion activities.

—Jimmy "Jimmy Legs" Episcopia and Robert Perrette, of New York (not to be mistaken for innocent citizens with similar names) are both shown in federal records as stolen securities men. We found them also listed in investigative files as drug hustlers.

—George "Blah Blah" Smurra, another bigtime hood, and Vincent Rizzo, are two more Mafia men tied in official records to stock thefts. Both show up in federal narcotics files as traffickers. Smurra, in addition, is identified in the famous "Valachi" hearings 10 years ago as a lieutenant of the late crimelord Vito Genovese.

—Joseph Camperlengo, a nightclub operator in Florida, is also identified as a stolen stock entrepreneur. Narcotics agents told us he is listed as a dope figure.

Flushed with huge new sums, mobsters have been able to get perilously close to the high and the might. At Sen. Jackson's hearings last year, Elliot Roosevelt, ex-mayor of Miami Beach and the son of the late President, was accused of stolen stock hustling. While he admitted dealing with numerous stolen stock hoods, Roosevelt denied any wrongdoing or even knowing they were crime figures.

The worst of the gigantic problem is that there is no present solution. An American Bankers Association spokesman sighed over the difficulty of checking out every security put up for collateral to see whether it is stolen.

"The pedigree of a stock sometimes looks like the New York city phone directory," he said. He defended American banks against charges they knowingly take stolen bonds, saying: "If we were accessible to organized crime, then the criminals wouldn't have to go overseas to dispose of the phony paper."

Gossip for today

Year by year higher education has been offering eager, thoughtful, aspiring undergraduates ever increasing opportunities to increase their knowledge and brodaen their outlook on life. But never have our halls of ivy gone to greater lengths to prepare young men and women for successful and rewarding futures than they are today. Just look at what has already been accomplished in this new year!.

At the University of Idaho, students are being offered a course designed to determine the psychological responses to kissing.

After several practice runs, students at Harvard University succeeded in setting a new world's record for continuous Monopoly play in an elevator.

It is now possible to roller skate for college credit at Cal Poly.

West Carolina University students are about to get 24-hour visitation rights in campus dormitories.

And the University of Tennessee has wrested the "streaking" title from a Texas college—"streaking" being a new extra curricular field trip course where students strive for adeptness in dashing about the campus in the nude.

Mark my words! With such brilliant academic accomplishments already in the bag, 1974 will certainly wind up as one of the greatest educational opportunity years in this country's history.

Campaign reform would help Demos

By RICK GOTCHER
P-B Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — Under provisions of the currently discussed Senate bill for public financing of elections, all candidates would receive equal treatment. But that's a mere technicality—in reality, it appears certain liberal Democrats would benefit in several ways if the bill becomes law.

The desire to provide financial equality for candidates is laudable. No one can deny the excesses of Watergate are at least partly responsible because of a super-abundant supply of cash that failed to appear on any political financial statement.

That kind of economic insult cannot be tolerated. However, there is real danger that the kind of political debility planned by Watergate conspirators will inherently crop up from a system of public campaign financing.

Money is the great political equalizer in that those with ready access to it don't have to divert energies to gain contributions; while those less affluent have to spend considerable effort in the quest for more.

Removing the ability to gain large sums without much effort will put Republicans and conservative Democrats at a disadvantage. Without money's impact, all candidates will have to rely on manpower and publicity—two areas where liberal Democrats hold decided advantage.

There is little question that telegenic candidates appear more often in front of television cameras. And liberals are more telegenic than most. Further, because they have them selves literally entrenched in congressional "glamor committees"—Foreign Affairs, Judiciary, etc.—they command instant press recognition that guarantees a steady outlet for their views.

An even more important lever for liberals is the number of hip-pocket volunteers already in existence. Labor's huge membership; the overwhelming majority of social activists who man federal welfare programs (most of whom are provided government vehicles, telephones and office space freely available for grassroots campaigns); minority group activists and a large number of college students are available to get out the vote.

Further, liberal organizations, which decisively outnumber conservative groups, would not be prohibited from spending huge sums on "issue oriented" campaigns, which conincidentally mesh with the race of a candidate on the same issue.

Ralph K. Winter, a leading expert on campaign reform, says ending the use of private money will not stop political influence. Contracts will be given to those showing political loyalty in other ways.

In a report to the Ervin Committee, strenuously objecting to public subsidies for elections, Winter said, "When an individual is forced, in effect, to make a contribution to a political movement—whether he is indifferent to it, finds it distasteful or applauds it—it may fairly be said that a basic freedom is being infringed."

It can be argued that Watergate has proven a change is needed—something must be done to insure against it happening again. Regrettably, it can almost be predicted that scandals will forever be a problem we will be forced to guard against—no matter what system we use.

Right now, restoration of public credibility towards the nation's political system is needed. Passing the public subsidy bill seems an attractive way to do that. But to give one segment such persuasive leverage over the rest can only mean more political abuse.

Montclair employes get a lift from the boss--in Costa Mesa

SUPER CAR POOL — Pomona Valley residents employed by the MSI Data Corp. of Costa Mesa climb aboard a chartered bus in Montclair for the 50-mile trip to work. The corporation was formerly located in Montclair and is offering daily bus service to employes who do not want to move their residences. About 80 persons use the bus service, which will save about 100,000 gallons of fuel a year.

Pomona council

Hearing slated on senior citizen housing project

POMONA — The City Council Monday night will hold a hearing on an application for the construction of a 103-unit, senior citizens' residential complex on more than 4⅜ acres of land south of San Francisco Avenue and east of Gibbs Street.

Robert A. Olin Jr. of the Olin Construction Co. is appealing the Planning Commission's failure to adopt an environmental impact report and denial of requests for a conditional use permit and a variance.

At its meeting Jan. 23, the commission—because of a 3-3 tie vote—was unable to adopt the report. It also denied the permit 3-2 and the variance 3-2.

Among the reasons for denying the permit and variance, the commission said the quality of the project as proposed was not satisfactory. The variance was requested to reduce development standards, including parking, open space, distance between buildings and storage.

Among other matters scheduled for the council's 8 p.m. meeting are:

—Report of a citizens' committee on the proposed reopening of the United Artists Theater as a community theater and recommending that the council lease the place for one year with option to buy.

—Final reading of an ordinance reducing the special business tax in the Central Business District.

—Possible adoption of emergency ordinance requiring posting of signs at gas stations showing the price of each grade of gasoline and prohibiting advertising of products not immediately available for sale.

—Resolution setting up guidelines for conforming with the Governmental Conflict of Interest Act.

—Resolution confirming summary abatement taken at 1060 San Bernardino Ave.

—Resolution ordering installation of stop signs to stop east and westbound traffic on Ashfield Avenue at Los Flores Street.

—Resolution consenting to establishment of a portion of Valley Boulevard as part of the System of Highways of the County of Los Angeles during construction of certain street improvements.

—Recommendation of Parks and Recreation Director Jack Hoxsey for purchase of the southeast quadrant of the San Bernardino and Corona Freeways for parks and recreation purposes.

—Notice of application for on-sale beer license for the Mexico Lindo, 1060 S. Garey Ave.

League to hold forum of those in governor race

AZUSA — The League of Women Voters will sponsor a forum March 29 at 8 p.m. in the Citrus College Auditorium to introduce gubernatorial candidates.

All candidates for the office have been invited to attend. Each will give a 10-minute platform statement. Following the statements, candidates will answer questions from persons in the audience.

The event is sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Alhambra, Arcadia, Claremont, East San Gabriel Valley, Glendora, Monrovia, Pasadena, Pomona and South Pasadena.

Claremont library to give lesson in microfilm use

CLAREMONT — Brief demonstrations of the use of microfilm and microfiche have been scheduled Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. at the Claremont Public Library, 1375 N. Indian Hill Blvd. The public is invited.

The project will acquaint patrons with the microform holdings of the local library and the county public library, of which Claremont is a branch.

The microfilm collection includes general, ethnic, and 19th-Century California newspapers, monographs and some magazines.

Local patrons have access to all microfilm in the county library system through the request set-up and what is stored at the local library, which includes Life, Time, and Saturday Review magazines and the Claremont Courier newspaper.

Librarian Mary Haaker will conduct the demonstrations with the microfilm reader donated last year by the Claremont Friends of the Library. Prints of 19th-century county newspapers also are on display.

Among those are the "Alta California" newspaper of Aug. 3, 1861, which includes a news release of Civil War battles brought to San Francisco by Pony Express, and the issue of Sept. 1, 1849, which includes proceedings of the convention for framing the California Constitution preparatory to the state's admission to the union.

Also on display is a microfilm of a Spanish language newspaper of Sept. 11, 1855, and a copy of the Japanese newspaper, Sangyo Nippo, which describes in English and Japanese Japan's attack on Pearl Harbor Dec. 7, 1941.

Some telephone calls may get customer refund

POMONA — Some customers of General Telphone Co. will get refunds on certain calls made between July 23, 1971, and Aug. 8, 1972.

The California Public Utilities Commission ordered refunds of about $12.4 million to be made with in three months to customers of General Telphone Co., Continental Telephone Co. and smaller independent telephone comapnies.

The refunds represent a portion of charges for intrastate long-distance calls, multi-message unit calls and related federal excise and local taxes between these dates, plus seven per cent interest.

Charges made during that period were based on Pacific Telphone Co. rates which went into effect July 23, 1971, and which were later nullified by the utility commission following a ruling by the California Supreme Court.

Refunds will generally be made by credit to customers' bills, said officials. Former customers will also be notified about the refunds.

POMONA — Los Angeles County District Attorney Joseph Busch Jr. will address a combined meeting of the Pomona Valley and Citrus Bar Associations and the Pomona Valley-Citrus Legal Secretaries Association Thursday at Orlando's Restaurant.

Cooperative program on refineries urged

By DAVID M. ROSEN
United Press International

The groundwork is being laid in New England for a first-in-the-nation regional compact to bring together legally six states into a cooperative program of refinery building and offshore oil development.

Establishment of a New England States Oil Compact through federal legislation was called for in January by Massachusetts State Sen. William M. Bulger, D-Boston, in testimony before the U.S. Senate Committee on Intergovernmental Relations chaired by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

Since that time, the idea of a compact has been discussed by Bulger with U.S. House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., the Council of State Governments and the New England Regional Commission.

At O'Neill's suggestion, a technical committee has been set up to work out the details of the concept so that specific legislation can be drafted and O'Neill is chairman of the caucus.

Leo Allen, Bulger's energy adviser, said the technical committee hopes to make the presentation to the caucus by June.

"This is not a long term study," Allen said. "With seven publicly unveiled oil refinery proposals in New England and as many others being discussed privately there is a tremendous need for a compact right now."

"I am very optimistic that this thing will get off the ground," he added. "It's really a matter of enlightened self interest where the six states acting together can do more than each of them separately."

Despite Allen's optimism, however, the idea of a legally binding compact is likely to be opposed by at least one New England governor, Meldrim Thomson of New Hampshire, who has been negotiating with Aristotle Onassis' Olympic Refineries to get a refinery built in his state.

Thomson, at a recent meeting of the New England Governors Conference, joined the region's other five governors in supporting a resolution calling for cooperative action in refinery development. But that resolution, unlike the proposed compact, carefully excluded projects that have already been proposed.

As proposed by Bulger, a regional entity would be empowered to:

—Share among all six New England states tax and other revenues from refineries, offshore tanker terminal facilities and other petroleum-related activities. This is designed to remove any tax advantage a state might receive from having an oil facility located within its boundaries.

—Plan, construct and control a New England petroleum pipeline distribution system linking refineries and major markets in the region along the states pollution control regulations as they relate to oil and oil facilities so that competition among states for refinery sites is not based on lower pollution standards.

—Standardize industrial controls relating to oil to remove unhealthy competition in the area.

—Determine the location, size and number of refineries and related facilities in New England.

—Plan, construct and, if necessary, operate a publicly owned refinery.

On the last point, Allen said a New England regional oil development unit would be a likely candidate for federal funding if pending congressional legislation setting a national power authority is passed.

SICK AND TIRED — Ralph Perry, a contruction worker at the Ranier, Ore., Trojan nuclear plant, places a "Vote Against All Incumbents" bumper sticker on a car in a campaign the workers at the plant started simply "because we're sick and tired of being sick and tired."

In Chile, a muzzled press

SANTIAGO (UPI) — Six months ago, the Chilean press was among the most freewheeling, imaginative, insulting and entertaining news media in Latin America.

Leftwing newspapers loyal to the late President Salvador Allende blasted the opposition press and political figures, sometimes with obscene headlines.

The opposition press answered in the same terms, up to the point where many Chileans said liberty of the press had degenerated into "libertinism of the press."

That is all finished now.

Today's Chilean press, that which survived the Sept. 11, 1973, military overthrow of Allende's government, is muzzled.

Politics Are Banned

Leftwing newspapers that supported Allende no longer exist. In Santiago, five were closed outright, including Puro Chile which was gutted by fire during the bloody battles Sept. 11.

The rightwing La Tribuna committed journalistic harakiri last December by publishing a frontpage story that former Socialist Party secretary general Carlos Altamirano had been arrested.

Altamirano, now out of the country, was the No. One man on the military government's most-wanted list. The story was false and the newspaper was shut down.

In late February La Prensa— official organ of the Christian Democratic Party, largest political party in Chile—folded.

"There seems to be no point in publishing a political newspaper if all politics are banned," a spokesman for La Prensa said.

Five still publish

Of the dozen newspapers Santiago had before the coup, only five still publish, four morning newspapers and an evening edition.

The former La Nacion (The Nation), official voice of the Allende government, was allowed to continue but only after it changed its name to La Patria (The Fatherland).

Of those that still survive, three belong to the conservative El Mercurio chain—El Mercurio, La Segunda and Ultimas Noticias.

The other two are La Patria and La Tercera de la Hora, a tabloid with the largest circulation in Chile, about 400,000 copies daily.

From mid-January to mid-February, the surviving newspapers were under prior censorship. Copies of each issue had to be sent for review by military censors before going to press. But this was lifted and the newspapers are now under self-censorship.

Soccer and racing

Prohibited are stories that criticize the ruling military junta, price increases not announced by the government and articles about former members of the Allende government unless the information is officially released.

Politics are taboo, simply because all political activity has been banned. Top figures such as former President Eduardo Frei have vanished from the newspapers.

"If it wasn't for soccer and horse racing, we would really be in trouble," a director of one newspaper said.

Another said "our features editor is the busiest man on our staff now."

Magazines also censored

The closure of seven newspapers created serious economic problems for the several hundred persons who lost their jobs. Some found employment in other fields but at least nine Chilean newsmen were not so fortunate; they were imprisoned in desolate Chacabuco prison camp located in the Atacama desert, one of the driest spots on the face of the earth.

The censorship applies to magazines also. Ercilla, a Newsweek-style publication that is considered the best in Chile, is still under prior censorship. Copies of the weekly are sent to censors every Tuesday, one day before the magazine goes on sale.

"On Tuesdays we all sit biting our nails until the censors return it," an employee of Ercilla said.

Kills daughter as he searches for intruder

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — A west Philadelphia man fatally shot his 11-year-old daughter while searching for an "intruder" in the basement of his home.

Police said Denise Stevenson missed her school bus recently and apparently went into the basement after returning home for bus fare.

Square tomatoes? myth may turn fact

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Square tomatoes?

Well, nearly. And they are working in that direction.

The energy crisis is going to result in a lot of new pacages, according to an expert who explains that today's goods often are over-packaged.

Don Short, vice president of Walter Landor Associates, one of the world's largest design firms, said the trend to simplify packaging is worldwide.

He lists frozen foods with outer wrappings which can be dispensed with, metal cans which can be replaced by plastic-coated cardboard, fliptop cans requiring a lot of energy to make, wide labels on bottles and cans where narrow labels would do.

And square tomatoes? The squarer they are the less packaging material you need.

Specialists at the University of California at Davis say a square tomato is a myth but they are working on it and have developed "blocky" tomatoes with stronger walls For experimental purposes the school did produce some square tomatoes by enclosing young tomatoes in a box and letting them ripen in the confinement to a square shape.

But this would not be practical on a large scale, a scientist explains, adding that such a container must be hand-placed, have enough space for growth and at the same time be fliexible enough that the fruit would not burst out of its confinement.

Short says the quickest change may come in package shapes themselves. His firm shows how the familiar rectangle box of cigarettes can be reshaped as a square —and suddenly hold 25 per cent more cigarettes with no more cardboard. "It isn't nearly as handy to hold or carry in a pocket but if materials really got scarce it could be accepted."

A typical three-pound box of soap today uses 293 square inches of cardboard. Reshaped as a cube, it takes only 253 inches to hold the same amount. However, it may require two hands to carry it instead of one.

Consumer demand or marketing success has led the way so far and Short doesn't expect individual companies to go rashly to new shapes that might not be acceptable.

Instead, the designers predict industry-wide action, "carefully approached and with government support so there are no antitrust or collusion problems. No company can do it alone."

Golden Gate Bridge tops list of man-made wonders

By MURRAY J. BROWN
UPI Travel Editor

The pyramids of Egypt topped the list of the Seven Ancient Wonders of the World. Would you believe the Golden Gate Bridge ranks first among the Seven Man-Made wonders in the United States?

That, at least, was the finding of an unofficial poll conducted by the U.S. Travel Service (USTS) of the Department of Commerce to determine the "constructions" in the United States with the greatest tourist appeal.

The poll of American travel industry representatives drew 529 votes for 106 different attractions. No voter came up with all seven, only three named six.

According to the VISIT USA Newsletter, the Golden Gate Bridge was voted Number 1. Built in 1937, the 4,200-foot suspension bridge spanning San Francisco Bay long has been considered one of the most beautiful in the world.

The others, listed by the newsletter in order of voting preference, included:

—Mount Rushmore National Memorial in South Dakota where huge heads of Presidents Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt have been carved out of the face of a 6,000-foot granite mountain in the Black Hills near Rapid City. "Called a Shrine to American Democracy, this monument...symbolizes the beginnings and trials of the United States during its first century and a half of growth."

—Astrodome, Houston, Tex., the giant sports and convention complex built in 1965 which "opened a whole new world for sportsminded Americans..."

—Statue of Liberty in New York harbor. "The impressive lady with a torch was given by the French people to the United States to epitomize the spirit of America." It also has been the symbol of freedom for millions of refugees since 1886.

—Hoover Dam, Arizona-Nevada. "Completed in 1936, the multipurpose dam on the Colorado River is 726 feet high and 1,244 feet long."

—Walt Disney World, Lake Buena Vista, Fla. "...a vacation world, complete with resort hotels, golf resort, miles of beach and lake for recreation, a 600-acre wilderness campground and the Magic Kingdom theme park."

—Gateway Arch, St. Louis, Mo., "rising some 750 feet at the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial on the Mississippi riverfront is a testimony to St. Louis's past and to the modern spirit of imagination and development."

Following in popularity among those polled were Disneyland, Anaheim, Calif.; The Empire State Building in New York City; Washington Monument in Washington, D.C.; and the U.S. Interstate Highway System.

The USTS said it planned a similar poll of the "Seven Natural Wonders in the USA" soon.

Incidentally, the pyramids of Egypt are the sole survivors of the ancient wonders of the world. The others have long since been destroyed, either by man or time.

They included the Hanging Gardens of Babylon; the statue of Zeus at Olympia; the temple of Artemis of Ephesus; the Mausoleum at Halicarnassus; the Colossus at Rhodes; and the Pharos of Alexandria.

Exhibition of Egyptian art will open at museum April 4

LOS ANGELES —"Age of the Pharachs," a major exhibition of Egyptian art, opens at the county Museum of Art April 4. Admission is $1.

The exhibition, the most comprehensive of its kind ever seen in California, includes over 150 ancient Egyptian works of art from 14 major American collections. Stone and wood sculpture, reliefs, bronzes, sarcophagi, gold jewelry, textiles and ceramics ranging in date from 4000 B.C. through the Roman period are included. A majority of the works, reflecting the title of the exhibition, are from the traditional dynastic periods of Egyptian history, although a number of pre-dynastic and post-dynastic works can also be seen.

Rexford Stead, the museum's deputy director of fine arts says, "Beyond revealing that a surprising wealth of Egyptian antiquities exists in public collections throughout the United States, the current exhibition permits a broad view of the development of Egyptian art from earliest times. It also shows that a finely carved diorite bowl, a magnificent bronze, or a faience ushabti, confirms Egyptian artistic genius quite as much as a gold sarcophagus cover from the tomb of Tutankhamen."

One of the most powerful influences on Egyptian civilization and therefore on Egyptian art was the belief in and anticipation for a revised life after death. Most ancient Egyptian works of art that exist today have been recovered from tombs and temple ruins. Sculpture was produced out of the desire to perpetuate or serve the dead. Consequently, fine portraiture developed very early in Egyptian art.

Two examples of Egyptian tomb sculpture from Dynasty IV are a limestone statue of Kem-Ka-Re and his son lent by the Lowie Museum of Anthropology, UC Berkeley, and a "reserve head" of a prince of the House of Cheops, from the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. From the latter half of the Middle Kingdom is a powerful figure of a seated nobleman made of quartzite, probably from a temple. The figure, lent by the Brooklyn Museum, sits brooding and sad, wrapped in a heavy cloak and conveys both the calm and apprehension felt by a complex man as he prepared to face the hereafter.

Of particular importance, from the Amarna period of Dynasty XVLLL, is an amphora, 29 inches high, lent by the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston. The amphora — perhaps a wine vessel for royal banquets — is unique. Apart from its size and colors, it is the only ancient Egyptian vessel known on which the bodies of animals are modeled in the round.

Additional XVIII Dynasty highlights in the exhibition include: a painted limestone seated lion with the cartouche of Tuthmosis III, from the University Museum, Philadelphia; a beautifully crafted and brightly colored polychrome faience "ushabti" inscribed for the Lady Sati from Sakkara, lent by the Brooklyn Museum; and a red granite kneeling figure of Hatshepsut from the Metropolitan Museum of Art.

The Spectrum

By JOSEPH H. FIRMAN

CAPSULE REVIEW — The Center Theater Group's production of "Hamlet," which opened Thursday at the Forum of the Los Angeles Music Center, is a workmanlike but uninteresting presentation of the Shakespearean classic.

There is nothing disastrously wrong — the minor characters are uniformly unintelligible and Peter Wexler's stage set looks more like a Vermont barnyard than a Danish castle — but the energy crisis seems to have affected the actors and director Gordon Davidson. Maybe they do better on odd days.

Stacy Keach, in spite of impressive credentials, offers an off-the-rack, non-electrifying Hamlet, more rugged than other interpreters of the role — lucid, vigorous, but undefined.

The best performance is that of Jeff Corey as Polonius, a richly humorous and persuasive characterization. Unlike many of the others, he displays more than a nodding acquaintance with Shakespeare and imbues his part with warmth and reality.

Harris Yulin and the toothsome Salome Jens make an appealing but not moving King and Queen of Denmark; Kitty Winn's Ophelia is beguiling, and Peter Nyberg is a satisfactory Laertes.

The ingredients are all first rate, but somehow they fail to jell into an exciting and moving performance.

TV NOTES

NEW YORK (UPI) — NBC lost no time in taking advantage of the recent change by the Federal Communications Commission that permits more prime evening time to networks on certain days. "The Wonderful World of Disney" will begin at 7 p.m. instead of 7:30 when the new season begins next fall. It has been in the 7:30 spot since its 1961 premiere.

April 21 is when comedian Alan King will do his annual thing of looking back at a year with acid comments. This time he'll not only take on 1973 but throw in the first quarter of 1974 in a show titled "Alan King's Energy Crisis, Rising Prices, Assorted Vices Comedy Hour."

NBC is preparing a two-hour drama, "The Healers," starring John Forsythe, for the 1974-75 season that may spin off a series. The star is seen as Dr. Roger Kirk, chief of staff of a Los Angeles medical research institute; divorced, with two young children, with Pippa Scott playing the ex-wife.

Photographer will exhibit in Pasadena

PASADENA — The Pasadena Museum of Modern Art will present an exhibition of work by social research photographer Marion Palfi March 26-May 5.

Miss Palfi pioneered in the field of social research photography and works almost exclusively in essay form. She expresses with her camera, in a penetrating way, the sorrows, joys, defeats and victories of her fellow human beings. Her photographs evoke an immediate emotional response.

The studies in this exhibition deal with prejudice, injustice, conditions of the aged, the effects of proverty and neglect on children, and the effects of acculturation on the American Indian. Her work does not evidence exploitation or exaggeration but rather a feeling of compassion and understanding.

She commented, "I am a social research photographer who is trying to combine an art form with social research. I want to make people aware—aware that a discriminator destroys himself; that the diversity of people in America is their strength."

Hungarian-born Miss Palfi came to America in 1940, shortly after Hitler began his march through Europe. She decided then to dedicate her talents to inspire people everywhere so that such horror may never happen again.

Chocolate Easter bunnies recalled; may be spoiled

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Easter bunnies made by a Canadian chocolate factory have been recalled from U.S. candy shelves by the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) because they may contain salmonella bacteria.

If the bunnies, along with other chocolate products made by the firm are contaminated, they could cause fever, nausea, vomiting and diarrhea if eaten.

The FDA said that the products made by Regent Chocolates Ltd., of St. Hyacinthe, Quebec, Canada, are distributed in the United States under their name and 15 other private labels.

Distributors in the United States include:

— Frankford Candy and Chocolate Co., Philadelphia, Pa. The labels are Frankford and Woodbine.

—Murray Allen Products, New Rochelle, N.Y. Labels are Murray Allen, Loft and Barricini.

—Triumph Candy Corp., Englewood Cliffs, N.J. Labels are Regent, World Candy, Holiday Candy, Eljay, Shari, Zachary, Mayfair, Holiday Inn, Van Houten, Family Treats and Mr. Milky.

"Tests by the Canadian Health Protection Branch and by U.S. Public Health agencies have revealed the presence of salmonella contamination in some of the Regent products," the FDA said.

"The Canadian authorities have closed the plant until the problem of contamination is solved. A recall of all Regent Chocolate products distributed in Canada began Feb. 26, 1974."

'Dirty Sally's' Rambo fits TV role as cowboy

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — If Dack Rambo looks at home aboard a horse in the "Dirty Sally" series, it's because the youthful actor is a part-time rancher who rides herd on his own cattle.

Dack plays Cyrus Pike, traveling the west with the crone in the new CBS series. He does his personal traveling by airplane from Los Angeles to Deleano, Calif., where his family owns several hundred acres of prime farm land in the San Jaoquin valley.

One of identical twins, Dack was crushed by the death of his brother, Orman, in an automobile crash five years ago. He has finally come to grips with the tragedy, but it hasn't been easy.

They had worked together as actors, although Dack was the more successful. He starred in "The Guns of Will Sonnett" in 1968.

Although his permanent home is in Deleano, Dack has kept an apartment in Beverly Hills for four years. It's sparsely furnished and not very fancy. He has a housekeeper who comes in every day to clean and cook for him.

Once in a while a girlfriend stops by in the evening to prepare a special cozy dinner. But not often.

"I never want to saddle myself down with too many possessions," says Rambo, "until I buy a mansion someplace. I don't like to be tied down."

That goes for marriage, too. Rambo is single and recently broke up with a long-time girlfriend when her conversation drifted around to matrimony.

Dack starts out each morning at 4:30 stopping for a massage on the way to work. He arrives at CBS studio center in the San Fernando Valley about 7 a.m. and begins shooting scenes almost at once.

Because the show started in mid-season Dack has spent most of his weekends flying to various parts of the country to promote the series.

But when he has a few days off, he hops up to the family ranch-farm. When he's not working in films he lives on the property, punching cows, driving tractors and doing other ranch work.

In addition to cattle the Rambos raise wheat, cotton, alfalfa, barley and potatoes. He mends fences, helps with the irrigating and does all the other chores.

Henry Kissinger—interior decorator

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Henry A. Kissinger has changed the corridors as well as the policies at the State Department.

Shortly after becoming Secretary of State, Kissinger agreed with some other U.S. officials that the staid State Department, an eight story architectural crackerbox that sprawls over two city blocks, simply was too dull aesthetically as well as politically.

A devotee of modern art, Kissinger decided he would match his new-look diplomatic policies with a new look at the State Department.

Like nearly everything else Kissinger does, the results have proved controversial. But nobody can say the State Department is dull. Foggy Bottom isn't foggy anymore.

Giving enthusiastic approval to a plan that had been worked out before he became the new landlord, Kissinger soon had a small army of painters at work.

Only the eighth floor, where the formal state dining and reception rooms are, escaped the painters. But not the interior decorators. The eighth floor is being redone in Early American style.

Elsewhere, the grim, gray walls were splashed with a rainbow of stunning colors with such glamorous names as Cape Cod Cherry, Lemon Aztec and Brown Mink. A few even sport peppermint stick vinyl wallpaper.

Reactions were mixed as thousands of State Department employes spent several months stepping around ladders and over paint buckets.

Kissinger, whose own office walls are adorned by some avant garde paintings, seemed eminently pleased with the results. As might be expected, a majority of the bureaucrats say they agree with him.

Virtually no hallway is a single color. Some of the gray walls remain, a grim reminder of the antiseptic aura of the past. But now they are contrasted by raspberry reds, royal blues and a yellow that is indescribable.

It puts a little fun into the maze of frustrating hallways, some of which suddenly end in a blank wall only to be resumed again half a block away—with no apparent access. The building seems to be an architectural tribute to that old New England saying, "You can't get there from here."

The sprucing up project, which has added light to the windowless interior halls, was conceived three years ago. It has not entirely escaped the bureaucratic preference for uniformity and order, however. The entire building now is color-coded.

While the hallways sparkle with a variety of color on any given floor, the same corridors on every floor from the sixth on down are the same hue.

The exception is the seventh floor, where exceptional officials reside; where Kissinger and other top members of the U.S. Foreign Service are ensconced in offices that have some lofty views of the Washington landscape.

There the halls of the mighty are decorated in patriotic red, white and blue. One hallway even sports a stripe of blue and gold, traditional colors of the State Department.

Sweden evens things up

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Sweden likes to be known as a nation of equality for all—and that includes dogs.

In most of North America, only seeing eye dogs are allowed to ride with their masters on trains, subways, buses and trolleys. But in Sweden, dogs and other pets can be brought along on all public transportation—for a price.

Instead of paying per ride, Stockholm's human commuters are able to buy a "50 kronor card" (about $12) which carries their picture and signature and is valid for one month on all public transportation in the greater Stockholm area.

Beginning April 1, the same privilege will be extended to dogs, except the canines will not have to have their pictures or paw print on their 50 kronor cards. A master's signature will do it.

Currently, dogs or other pets small enough to be put in a bag and carried aboard public transportation ride for free. All larger species have to pay full human fare.

According to the latest figures, Stockholm has 26,492 dogs registered by the Dog Tax Expedition in Stockholm. Dog tax officials say the figure probably is much higher, because many owners try to escape the 80 kronor ($18) annual license fee.

Young students make good impression on elderly classmates

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Royal A. Harrison, a retired Army major in his mid-70s, had a "pretty negative impression" of today's college students— until he joined them in class.

They are not, as he confesses he believed, all a bunch of trouble-makers hell-bent on pulling down the establishment.

Harrison is one of nearly 100 senior citizens 60 years or older who took advantage of a new program at the University of Colorado this past semester which offered open classes free of charge to the elderly.

"I have found that the students on the campus are hard-working," Harrison said. "They're dedicated, they're there to get an education and, by gum, they're going to get it. I admire them so much for it.

"I suppose a lot of us went to classes with a negative impression in our minds as to the students. Some of us thought that they had a four-year course going in dissension. So I'm just awfully grateful to have the opportunity to discover that I was all wrong about the situation."

Stock market advice

Before the semester was out, some of Harrison's younger fellow students were even dropping by his fashionable one-bedroom apartment north of the university campus for some hints on stocks and bonds.

Harrison, a native of Southhaven, Mich., who went to the University of Missouri for two years before making the military his career, said his Colorado courses were a "real eyeopener."

"I've had to change so many of my impressions (about the students)," he said. "I've just been amazed at the intelligent questions that the students have carried on.

"It has just amazed me. And it also has given me an insight into their motives and their goals. I was just sold on them immediately. They really sold me a bill of goods without trying."

Harrison took courses in biblical literature, history and finance. He managed to do some teaching in the finance course because of a personal background in stocks and bonds.

Taught thrift

"One of my duties in the military was to teach thrift to the GIs and, of course, I thought stocks and bonds would be a good opportunity," he explained.

"You can't imagine how rewarding this has been for me. It has really rewarded me, and I feel like I'm not being a parasite."

Jean Ferris, assistant dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said the newly initiated program has benefited the school as well as the senior citizens who took part.

"In many classes the presence of an older person with a very different viewpoint has made a big difference in the depth of the discussion," she said. "The professors that I have talked to have mentioned more than once how valuable it has been to have this older attitude in the class."

Dean Ferris said courses with available space were opened to any state resident 60 years or older who was interested. They paid no fees and received no credit.

No degrees needed

Literature courses and history classes were among the favorites, but other courses included anthropology, the classics, computer science, economics, and one in engineering.

It made no difference whether the senior citizen had a high school or a college degree. They were never asked.

Margie Koenig, an offical in the university's admissions and records office and a member of a committee which worked on the senior citizen program, said:

"I didn't hear one problem— not even that the students were unkind. One gentleman said he thoroughly enjoyed it. He said he didn't even notice the boys' long hair after awhile."

Cancer victim who consoled others dies

DERBY, Conn. (UPI) — Michael Bourque, 11, Shelton, Conn., who gave solace to other cancer victims during his six-month bout with the disease, is dead of bone cancer.

He died at 12:22 a.m. Thursday at Griffin Hospital, where he was admitted last Saturday.

Michael was walking with crutches within three hours of arriving home after an Oct. 9 operation took his right leg. He later wrote a letter of encouragement to Teddy Kennedy Jr., 12, after Teddy had a similar operation Nov. 28.

"Dear Ted," he began. "I'm getting along real good on my crutches. The doctor gave me the good news that I can have an artificial leg."

Although Michael learned last fall that he had bone cancer, he was not told he was dying of a malignancy.

NO LAYOFFS — A spokesman for Inland Steel Co. said there would be no layoffs this week among the 22,500 steel workers at its East Chicago, Ind., plant. Shown is the dwindling coal pile at the plant. Earlier officials predicted big layoffs because of the strike by coal workers in West Virginia.

NASA sees 1st space shuttle test by '78-79

DOWNEY, Calif. (UPI) — The first space shuttle test flights should be made in 1978 or 1979, NASA officials said.

The space shuttle is the current main thrust of the space program. It will be able to fly like an airplane until it leaves the atmosphere, maneuver in space, and return to a runway landing on earth like a conventional plane.

An empty space shuttle will weigh about 150,000 pounds, about 10 times heavier than the Apollo moonships, NASA officials said in a progress report at Rockwell International Corp.

Mistake puts fire axes to historical landmark

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Firemen trainees flailed away with their axes at the walls of the two-story, unoccupied home in the Western Addition until Mrs. Lavana Leutwyler arrived at the scene.

Mrs. Leutewyler screamed that the old Victorian home—which, by the way, was not aflame—belonged to her and had been officially declared a city landmark.

"I was hysterical," she recalled Tuesday. "I screamed for them to stop—that it was my house."

She said she had purchased the home from the city Redevelopment Agency.

Bruins now engaged in 'psych war'

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

TUCSON, Ariz. — The war of psychology has already started for next week's classic basketball matchup in the NCAA finals between seven-time defending champion UCLA and top-ranked North Carolina State.

UCLA had no trouble qualifying for the national finals in methodically disposing of old foe San Francisco, 83-60, to win the West Regional here Saturday afternoon.

Immediately talk started to center around next week's semi-final match between the Bruins and North Carolina State. Marquette and Kansas will play in the other semifinal contest, but most basketball experts feel the national title will really be decided between the Bruins and the Wolfpack at the tournament in Greensboro, N.C.

UCLA coach John Wooden has already started the warfare.

"We want North Carolina State to think about our previous game," Wooden said after Saturday's easy triumph. "I want them to remember we beat them by 18 points and (Bill) Walton played less than half the game. I will assume he will play more this time and I want them to dwell on it. Now go ask North Carolina State who has the psychological edge."

Just in case you forgot, UCLA beat North Carolina State. 84-66, back in December at St. Louis in a game advertised as the battle of the century. But next Saturday's contest at Greensboro is even bigger.

Asked if he minds playing N.C. State back in its home territory, Wooden laughed, "My mother comes from Winston Salem, North Carolina. I have always enjoyed going to North Carolina to visit. I have always found the people there most hospitable and will assume they will be this time."

UCLA looked like its usual domineering self Saturday afternoon in contrast to Thursday night's narrow 111-100 three overtime victory over Dayton. However, the two games were similar in that UCLA enjoyed a 12-point lead at halftime in both contests.

However, the second halves were quite different. While Dayton was able to bounce back and stay with the Bruins, San Francisco just kept falling further behind.

The West championship was all decided when the Bruins raced out to a 57-38 lead with 11:15 left in the game. USF's Phil Smith scored two quick baskets to give some of the fans a little encouragement, but UCLA jumped right back with eight straight points to settle the issue early.

"Yes, I reminded our team to think about Thursday night during our halftime talk," Wooden explained. "I made sure they remembered that we had to fight for our lives the rest of the way. I thought we had a good second half performance today. In fact, it was probably one of our best second halfs of the season.".

Saturday's game started slowly as San Francisco concentrated its defense to stopping Walton, The score was only 4-1 in UCLA's favor after the first five minutes, but the Bruins broke it open when Greg Lee, Dave Meyers and Tommy Curtis scored from the outside to frustrate the Dons' defensive plans.

"I would rather be beat by someone else than Bill Walton," San Francisco coach Bob Galliard explained. "We knew it was a calculated risk but we had to try something. We had to get ahead and establish some sort of command of the game but we didn't."

"We used good patience on offense and intensity on defense," Wooden said. "I would agree that today's game was more like some of our previous games which we won in previous championships."

Walton, who didn't score in the first 12 minutes of the game, again dominated the play with 17 points and nine rebounds in being named the outstanding player of the tournament.

He was joined on the All-Tournament team by teammates Keith Wilkes and Meyers, plus Dayton's Don Smith and Mike Sylvester.

Wilkes, who got into early foul trouble Thursday, showed why he's an All-American Saturday in leading all scoring with 27 points plus eight rebounds. Meyers was the third Bruins to reach double figures in tallying 12.

Kevin Restani and Phil Smith led the Dons with 20 and 18 points apiece.

UCLA shot 51.3 per cent in making 38 of 74 shots while USF hit for 45 per cent in making 27 of 60.

In Saturday's consolation preliminary game, New Mexico defeated Dayton, 66-61 on 14 points apiece by Bernard Hardin and Wendell Taylor. Smith tallied 22 for Dayton but Sylvester, who was so brilliant in scoring 36 Thursday night against the Bruins made only four of 18 shots Saturday for 10.

The consolation game was highlighted by a brief scuffle in which New Mexico's Bill Hagins and Dayton's Jim Testerman were ejected.

When asked his opinion of next week's national championships, Galliard said, "UCLA has a tremendous advantage becuase of its superior attitude. They just don't feel they can lose even though it has been proved they can. The could get beat next week but no team really compares to them. If I was a betting man, I would have to go with them because they are the strongest and the swiftest."

"I have confidence in this team," Wooden said, "but I am well aware anyone can win the national championship if they are good enough to get this far. We're not going back there with any fear in our hearts."

NFL bargaining session hits snag

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The National Football League Players and NFL owners held their first bargaining session on a new contract Saturday and immediately struck a snag over a threatened cut-off of insurance premiums previously paid by the league.

John Thompson and Theodore Kheel, spokesman for the owners' newly created Management Council, said they offered to continue the $64,000-a-month payments beyond the March 31 expiration date if the players would give a no-strike pledge until the first game of the regular season.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the NFL Players Association, termed the action "bad faith negotiating" and rejected the proposal for a no-strike pledge out of hand.

The association executive committee, consisting of Garvey and seven players, submitted an estimated 57 demands, some of them economic but many aimed at providing greater freedom for the players and a diminishing of the authority now held by NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

In an opening statement, Garvey told the owners: "The players accuse you of taking freedom from the players with no justification beyond hollow phrases ... We accuse you of ignoring the injustices occasioned by head coaches and general managers who fine indiscriminately if players exercise their first amendment freedoms...

"It is time to end the suffocating paternalism and suppression of constitutional rights in the National Football League. It is time for freedom."

Among the "freedom" demands was an end to the so-called "Rozelle rule" which requires a team signing a player who has played out his option with another club to pay compensation, usually in the form of high draft choices. The players argue this renders the option proviso meaningless since most clubs hesitate to sign free agents at the cost of their top choices.

Other proposals would give veterans the right to nullify trades and strip Rozelle of his right to arbitrate club-player grievance cases.

The economic demands include increasing the winner and loser shares in the Super Bowl, providing a lump sum adjustment to a player upon retirement, increasing the minimum contract figure from $12,000 to $20,000 a season and hiking the pay for pre-season games.

In the insurance premium dispute, Kheel, who represents the owners in labor affairs, contended that the previous contract which expired March 1 required the league to pay the premiums only for two months beyond that date.

The players cite an insurance brochure issued by the league and their insurance cards which states the coverage would continue for a year beyond Sept. 16, 1973.

Kheel told newsmen after the one-hour and 35 minute session: "The contract is the controlling document. We said we would continue to pay the insurance if they promised there would be no strike before the regular season. They're asking us to subsidize them while they may be on strike. The players in the past have claimed they were being treated like children. Now, they should show maturity and live up to their obligations."

Garvey responded at a separate meeting with newsmen: "We think they are in violation of the law. They're asking for a no strike pledge is an insult. They are presuming there will be a strike; we say we want to reach a settlement and avoid a strike

Player president Bill Curry of the Houston Oilers urged good faith bargaining on both sides of the table and head of the owner's committee, Wellington Mara of the New York Giants echoed his sentiments.

Curry reported that the owners rejected a player proposal that the bargaining sessions be open to the news media. The two groups will meet in Washington on March 26 to seek further clarification of the player demands.

Golden State hands Lakers 30-point loss

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors defeated the Los Angeles Lakers for the second night in a row Saturday night 135-105 to take a one-game lead in their battle for the last spot in the NBA playoffs.

The Warriors broke the game open in the second period when they shot a phenomenal 83 per cent from the floor to take a 71-51 halftime lead. Rick Barry led the charge with 12 points in the period.

The Golden State defense, sparked by substitute center George Johnson, shut down the Lakers with 27 points. Los Angeles could not cut into the lead in the second half as the Warrior defense refused to buckle. Golden State led by as many as 30 points in the final stanza.

Cazzie Russell led the Warrior scoring attack with 34 points. Jeff Mullins scored 24 for Golden State. Elmore Smith paced the Lakers with 25 points and garnered 18 rebounds.

The Warriors have seven games remaining, five at home and two on the road, while Los Angeles will play all its remaining games at home.

Marquette, Kansas advance to finals after exciting wins

BY P-B WIRE DISPATCHES

Marquette and Kansas both scored narrow wins Saturday in the NCAA basketball playoffs and both will advance to next week's finals at Greensboro, N.C.

The fifth-ranked Warriors nipped the Michigan Wolverines 72-70 in the Mideast Regional finals to become one of the four teams going to Greensboro. Kansas became Marquette's foe in that Greenboro matchup as the Jayhawks overcame Oral Roberts 93-90 in overtime in the Midwest Regional.

Marquette grabbed a four-point lead with 45 seconds to play against Michigan when reserve Jerry Homan sank two free throws, and although Michigan's Campy Russell hit a jumper to get Michigan within two, the Warriors held the lead and the game.

Guard Tom Smith broke free for a layup with eight seconds remaining in overtime to clinch the Kansas triumph over Oral Oberts. The Jayhawks were up by as many as 15 points early in the game, but the Titans — with coach Ken Trickey on the bench despite a run-in with police Friday — came back to knot the game at 81-81 at the end of regulation play.

Sam McCants of Oral Roberts paced all scorers in their game wtih 24 points, while Russell hit for 21 in the Michigan loss.

The victories by Kansas and Marquette put them into Saturday's semifinal game. The Jayhawks take a 23-5 record into that matchup, while Marquette holds a 25-4 mark.

Warrior coach Al McGuire believes his team "will be dynamite" in this week's finals.

"I personally believe we're going to be dynamite," said an elated McGuire, whose squad would face either North Carolina State or UCLA if they beat Kansas. However, the Warriors figure to be tested by the Big Eight champion Jayhawk five.

Both teams lack the big stars of N.C. State or the Bruins, but have showed they can maintain their poise, as evidenced by their narrow wins Saturday.

It was an especially sweet win for McGuire and his Warriors, who were underdogs against a talented Michigan team.

"The whammy is broken and it has been a shadow over me," stated McGuire in reference to that fact that Marquette had failed to win the Mideast Regional in five prior times since McGuire came to the Catholic school ten years ago.

In the Mideast Regional consolation game, Notre Dame blasted Vanderbilt 118-88 behind John Shumate. Creighton won the Midwest consolation crown by dumping Louisville 80-71.

Wolfpack rips Pitt despite loss of star

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Top-ranked North Carolina State, stunned when star David Thompson was injured and wheeled unconscious from the gym, roared back to life late in the gamee on the shooting of Tommy Burleson and Monte Towe Saturday to swamp 14th-ranked Pittsburgh 100-72 for the NCAA Eastern Regional championship.

The 7-4 Burleson, Moe Rivers and 5-7 Towe put on a dazzling shooting display, scoring 15 points to only two for Pittsburgh, when Thompson returned to the State bench from the hospital with seven minutes left in the game and sat beside Coach Norman Sloan to cheer for his teammates.

Thompson, an all-American, was injured in the first period when he somersaulted high in the air in a futile attempt to block a shot and landed heavily on his back and head. First efforts to revive him failed and he was wheeled from the playing court to nearby Rex Hospital, leaving his team stunned.

Sloan and the Wolfpack team clamored around Thompson when he returned to the bench, then the team went to work and put the game out of reach.

Burleson led the Pack with 26 points, 16 in the second half. Towe, the smallest man on the court, had 19 and Rivers added 17—15 of them in the second half.

Pittsburgh grabbed an early 3-0 lead as State struggled to figure out its shifting Amoeba defense. Thompson was one of the first to solve the puzzle, and had ripped off six straight points when he was injured.

Kings shut out Red Wings, 2-0

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — Goalie Rogie Vachon posted his fifth shutout of the year and Don Kozak and Juha Widing scored second-period goals Saturday night as the Los Angeles Kings blanked the Detroit Red Wings 2-0.

By running their unbeaten string to seven games, the playoff-bound Kings jumped into sole possession of third place in the NHL West.

HE CAME BACK

North Carolina State's David Thompson holds the championship game net while receiving congratulations after State defeated Pittsburgh for the NCAA East title Saturday. The All-America Thompson was taken to a hospital after an injury but returned to watch the closing minutes of the contest.

Thompson's injury worries Sloan

RALEIGH (UPI) — For a long moment Saturday Coach Norman Sloan of top-ranked North Carolina State wished he had never been associated with basketball.

The moment came when All-America David Thompson lay unconscious on the floor of Reynolds Coliseum, knocked out when he jumped to block a shot, somersaulted and landed on his head.

"There've been a lot of wonderful things happen to us in the past two years and David has been at the center of them," Sloan said. "They all flashed across my mind when I saw David go down. But I thought that none of it, none of these things, were worth it.

"I wished I had never been associated with any of it," he said. "Now maybe that's a bad thing to say, but that's what I thought.

"I was sick," he said. "It was just an awful feeling."

Sloan said he and the Wolfpack team were encouraged by the news that Thompson apparently suffered no serious injuries, though he did have 15 stitches across the back of his head and was to be kept overnight in a hospital for observation.

But Sloan said he was still worried.

"Our minds should be on the finals right now, but they are not," Sloan said. "We want good words on David in the morning. Not that he'll be able to play next week, but that he's really all right."

The Wolfpack earned a berth in the NCAA finals next week in Greensboro, N.C. by downing 14th-ranked Pittsburgh 100-72 in the NCAA Eastern Regional championship game Saturday.

Dr. James Manly, a Raleigh surgeon, said Thompson should be able to play in the finals barring any "unforeseen" developments in his condition.

Thompson, who returned from the hospital where he was taken for X-rays to sit on the bench for the last few minutes of the game, tied with teammate Tommy Burleson for outstanding player of the tournament.

He was still wearing his uniform as he returned from the hospital and crossed the floor to the bench to the cheers of the 12,400 fans.

Sloan said he was proud of the team for remaining calm and controlled after Thompson's injury. And he felt the effort against Pitt "may have been our best defensive game of the year.

"The key was a great individual man-to-man press on them," he said. "We had to run them out of their kind of game. I think we were very successful at it."

Sloan said he felt the Wolfpack became "quicker and more determined" after Thompson's injury. Pitt Coach Buzz Ridl agreed.

"With him out, we had that much better an opportunity, or so I thought," Ridl said. "But it turned out that State seemed to become really inspired and rightly so."

HANGING HIGH — Marquette's Lloyd Walton lets out a yell as he cuts the net from the rim after his team's 72-70 win over Michigan in the NCAA Mideast Regional Tournament Saturday.

A nearly perfect Saturday for college baseball teams

Azusa Pacific and Pomona-Pitzer swept doubleheaders, Chaffey College continued its winning ways in the Mission Conference, but Cal Poly dropped a costly twinbill in Saturday's college baseball action.

Azusa Pacific dumped Southern California College twice, by scores of 2-0 and 20-0. Pomona-Pitzer got two wins over L.A. Baptist, winning the opener 7-1 and the nightcap 6-5. Chaffey won a league decision over Saddleback by a 14-10 score.

Cal Poly took it on the chin in their California Collegiate Athletic Association doubleheader with Cal State Northridge, losing both games by scores of 3-2 and 11-5 respectively.

Mike Heinen and John Riddle combined to hurl a four-hitter for Poly in the opener, but two of those hits were a triple by Dennis Chavez and a home run by Bob Azzarito.

Tom Nelson limited the Broncos to only five hits in the Matador outburst.

In the second game CSN scored three in the first and six in the fourth to win 11-5. Vic Bernal, who had hurled a no-hitter for Cal Poly in his last outing, was the victim of the Matado outburst.

In Bernal's defense however was the lack of defense behind him.

The Broncos committed the woeful total of eight errors in the nightcap, leading to 10 unearned runs.

Steve Ludewig slugged a three-run homer and Clay Harris had a solo shot for Poly, while Pete Alexander had four hits on the day for the only Bronco highlights.

The loss seriously hurts the Broncos' CCAA hopes, as they fell to a 2-5 league mark and an overall 6-13 ledger.

Elsewhere in the valley, things went much better for local nines.

Pomona-Pitzer ran its season mark to 4-1 with two wins over L.A. Baptist. Jon Blacker fired six-hitter in the Sagehens' 7-1 win in the first game, while P-P survived a five-run third in the nightcap to post a 6-5 victory.

Dave Jones, with nine K's in 6 and 2-3rds innings of relief work, picked up the win for P-P. The Hens won the game in the ninth as Biff Sherman walked, took second and third on wild pitches, and scored on Paul Miller's single.

Miller and Sherman both wound up the day with four hits apiece to pace the Pomona-Pitzer offense. The Sagehens square off against Whittier next Tuesday in a league battle.

Azusa Pacific also won a twinbill, beating Southern Cal College twice on shutouts. Mike Jones blanked SCC in the opener 2-0 and Ken Jones had it even easier in the nightcap with a big 20-0 victory.

Ted Dominguez cracked a two-run homer to win the first game for the Cougars, who then bombed SCC pitchers for 19 hits and 20 runs in the finale.

Ken Nance slugged two homers in the 20-0 game, while Bobby Nall and Curt Mitchell had one apiece. Mike Rogers had a five-hit afternoon, as did Dominguez.

A-P goes against Chapman Tuesday at Chapman.

Chaffey College continued to roll in the Mission Conference, riding a six-run seventh frame to a 14-10 win over Saddleback. Mark Berrier's three-run homer gave the Panthers the win.

Gary Sloan had four hits for Chaffey, while Berrier had three and four RBI's. Ralph Valadez drove home four runs and also saved the game with some sharp relief pitching. Valadez and Dennis Chavez had round-trippers addition to Berrier.

Chaffey is now 6-1 in the MC and will host San Bernardino Monday.

Mazmanian pleased

Mounties rip S.A.

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

SANTA ANA — "When you win four out of five in a week in this league," said Mt. San Antonio College baseball coach Art Mazmanian, "you've done something."

The veteran Mountie skipper was understandably pleased following Saturday afternoon's 10-2 rout of Santa Ana in South Coast Conference baseball action.

It was MSAC's 13th victory in 16 games on the season, the fourth in five this busy week, setting the stage for Tuesday's crucial meeting with five-time defending SCC champion Cerritos on the Mountie field.

While the Mounties were avenging Thursday's 6-3 loss to the Don's, Cerritos gained its sixth conference victory and 34th straight over two seasons by shutting out Fullerton 5-0. In other games Orange Coast and San Diego Mesa split a twinbill, Coast winning the opener 1-0 and falling in the nightcap, 4-0.

It's a two-team race in the South Coast as the Mounties try to cut into the front-runner's two-game lead in the standings. Santa Ana is three games off the pace at 3-3.

Lefthander Bobby Chaulk (5-0) and reliever Fernie Tarin combined to limit Santa Ana to just two hits and two runs, both coming off Chaulk in a shaky first inning.

But it was all Mounties after that, as Mazmanian's hitters ruined three Santa Ana pitchers with 14 hits. Veteran outfielder Pat Corcoran led the parade with a five-for-six effort, with two runs batted in and two runs scored. Shortstop Mike Parkinson followed that up with a two-for-four afternoon with three ribbies.

Designated hitter Don Cashen and third baseman Kevin Bell also had two hits and an RBI apiece for the Mounties.

Chaulk, the little lefty from Ganesha High, served up a single and a triple to the first two batters he faced, and then a fielder's choice accounted for two runs in the first inning.

But that was his only lapse in five innings as he shut out the Dons without a hit until he left in the sixth after aggravating a back injury. Tarin, a 6-3, 195 pound righthander, came on to throw goose-eggs at the Dons the rest of the way. It was the freshman's first appearance of the season.

The Mounties scored all but one of their runs in the first four innings, putting the game away with a three-run second and a four-run fourth frame. They had single tallies in the first, third and ninth innings.

Corcoran opened the game with a triple, a shot to right-center, and he came home two outs later on a double by Cashen.

Parkinson picked up two of his three RBIs in the second with a single that plated Bell and first-baseman Bob Mosco who had doubled.

The Mounties collected five hits in the four-run fourth, the key play being a two-base error by the Santa Ana leftfielder.

A rarity: Leos drop both ends

By GRAHAM CROW
P-B Correspondent

LA VERNE — It was nearly two years ago on April 1, 1972 (no fooling) that La Verne lost a doubleheader to powerful Arizona State in beautiful downtown Tempe.

Since that time Ben Hines' Leos have played 20 twinbills, winning 13 and splitting seven others. They had not lost two games in one day since that Arizona trip.

That is, until Saturday.

Chapman College handed La Verne a pair of defeats, and in front of the Leo home fans of all places, as the Panthers evened their record at 10-10 by scoring victories of 8-6 and 5-3.

La Verne's mark fell to a surprisingly unimpressive 5-4. And this was reported to be Hines best team ever. Does he still think so?

"Potentially we still are stronger than any other La Verne team I've coached," answered Hines. "But we sure aren't playing good ball. Our hitters are standing at the plate looking at strikes and our leadoff men are leading the team in strikeouts."

The heralded pitching staff didn't live up to its press clippings either Saturday as Robb Mayhew, 13-2 last season with national champion United States International University, saw his record dip to 0-3 in the nightcap while Dan Quisenberry was touched up for six runs in two inings of the opener.

Physical errors in the field cost the Leos also as the five runs in the second inning of the first game were all unearned while an error by third baseman Hank Merenda allowed Chapman to break a 2-2 tie with a pair of unearned tallies.

One of the players not having trouble at the plate is designated hitter Mike "Bubba" Alonso. He hit his third home run of the season in the eighth inning and added a single and a double in his four trips to the plate. Eric Frazier also collected two singles in the opener.

The second game saw the aces of each staff facing each other with Chapman's Dana McManus coming out on top. Mayhew got himself into trouble in the first as Julius Bowe slugged the first pitch to deep left for a double.

A single and a walk loaded the bases with no one out and then Mayhew issued two run-scoring walks before getting out of the inning.

La Verne bounced back to tie the score in the fourth on solo homers by Merenda and Nick Leyva but when Chapman regained the lead with two unearned runs in the fifth, the Leos missed golden opportunity in the bottom of the inning.

With runners on first and second with one out, Wayne Redfearn and Alonso failed to put the ball into play, both striking out — ending the inning and frustrating Hines immensely. La Verne's final run came on Leyva's second round tripper of the game.

The Leos will have to start playing sounder baseball Tuesday when they open defense of their Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference title at home against Redlands. Otherwise, Hines' predicted "best ever" season might wind up as his shortest ever without a trip to the playoffs.

THE FLORIDA SHARKS of the WFL announced they have signed former NFL quarterback John Stofa.

Poly spikers whip Aztecs

By CRAIG TRAVIS
P-B Staff Writer

POMONA — Cal Poly's new track coach, Fred Jones, brought a lot of class to the school.

The former California International Track Club skipper invited some world class competitors to "workout" at Broncoville Saturday while Cal Poly eased past San Diego State 94-67, in a nonleague dual meet.

Among those needing no introduction were sprint stars Leon Brown, Willie Deckard and Stan Whitley.

Brown edged former Cal Poly sprinter Ron Williams in a heat of the 100-yard dash, 9.8 to 9.9 Deckard was clocked in 22.0 in a heat of the 220 while Whitley, Williams, Poly's Elliot Thomas and Brown ran a 41.1 440 relay.

Cal Poly's winning margin, in its third victory of the season, came in the field events where the Broncos swept the hammer throw, discus and high jump in outscoring the Aztecs 53-18.

San Diego State, lacking its 100 yard dash world record holder Steve Williams and spring star James Redd, enjoyed a narrow 49-41 advantage in the running events.

Russ Reobold paced Poly's field events with a double win in the shot put and the discus. Both marks, 50-2 and 148-9, were among his best marks of the year. In fact, Reobold bettered his lifetime best in the discus by nearly eight feet.

Mike DeShayne threw a lifetime best 155-10 to win the hammer throw event and Tim O'Connor won the javelin with a toss of 192-8, with John Sedia placing third at 177 feet. DeShayne's mark would have been enough to win the conference last year.

Poly swept the high jump with Mark Kipley, and Joe Schiefer clearing 6-6 while Claude Chumley was third at 6-4. Emory Montgomery won the triple jump with an effort of 47-6¾.

Myron McGill was Poly's sprint star for the day. He won the 220 with a personal best 21.5, placed second in the 100 at 9.7 (Keith Denson won the heat with the same time) and anchored the winning 440 and mile relay teams.

Doug Dantzler enjoyed a fine day, running legs on the 440 and mile relay teams, placing third in the 100 at 9.9, and third in the 220 at 22.5.

Poly's Darryl Hamilton won the 440 intermediate hurdles in 55.6 and ran a leg of the mile relay team, which was timed in 3:18.4 — their best time of the year by 6½ seconds — and was second in the 120 highs in 15.0.

"I knew we'd win when San Diego's three key athletes were left at home," said Jones. The Broncos are relying on the strength of their field events for another month.

"We'll be in better shape in the running events after April 1," continued Jones "we'll have six or seven junior college transfers by then including a long jumper and a hurdler, but we're still in need of another good sprinter."

Top teams in Foothill Relays

San Dimas, Claremont impressive

AZUSA — San Dimas and Claremont raced to a one-two finish in the Foothill Invitational High School Relays held at Citrus College Saturday.

San Dimas won the 14-school competition with a total of 29 points, while Claremont took second place team honors with 25 points. Glendora High was third with 19.

The biggest event for the Saints was the 440 relay, where the San Dimas' team of Bob Childress, Mike Bailous, Rich Burke, and Tim Shepard raced to a first place with a 45.0 clocking.

The Saints also captured first in the mile relay, as Dan Hitchens ran a blazing 49.0 anchor lap and San Dimas came home the winner in 3:28.1. Bailous, Shepard, and Jim Ratcliff were the other three members of the team.

Claremont did well in the field events, the Wolfpack capturing the high jump and pole vault competition and finishing second in the shotput. The Saints captured the long jump event.

John Powers vaulted 13 feet, 9 inches to pace the Pack in the pole vault, while Perez Shoemaker jumped 20 feet, 11 inches in the long jump.

Shepard took home three gold and one silver medal for the Saints to spearhead their team victory. San Dimas took second in the schuttle hurdles, third in the distance medley, and third in the pole vault competition to round out the big day for locals.

Youth tourney at Palm Lake

POMONA — Palm Lake Golf Course was once again the site of the monthly golf competition Saturday, with several youngsters bringing home first prizes.

In the 7-10 year-old girls' division, Kim Mack copped first place with a 46 score over nine holes. Ray Linares won the 7-10 boys' division with a 38, while Brian Hill was runnerup with a 43.

Winners in the older age groups were determined by a partner best-ball basis. Dave Hillman and John Busch teamed for a 76 and first place in the 11-12 year-old grouping, while Jeff Beldsoe and Mike McDonald fired a 63 to win the 13-14 year-old prize.

Al Wetters and Al Haver had a 58 for first place in the 15-17 age bracket.

Next competition in the monthy tourney will be held April 20 at Palm Lake.

Pincay suspended again

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Leading rider Laffit Pincay Jr., was handed his fourth suspension of the meeting Saturday by the Santa Anita Board of Stewards for careless riding Friday.

Pincay drew his five-day suspension for careless riding and causing interference in the first race Friday with Ruby Satan which was disqualified and placed second.

Despite having been grounded for 15 days prior to the latest suspension, Pincay was the leading rider at Santa Anita at the start of Saturday's program with 77 winners. The latest suspension starts Tuesday and runs through Saturday.

Green, Wiechers lead way

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Hubert Green and Jim Wiechers, both shooting remarkable golf, charged into a tie for the lead at 11-under par 205 in the third round of the $150,000 Greater Jacksonville Open golf tournament Saturday.

Green shot a four-under par 68 and Wiechers had a remarkable six-under par 66 over the par 72, 7,088-yard Deerwood Country Club course.

Two strokes back at 207 was Texan John Mahaffey. At 209 were Homero Blancas, Labron Harris and New Zealand's Bob Charles.

Green had five birdies and two bogeys en route to his third round total.

Wiechers carded an eagle on the par-5 16th hole and four birdies.

Bunched at six-under par 210 were Dewitt Weaver, Larry Nelson and Tom Weiskopf.

Arnold Palmer ran into putting problems on his round and shot a five-over par 77 which put him in a bunch at par 216 with nine others.

Lee Trevino carded a 69 for a three-round total of 214.

University of Florida golfer Gary Koch, the only amateur in the tournament, had a 73 Saturday for a three-round total of 218.

Green, a graduate of Florida State University in Tallahassee, said he was tired after his third round finish, but felt he had enough stamina to win the $30,000 first prize money today.

"It's exciting to be out there with all those people following you around from hole to hole, but it tires you out mentally and physically when you play the way you have to play to win," said the 27-year-old Green.

Green won the Bob Hope Desert Classic earlier this year and his next best finish was a third in the Phoenix Open. He won over $100,000 on the tour last year and he has already earned $52,628 this year.

As they have throughout the tournament, high winds played hob with drives and long shots.

"You can hit what you think is the best shot of your life and find that you're 30 or 40 feet from the hole," said Green.

Wiechers called his 66 "the best round I've played tee-to-green this year. I cannot hit the ball better than I hit it today. All my shots landed at or very near the pin."

Weaver said he was "tickled to death to be where I am. What else could be better except leading the tournament?"

Weaver, who has relatives in the Jacksonville area, said a lot of his kinfolk were in his gallery.

"And I could see them closing their eyes every time I hit a putt," he said.

Wiechers' 66 was the best round so far in the 54-hole tournament which ends today.

Triple Crown heads San Felipe Handicap

ARCADIA, Calif. (UPI) — Stakes star Triple Crown meets Money Lender, Rube The Great and seven other horses today in the $70,700 San Felipe Handicap at Santa Anita.

Triple Crown captured the San Vicente and San Jacinto stakes events in his last two outings and will share the topweight of 124 pounds with Money Lender. Money Lender edged Triple Crown in the San Miguel Stakes earlier in the Santa Anita meeting.

Braulio Baeza will be aboard Triple Crown and Denis Tierney will ride Money Lender.

Rube The Great, winner in the Santa Catalina Stakes, will carry 120 pounds. Rube the Great came from far back in the Catalina to edge Aloha Mood in 1:43 for the mile and one-sixteenth. Angel Santiago will ride Rube The Great. . .

Aloha Mood has a chance to avenge the Catalina defeat. Don Pierce will be in the saddle, carrying 118 pounds.

Rounding out the field are L'Amour Rullah, stable mate of Rube The Great; Bold Clarion, a son of Kentucky Derby winner Proud Clarion; Wedge Shot, Bold Talent, Destroyer and Stardust Mel.

Court Ruling, Captain Cee Jay and Woodland Pines head up the two divisions of the split San Bernardino Handicap, Saturday's feature. The two divisions will be run as Santa Anita's sixth and eighth races, both at a mile and one-eighth on the turf course. The combined purse is over $83,000.

Court Ruling faces Golden Eagle II, Acclimatization, Stook Massa, Scantling, Star Of Kuwait and Hillmoss in the first division. Captain Cee Jay and Woodland Pines will be joined by Dutch Candy, Indefatigable, Wichita Oil, Allervale and Barrydown in the lower division.

Tee to cup

James Garner must have known something others didn't in the fifth annual Cal 500 Golf Invitational at Ontario National Golf Club last Friday.

The movie and TV star ignored the rain and told the assembled and apprehensive golfers, "I'm going out there and play golf. Are you fellows going out there with me?" It was something right out of one of his movie scripts. (Darby's Rangers?). The golfers cheered and followed Garner.

Garner shot an impressive 75, 4-over, and eventually won the charity event for the second time after a coin flip with his brother Jack and the amazing 69-year-old Charlie Lane.

Jack Garner, who lost two coin flips, won an eight-day Hawaiian vacation for two at the Waikiki Surf via Continental Airlines for coming closest to the pin (5½ feet) on the 185-yard 16th. Penny Thomas was next with 11 ft. 2½ in.

Actually, Craig Stadler, U.S. Amateur champ from USC, was closest with three-feet but had signed a waiver before the tournament along with Walker Cupper Mark Pfeil, that he would not accept any prizes—to maintain his amateur status.

Dennis James won a set of Parnelli Jones Firestone tires for coming closest to the pin (5-feet, 4 inches on the 150-yard 13th but nobody won the Datsun for a hole in one on the unlucky seventh (175 yards).

Percy Rodrigues won net with 67. Dennis James was second with 71, trailed by Buddy Lester and Earl Averill, 71; Ed Nelson and Westmoreland, 72, Bob Morgan, 73; Jerry Maren, 74, and Jerome Thore, 75.

TOM McHUGH has been named head professional and general manager of Corona National Golf Club. McHugh will continue as director of tournament sales and promotion.

McHugh succeeds Dixon Robb, who resigned to become the northern California salesman for the new Jerry Barber golf clubs.

Corona National will be the fourth club in the 10-course family of National Golf Courses with which McHugh has been associated. He previously served as head pro at San Geronimo National in Marin County, Pomona National and Ontario National.

Prep All-Star cage game format changed

FULLERTON — The Fifth Annual Southern California CIF-Los Angeles City All-Star basketball game will be played Wednesday, July 10, 1974 at Titan Gymnasium on the campus of California State University-Fullerton. Tipoff for the All-Star classic will be 8 p.m.

The format for the all-star affair has been changed according to game co-chairmen Tom Danley of Katella (Anaheim) High School, and Bill Murray, head coach at Walnut High School.

"In the past," said Danley, "two games were played; one featuring the 4-A CIF all-stars vs. the LA City all-stars, and another called the North-South game which included players from 3-A, 2-A and 1-A CIF schools. This year the game will truly be an all-star match with all four divisions of the CIF playing the best players from the Los Anteles area."

The game will be sponsored by the California Coaches Association.

In announcing the date and site of the game, Danley and Murray also announced the appointment of Dick Schrieber (Beverly Hills High School) as ticket chairman, and John Culwell (Cal State-Fullerton SID) as publicity and program chairman.

Long's more physical now

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Barry Long has finally disposed of the monicker "Gentle Ben."

The 25-year-old Los Angeles Kings defenseman decided he'd rather fight than sit.

In his five previous professional hockey league seasons, the 6-foot-2, 204-pound Long was known more for his ability to maneuver the puck than for separating opposing forwards from it.

"I haven't gotten overly aggressive," he said, "but I've gotten to the point where I'm playing the body more than the puck. I'm taking men out from in front of the net harder. I'm being more physical than in the past."

After sitting out the first 16 games this season, Long came to the realization that, "Either I start doing that (hitting) or I was gong to sit up in the stands."

Last season was Long's first in the National Hockey League after four in the minors and he scored two goals and 13 assists while drawing 48 penalty minutes in 70 games for the sixth place Kings.

He decided his then 220 pounds were too bulky for the NHL and with the help of his wife and a Weight Watchers diet, he shed the excess to trim down to his present 204.

But despite his efforts, Long was relegated to "civvies" in the early going, probably because of his pacifist playing habits.

"I worked hard in the summer and lost weight," said the native of Bradford, Ont. "I went to camp with great hopes of playing. I was very disappointed when I didn't but I stayed in shape."

He bided his time and his chance came

"We'd lost a few games in a row," Long recalled, "and I started playing in Detroit one night. Then we had the big trade Dec. 1, sending defenseman Gilles Marotte and winger Real Lemieux to the New York Rangers for Mike Murphy, Tommy Williams and Sheldon Kannegiesser."

When selling home:

Should you handle sale?

By DOROTHEA BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — When the time comes to sell a house, most families turn automatically to a real estate broker but it's a good bet most of them wonder if they couldn't handle the deal themselves and save money.

It's a moot question.

The experts generally advise that the sale of property is a job for professionals. Still, thousands of families do sell their homes themselves and at least some of them come out ahead financially.

As with most things, it's a matter of time and know-how.

Louis Gilmore, a real estate professional, author of a new book, "For Sale by Owner," (Simon and Schuster, $3.95), says, "The entire system of home transfer in this country is one of the most costly exchange mechanisms to be found anywhere. The combination of brokerage fees and other transfer expenses take a huge toll from the seller. By far the largest and most obvious of these fees is the brokerage commission (which in some cities is now running as high as 7 per cent of the selling price)."

Do-It-Yourself method

The sale of a house, Gilmore says, involves several distinct and separate parts, almost all undertaken by the real estate broker. "Some of these services," he says, "can be purchased from other professionals and the balance can be performed competently by the average home owner." In separate chapters, he spells out his do-it-yourself method of sale:

—A professional residential appraiser (the kind used by banks and savings and loan associations) establishes the "fair market value" of the home.

—The owner prepares his house for showing by repairing, painting and cleaning where necessary. He enhances its condition and makes selling easier and faster.

—The owner prepares a "listing sheet," a newspaper advertisement and buys a "For Sale by Owner" sign.

—The owner distributes his listing sheet, places the newspaper advertisement and positions the sign.

—The owner shows his house to prospective buyers.

—The owner, working with a bank or savings and loan officer, helps the buyer with financing.

—A lawyer experienced in home sales draws up a sales contract, obtains and interprets evidence of title, and closes the transaction.

Costs vary, according to location, price of house, length of time it takes to sell. Typically, however, Gilmore says, costs for a $35,000 suburban house that sells in a reasonable length of time would run about $425 —$75 for appraisal, $50 for advertising material, $150 newspaper advertising, $150 lawyer's fee — this compared with, perhaps, $2,100 or more for sale through a broker.

Gilmore emphasizes the selling job is not always an easy one, but says a homeowner who is willing to do his homework not only can sell successfully but actually has some special factors operating in his favor: motivation, intimate knowledge and identification with the house and the neighborhood.

Some disadvantages

On the other hand, another professional, Hugh C. Ross, president of J.I. Kislak Mortgage Corp., a national mortgage banking company, says when it comes to selling a house, the "do-it-yourself philosophy can very easily work to the homeowner's disadvantage."

Ross says except in special circumstances selling a house privately "involves far more time and effort than most people realize and the actual selling price may wind up substantially below the firm price the homeowner had hoped to get on his own."

For one thing, he notes, "most buyers believe, whether true or false, that owners inflate the price of a home. A prospective purchaser will try to force the price down even though the owner has had all the effort and selling expense."

Also, Ross says, many prospective home buyers overestimate their ability to qualify financially for the house they have in mind. A real estate broker is trained to pre-qualify a prospect's financial abilities, thereby avoiding the time-consuming expense and frustration of contacts with homeseekers who eventually discover they cannot afford to go through with the purchase.

A broker's experience and contacts in arranging financing can be a major factor in a sale.

A broker is not emotionally involved with a house, as a homeowner is likely to be. He can look at it impartially. A prospective purchaser is much more likely to discuss any reservations about a house with a broker than with the homeowner. Once any hidden objections are brought to light, often they can be resolved and a sale made.

A broker always is available to show a property, whether or not the owner is at home. Equally important, Ross said, a real estate agent sees to it that only legitimate prospects will be admitted to see the house, not the bargain hunters, speculators, window shoppers and just plain curious who may be attracted by a for-sale sign.

AL TOMSIK, president of Tomsik Sales Institute, will be speaker at the Pomona Valley Board of Realtor's monthly luncheon Tuesday at Orlando's Restaurant. He is also chairman of the Professional Marketing Association and nationally known as a sales management consultant.

Hawkins Co. offers new realty class

EL MONTE — Don Kalal and Associates, which has trained thousands of real estate license applicants, has been appointed to direct the Herbert Hawkins Realtors license preparations classes which begin Thursday.

The eight session course, which can be started at any time, will be held on Thursdays at 7 p.m. at the company's training center, 11031 E. Valley Blvd., El Monte.

The cost is $75 which includes all lectures, practice examinations and materials. There is, however, a pre-opening special price of $50 for all registrations received by Thursday, said officials.

Successful graduates will be invited to join the Hawkins firm at any of its 32 sales offices on a full or part-time basis. Those who associate with the firm will be refunded their full tuition upon completion of their first sale.

In addition to sales openings, many management opportunities will be available to meet the 1974 corporate plans for increasing the number of sales offices.

At C-L Ranch:

5 plans offered buyers

ALTA LOMA — Buyers of homes at the C-L Ranch development here will have a choice of five floor plans.

These three, four and five bedroom houses are built for families who enjoy the outdoors. Some homes have half-acre lots designed and zoned for horses.

The housing project, located near Beryl Avenue and Hillside Road, will have its opening today. Two furnished model homes will be open for inspection. These were built by the Crowell-Leventhal, Inc.

During the early stage of development, the buyer may select from any of the five floor plans or any of the large scenic lots, said Roy Leventhal, vice president.

"An early buyer may also choose from many styles of exteriors and have control over the interior color coordination of their new home," he added. "This is an opportunity not often available to the buyer.

"We also have a wide selection of special carpets, drapes and the latest appliances available at low builder's prices, thus enabling the homeowner to furnish his new home in the manner they desire with a minimum of expense."

This is a time for the "wise buyer" to buy his home, said Leventhal. "The dollar is worth more now than it will be in the future. We can expect the price of construction to increase. The price of building materials is sky-rocketing.

"But more importantly, the decrease in housing construction forecasted in reaction to the energy crisis will make the demand for available new homes even greater, thus boosting the price tag."

The home models being offered include:

—The Northview, a two story, four bedroom home with three bathrooms and two fireplaces. It also has a wet bar, formal dining room, three car garage, walk-in closet, master bedroom suite and vaulted ceilings.

—The Silver Spur, a four bedroom home with two bathrooms, family room, master suite, open-beamed living room with fireplace and three car garage.

In all homes, both tile and shake roofs are available.

To reach the homes, persons can take the San Bernardino Freeway to Euclid Avenue in Upland, go north to 19th Street, east to Beryl then north to Hillside.

Real estate groups plan programs on apartment houses

CLAREMONT — An educational seminar on apartment houses will be held March 28 at Griswold's Inn.

The program is sponsored by the California Real Estate Association (CREA) and its 26th District Education Committee, said J. Stan Heckmer, district education chairman.

Program topics will be "Marketing Investment Property — Apartment Houses" and "Tax Free Exchange — Apartment Houses."

The all-day session is open to the public. Members of realty boards and the CREA may earn a unit of credit toward the Graduation, Realtors Institute (GRI) certificate and designation.

The registration fee is $15, which includes course materials, examination, coffee and luncheon. For more information, persons may contact the Pomona Valley Board of Realtors, 665 N. Garey Ave., Pomona. The telephone number is 623-1607.

"This is an opportunity for real estate practitioners to broaden their knowledge and understanding of their profession," said Heckmer.

"The course features advanced materials designed to help Realtors and salesmen who already have a good working knowledge of the real estate business but who want to learn more, especially new techniques for helping their clients."

The faculty and materials are furnished by the CREA, with the local board making other conference arrangements, he explained.

The courses include:

Marketing, apartment houses — Presentation of standardized forms for brokers to use for entering complete information about an investment property. This includes income, expenses, yield and value.

Tax free exchange — This is a case study of an apartment owner who holds a seven unit apartment house for 10 years and exchanges it for 37 units for which he adds some cash.

Four forms are completed: property analysis of seven units; property analysis of 37 units; exchange basis adjustment; and exchange contract.

Prototype wall planned:

Freeway fence may help to silence freeway noise

FONTANA — Good fences make good neighbors, especially when they reduce freeway traffic noise from adjacent homes.

In construction of freeways, engineers are challenged to employ the most economical method of curbing noise pollution when the highway runs through business or residential areas.

Until now, huge mounds of earth or masonry walls were erected to muffle vehicle sounds. Steel was never considered as a material for construction of highway sound barriers until this year when the State Department of Transportation office in San Bernardino agreed to build a prototype wall.

"We are interested in looking at whatever kinds of material will solve some of our environmental problems at the last expense, consistent with satisfactory results," said William R. Williams, state deputy director of environmental and community affairs.

Larry Daniels, Kaiser Steel Co.'s manager of engineering sales, began working on the project two years ago. "Legislative demands are ever increasing to isolate property adjacent to the freeway from sound pollution," said Daniels.

"I had been working with the concept of embedding one end of attractively colored steel sheets into the ground to form a sound reflecting wall. The big advantage to using steel as opposed to masonry in this instance is cost. Savings in using steel walls is about $10,000 per each thousand feet," Daniels said, "and considering how many sound barriers are built each year, we're talking about quite a bit of money."

Department of Transportation air and noise quality studies engineer Dick Barrett received permission from the San Bernardino office to begin the experimental construction of a steel sound barrier in an area just off the San Bernardino Freeway.

"We had received complaints about noise from Sixth Street residents in Ontario when we completed widening the freeway," Barrett said, "so we decided to take that opportunity to build our steel wall. The matrial was donated by Kaiser Steel, and construction and design were furnished by our department."

Following completion of the 300-foot-long barrier, noise readings were taken by Department of Transportation sound experts, who reported the reduction of noise to the neighborhood at acceptable levels.

"Initial tests look promising," Daniels continued, "and the state plans to construct a much larger model in the Sacramento area."

Bids accepted for abatement

SAN BERNARDINO — The San Bernardino County department of agriculture is accepting bids on an annual contract for the weed and fire hazard abatement program in a portion of the West End of the county.

The area includes Chino, Alta Loma and Cucamonga fire districts.

Bids will be accepted until 10 a.m. April 12 when they will be opened and read publicly.

For more information and bid forms, persons may contact the agriculture department at 566 Lugo Ave., San Bernardino, or phone (714) 383-1848.

New electric plant planned

MAMMOTH — The Southern California Edison Co. and Magma Energy, Inc., have announced plans for the research and development of a geothermal energy electric generating station near Mammoth in Mono County.

The firms awarded a contract to the Ben Holt Co. of Pasadena to design the generating station.

The new plant will incorporate a new concept of power generation which employs the Magmamax power process as developed by the Mamga Energy Inc. It will be on fee lands owned by Magma.

The supply of energy will be produced from wells previously developed, said officials. The plant may be completed late this year or early 1975.

Century 21 adds brokers

SANTA ANA — The Century 21 Real Estate Corp., a national franchise firm based in Santa Ana, has increased its number of broker members in the past six months from 300 to over 550.

Each broker is an independent businessman who takes advantage of the Century 21 name nationally to promote referral programs between offices.

Some advantages of joining the national firm are mass advertising, recruiting services and schools, sales training programs and purchasing power, said officials.

In the San Gabriel Valley and Inland Empire region, 65 real estate offices are now associated with Century 21. These have all opened since Sept. 10, 1972, reported Philip Yeager, regional director.

The program, starting at 7 p.m., will be held at the Grand Hotel in Anaheim. Officials of three Southern California firms which have recorded impressive sales will be the speakers.

They are Thomas Gonzalez, vice president of Deane Development Co., developer of University Park in Irvine; Michael Brief, sales and marketing director of Standard Pacific, selling units at The Terrace in Irvine; and Paul Chamberlain, advertising director of Barclay-Hollander-Curci, which is offering the Villa Marina East townhouses.

Buyers have choice of floor plans

SAN DIMAS — Buyers of Cinnamon Creek townhomes here have a choice of four different floor plans.

These homes are offered with two and three bedrooms, with single and two story designs, said Phil A. Moore, marketing director of Kaufman and Broad, Inc., builders.

"We found that when homebuyers purchase a townhome they desire most of the things that are found in the single family dwelling such as a garage, private patios and formal and informal entertainment areas.

"They are also keenly aware of privacy within the home itself. They want entertainment sections of the home to be separated from the sleeping and study rooms," he added.

"The homes at Cinnamon Creek were designed to meet all of these requirements."

Each home has a private entrance to a wood-fenced patio in the front and an enclosed garage in the rear. The garage has direct access to the home for safety and convenience. It also has a special storage and washer-dryer service area.

All plans have living rooms and dining areas that overlook the enclosed patio, providing an extension of living and entertainment space and a comfortable outdoor dining area.

The one-story home has a vaulted ceiling and is located at the end of each cluster with only one common wall. It has two bedrooms that are located away from the living and entertainment areas.

The two-story design has two or three bedrooms. The master bedroom suite has its own private balcony providing a retreat for reading or TV viewing. The living room on this plan features a dramatic split-level open stairway.

Homes are priced from $25,490 with five per cent down payment conventional financing available.

Features included in the purchase price are refrigerated air conditioning, wall-to-wall shag carpeting, built-in kitchens that include brush chrome range, oven and dishwasher and butcher block type formica countertops.

The decorated model homes and the sales office are located at 720 S. Valley Center in San Dimas. They are reached via the Foothill Freeway to Covina Boulevard exit, then west on Covina Boulevard to Valley Center.

It's serious: jeans shortage

By ERMA BOMBECK

I read something the other day that almost made my heart stop beating.

Rep. Morris K. Udall from Arizona predicted in his newslatter to his constituents to get ready for shortages in wool, cotton and synthetic fibers that will cause clothing prices to soar. Then he added, "There is even talk of rationing blue jeans."

If blue jeans become any tighter, any more faded, any more worn, or any less available, teen-agers are going to have to go through life sitting under a table.

Believe me, this nation cannot stand another "jeans" cutback. In Russia, they are paying $50 a pair for faded, worn jeans from the United States (which is a 100 per cent markup over what they paid for our wheat).

I didn't realize how serious the situation was until my daughter dragged me into a fashionable department store last week.

"Do you have any old secondhand jeans?" she asked.

"Didn't you see the sign?" she asked. "NO JEANS TODAY. OPEN FOR SERVICE ONLY."

"I wouldn't ask only I'm pretty desperate," said my daughter. She took off her coat and turned around to reveal her underwear coming through the seat.

"We have a few jeans for regular customers only," said the clerk stiffly, "but I'll show them to you. Now here's a pair that went through eight owners, two communes, and a rock festival. You'll notice the seat is seasoned and is so smooth it's about ready to break through. There's a patch over one knee, the hems are raveling and they've been bleached over 800 times."

"I love them," squealed my daughter. "How much?"

"$30."

"Thirty dollars!" I gasped.

"Minus your trade-in," she amended.

"What trade-in? You mean that pair of grubby pants that are disintegrating before our very eyes?"

"You'd be surprised what they will bring after they've been bleached a few more times and patched. With the shortage, we take what we can."

I had to ask, "Where did these jeans come from?"

"Well, as you know teen-agers put on a pair when they are 12 and don't take them off again until they are 19, so you see . . ."

"Where did they come from?" I persisted.

"A girl who just turned 20 and went to a convent. Do you want me to put them in a box?" she asked.

"No, they can walk," I said miserably.

'MOB' endeavors to speed court cases and lower waiting time

NEW YORK (UPI) — For many Americans crime is the No. 1 issue of the times. And too often crime does pay simply because of an antiquated and overburdened criminal justice system.

New Yorkers reported 475,752 incidents of crime in 1973 and the system responded with over 200,000 arrests and 22,000 indictments—but only 1,800 trials.

"Because we have thousands of cases every year," Brooklyn District Attorney Eugene Gold said, "a guilty man can slip though the cracks in the system or an innocent man can wind up in jail for months awaiting trial. This has to change."

To help save the system from itself, federal, state and local governments across the country have invested millions of dollars to develop better ways of handling crushing caseloads.

In New York City, one of the most successful experiments is the Major Offense Bureau concept, known as MOB.

MOB's goal: to select and dispose of serious "street crimes" committed by repeater criminals who might otherwise slip through the system.

"The robber, the rapist, the extortionist—they have to go," Bronx District Attorney Mario Merola said.

The method is deceptively simple: allow a single experienced prosecutor to handle the case from arrest to disposition, supply him with adequate support staff and make a courtroom available when he's ready for trial.

Normally, at least five—and as many as 10—different prosecutors "move" a case from hearings, to grand jury indictment, to arraignment, and to trial. This process on average takes anywhere from a year to 20 months.

Meanwhile, witnesses may move out of town, records can be misplaced, or the crime victim gets fed up with wasting day after day on fruitless court hearings.

But MOB cases are different from the start.

As arrest papers are processed, a MOB clerk first fills out a special evaluation form which awards points based on the seriousness of the crime.

"The evaluation form gives us a quick and more 'objective' way of determining whether a crime deserves MOB attention," said Peter Andreoli, Supreme Court Bureau Chief in the Manhattan District Attorney's office.

Every MOB office except Brooklyn (which uses its own system) has changed the evaluation form, developed by Andreoli and his staff, to suit its own needs. For example, while all offices add five points if a suspect has a criminal record, the Bronx adds five more points for every misdemeanor conviction; 10 for every felony conviction. In all offices any arrest which scores over 35 points automatically goes to the MOB prosecutor on duty that day.

"From that point," Andreoli said, "the case is his till the end."

Because MOBs have their own separate court parts, a defendant who wants a trial knows he won't have to spend months in jail waiting for a courtroom. The average MOB disposition takes about eight weeks.

Prosecutors, however, are not surprised that most MOB convictions also result from pleas.

"Eighty per cent of the people who come through here are recidivists (repeaters)," Bronx District Attorney Marola explained. "Many know that if they're patient and stall for time, eventually they might get off lightly." But with MOB, Merola added, "the certainty of justice is there—and that's more of a deterrent to crime than a severe sentence."

The Bronx MOB, started six months ago, expects to "pick up" about 300 cases its first year. Compared to the 3,400 indictments handed down in Bronx County last year, the number isn't particularly impressive but, rather than "quantity" MOB concentrates on the "quality" of prosecution — the thoroughness and speed with which each case is handled.

Because MOB prosecutors have lighter caseloads—between 15 and 20 cases at any one time—each case doesn't become just another statistic.

MOBs now operate in four of New York's five boroughs. If the experiment succeeds even with the city's huge caseload, the criminal justice system in every large city around the country may be affected.

"What MOB has proven," Merola said, "is that if you provide enough money for courts, judges, prosecutors, legal aid, and backup personnel, the system can work pretty well."

Coyote owner should see a lawyer soon

By DR. FRANK MILLER

DEAR DR. MILLER: My coyote, Split, has bitten the newsboy twice but not badly. I have told him to leave Split alone, that he is not friendly, but he keeps trying to pet him. There has been no legal problem over this so far and I don't want any. As long as I have warned him, it is not my fault any more, is it — J. W.

Dear J. W.: An attorney is the one to turn to for legal advice and I'd certainly recommend your turning to one soon. Generally speaking, the law holds that any wild animal—and this certainly would include coyotes—is potentially dangerous.

Hence the owners of such an animal must keep it confined so that others will not be injured by it. The courts are very strict about this and espcially so where children may be involved. Interestingly enough, an actual physical assault by a wild animal is not required in some cases to produce liability for the owner. On occasion, a person may merely be severely frightened by an unexpected encounter with some pet wild beast and the owner could thereby become liable.

In general, states take the view that wild animals are the possession of the state. Keeping any wild animals (including most of the feline family, coyotes, poisonous reptiles, and all the endangered species) is often subjected to state and-or federal control and licensing.

DEAR DR. MILLER: I, personally, have had a very stubborn infection under a fingernail. It's called Moniliasis. It's a fungus. It's finally getting better. Now my cat, Purpet, has a sore, crusty toenail which is bothering him. Could I use some of my medicine on him if it is the same thing— K. O.

Dear K. O.: Candida albicans can cause lesions in the skin or mucous membranes of humans and, occasionally, pets. Though most often occurring in birds, this fungus infection may also occur in dogs or cats. However, Purpet's toenial could be suffering from a number of conditions and his doctor would be the one to see concerning this. It's possible (but not probable) he would prescribe the same medication you are using. In any event, NEVER attempt to use human medication on an animal without the veterinarina's approval.

DEAR DR. MILLER: Which is better for our parakeets — to spread the grit on the floor of the cage or to have perch papers treated with grit on them.—H.H.

Dear H.H.: Neither method of offering grit has any advantage over providing a mineral-salt grit mixture in a cup.

Bank bandit a fashion plate

NEWPORT BEACH (UPI) — An armed robber wearing a gold leather vest and blue pants stole $600 from a bank recently and fled out the rear door, the FBI said.

United California Bank teller Sheryl Seager gave the robber the money when he pointed a handgun at her and handed her a note demanding the loot, authorities said.

Horse race stamp due on Derby Day

By GUSTAV DETJEN JR.

The U.S. Postal Service announced the design of a 1974 10 cent commemorative stamp saluting the sport of horse racing.

This colorful stamp, printed in yellow, magenta, black, red, dark blue and light blue will be issued on May 4 at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., in connection with the 100th running of the Kentucky Derby. The design shows a group of horses rounding a turn in a race and the words "Horse Racing" in blue at the upper left. The value and U.S. Postage are shown in red.

Organized horse racing in the United States dated back to 1665, when the first royal governor of New York laid out a track on Long Island in the vicinity of Belmont Park, Aqueduct and Jamaica.

First day cancellation requests should be sent to "Horse Racing Stamp, Postmastsr, Louisville, Ky. 40201" with proper payment before May 4.

Collecting horses on stamps is another interesting facet of topical stamp collecting. More than forty countries have issued such stamps. A checklist available from American Topical Association, 3306 No. 50th St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin 53216.

On March 9 France released a semi-postal stamp in the value of 50 centimes plus 10 centimes to mark the Day of the Postage Stamp.

To draw attention to the establishment of Iceland 1,100 years ago, Iceland released a set of four stamps, to be followed by seven more. The values and designs are: 10 kr.—The Settlement—Norseman Ingolfur and the High Seat Pillars; 13 Kr.—The Establishment of Althing and a Republic of Iceland; 30 kr.—Conversion to Christianity and Establishment of the See of Skalholt; 70 kr.—The Age of Writing. The priest Seemundur Sigfussen the Wise is considered the first Icelandic writer. Further information on this issue and future one from the Philatelic Sales department, Icelandic Post, P.O. Box 1445, Reykjavik, Iceland.

Virgin Islands will issue a set of four stamps for the coming INTERPEX Exhibition in New York City. The stamps feature ships' crests. The 5 cent value shows Canopus, a coastal minesweeper's crest, the 18 cent stamp the crest of the U.S.S. Saginaw, a tank landing ship, the 25 cent value the crest of the H.M.S. Rothesay, and antisubmarine frigate, and the 50 cent one the crest of the H.M.C.S. Ottawa, an anti-submarine frigate type of the St. Laurent class. Further facts from the U.S. and Canadian Marketing Division, P.O. Box 7367, Toledo, Ohio 43615.

Collectors of the beautiful stamps of Liechtenstein may want to write for advance information on new issues to the "Leichtensteiners," P.O. Box 690-D, Bettendorf, Iowa 52722.

In connection with the 25th anniversary of the end of the Air Bridge Berline 1948-49 Berlin will release on April 17 a 90-Pfennig stamp, multi-colored with part ox the Monument created by Professor Eduard Ludwig. At that time three nations, in 200,000 flights supplied 1,700,000 tons of merchandise.

Donald D. Lawton, Box 55-D, Fernadle, Cal. 95536 is the editor of Universal Cover News which regularly furnishes detailed advance information on first day covers and special events covers. Indispensable for the cover collector.

If you do not yet subscribe to a philatelic newspaper, write for a sample copy of Linn's Stamp News, Box 29-D, Sidney, Ohio 45365. This is the philatelic publication with the largest circulation.

WESPNEX, Westchester Stamp & Coin Show, is scheduled for March 29-31 at the Westchester County Center, Bronx River Parkway and Central Ave., White Plains, N.Y.

Stamp Collectors Guide to Europe is a new book being distributed by the American Topical Association, 3308 No. 50th St., Milwaukee, Wis. 53216. This 224 page clothbound book is a handbook for the traveling philatelist with information on the postal systems of 34 European nations, with information what to see, where to go and how to find points of philatelic interest and where to buy. More than 100 photographs. Prepublication price $6.00.

MSAC buys $1,000 worth of art works

WALNUT — Mt. San Antonio College has purchased $1,000 worth of art works at the fourth biennial exhibition which opened last week at the college art gallery.

Purchases were made by the college of six entries selected by juror Barbara Haskell, curator of paintings and sculpture for the Pasadena Museum of Contemporary Art.

Biennial purchase awards are "Alone Again," a pencil drawing by Sandra Jackman; "Solitaire," in graphite by George Miller; "Untitled," graphite and charcoal by Bill Porteous; "Series D," pencil by Mary Sue Anderson Ader; "Drawing," pencil by Kyoko Foley, and "Opalescent Opulence," graphite by Joyce Gibbs.

A total of 63 paintings and drawings, representing a myriad of current styles and expressions, will be on display during March.

Beginning April 16, the MSAC Gallery will present "Words and Images," an exhibition of works which make extensive use of words in the art pieces.

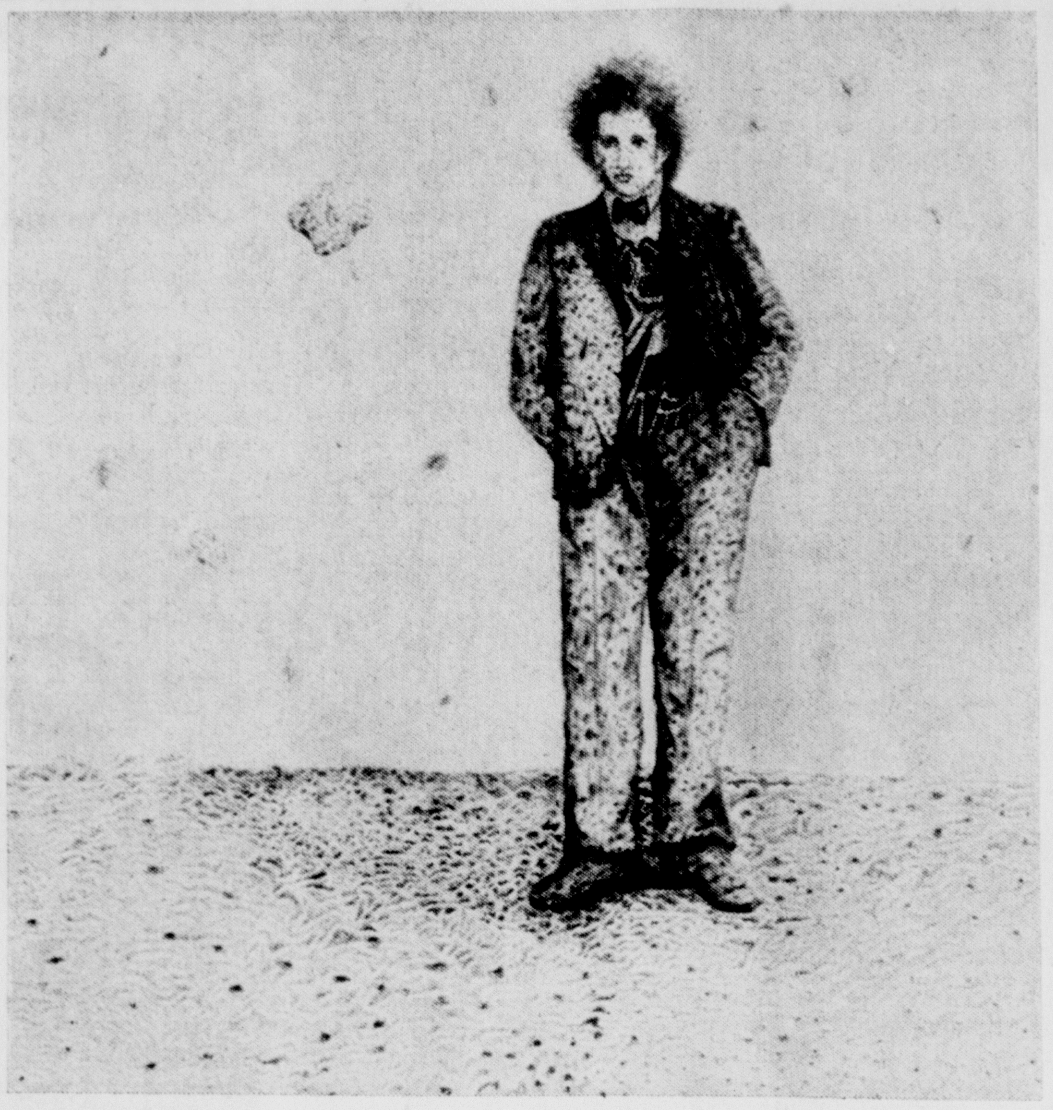
Artists represented in the exhibtion will include such internationally known names as John Baldessari and Marcel Duchamp, and such new talent as Douglas Edge and Lyn Horton. During the opening reception April 16 at 8 p.m. visitors to the gallery will have an opportunity to talk with several of the artists whose works are being displayed.

Embarrassing

BATLEY, England (UPI) — Barbara Ward, 22, won the Yorkshire pipe-smoking championship recently, outpuffing 30 men. She kept her pipe going 65 minutes.

French mutton tonnage lags

French mutton production is lagging and France imported 52,000 tons during 1973 to meet demand, officials said.



PURCHASE AWARD WINNER — "Alone Again," a pencil drawing by Sandra Jackman, was one of six art works awarded purchase prizes at the fourth biennial exhibition at Mt. San Antonio College. The exhibition is on view through March. Gallery hours are 11 a.m.-4 p.m. daily.

Odds on 2 royal flushes in same hand: 753,334,487-1

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — Dr. Allan N. Wilson, a computer programming specialist and author on gambling odds, disputes a report that the odds are unknown on two persons drawing royal flushes in the same poker game.

Two players drew royal flushes from the same seven-card stud hand in Las Vegas Tuesday, and gamblers there said the odds of only one royal flush came to one in 649,-766. The figure for two royal flushes at once, they said, was unknown.

Dr. Wilson, holder of a ph.d. in physics, said the chance was one in 753,334,487 hands.

Dr. Wilson also said that if 5,000 to 10,000 games of 7-card stud per day were subject to news coverage, "one might expect to hear of this event once in 10 years."

Spain execution draws censure

STRASBOURG, France (UPI) — In a stormy night session debate the European Parliament early Friday adopted a resolution condemning the execution in Spain March 2 of anarchist Salvador Puig Antich.

"The repeated violations by the Spanish regime of the fundamental rights of man and of citizens...prevent the entry of Spain into the European community," the resolution said in part.

Communist and Conservative representatives abstained from voting on the resolution.

ART IN TEXTILE—Ingrid Petersen of Claremont works at her tapestry frame in preparing for an exhibition of textiles at Griswold's art gallery in Claremont next month. The Claremont High School art teacher has an exhibition now at the Redondo Beach Frame & Gallery Shop. She will start a class in Claremont next month.

Exhibition of textiles on view

REDONDO BEACH — An exhibition of textile work and work and wood sculpture by Claremont High School art teacher Ingrid Petersen is now on view at the Redondo Beach Frame Shop & Gallery.

Another exhibit of work by the Danish-born artist will open next month at Griswold's art gallery in Caremont.

The Redondo Beach show is composed of 45 quilts, batiks, larged stuffed dolls, three-dimensional tapestries and wood scultpures. The works have names like "Weirdo," "Evil Bird," "Moon Things" and "Cloudy Angels."

Miss Petersen has taught in Denmark and England and has been in the Claremont school system for 20 years. She earned her master of art education degree at the Claremont Graduate School. She has studied with Doug McClellan, Albert Stewart, Jean Ames, Paul Darrow, Kirsten Ortvd and Karen Thorvald Nielsen.

At the high school she teaches classes in textile work, sculpture, art fundamentals, and a fine arts seminar.

New book tells joys of gardening

Each season of the year has its own special charm. Autumn turns maple trees to fiery shades of yellow and scarlet; winter robes the vines and shurbs with pristine snow.

Spring brings its particular joy—crocuses and dandelions, soft breezes and the promise of summer. To those who cultivate their yards with shovel and hoe and even those who are not fortunate enough to have their own small patch of earth, the year can be a never-ending opportunity for the pleasures of the garden.

In a new book, A Gardener's Year (Arco Publishing Co., 219 Park Avenue South, New York) author Katherine Twomey says that one need not have perpetual summer and a large plot of land to know the joy of growing things. A terrarium within the confines of a room, ordering packets of marigold and zinnia seeds in preparation for planting, or dreaming over the endless possibilities of the seed catalogs and lists of new and exotic plants are all very satisfactory ways to garden vicariously.

Mrs. Swomey has spent a good part of her time in just this sort of activity. She recounts these pleasures as well as her first struggles with an inhospitable plot of land surrounding her rented house, the sheer delight of returning from a family trip to be welcomed by blooming bachelor's buttons, zinnias and poppies in the same once-hopelessly barren yard, and her numerous other garden adventures.

A Gardener's Year is full of delightful and even humorous accounts that strike a familiar chord in many of us. Although it can easily serve as an authoritative source of information on gardening (Mrs. Twomey has a number of articles on horticulture to her credit), there are no ironclad dos and don'ts on what species to cultivate in varying climates and no lists of cumbersome Latin names to memorize before the next stop at the nursery. There are only personal experiences, anticipation, trial-and-error methods, frustrations and the considerable rewards to be shared.

With spring not too far away, this lovely book should earn its way into the homes of all garden lovers.

Deadly drug being pushed

OVERLAND PARK, Kan. (UPI) — A drug used by veterinarians to put animals to death that is so powerful less than a drop of it could kill a person is being sold on the streets by local pushers, police said Wednesday.

A 19-year-old girl has already died from the drug and a 17-year-old girl is in critical condition because of it.

"It comes in two forms and can be taken orally," regional crime lab director Richard H. Fox said. "It is also a clear liquid and if someone injected it, less than one drop would be enough to kill them—and quickly.

"They probably would be dead before they got the needle out of their arm."

The drug is called sodium pentobarbital and is blamed for the death Tuesday of Marilyn Shortell, 19. Police Capt. Donald Jackson said an analysis showed Miss Shortell's body contained "a huge dose" of pentobarbital as did the body of her companion, Mary Ann Treemont, 17, hospitalized in critical condition.

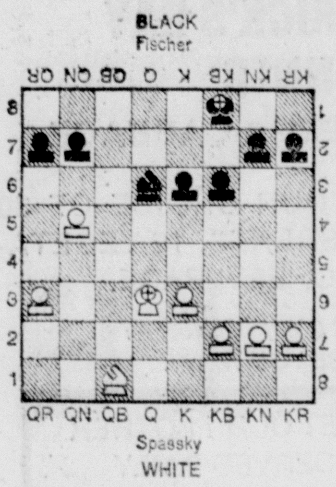
Reykjavik blunder by Fischer recalled

What made "Reykjavik summer, 1972" so extraordinary was that after his mind-boggling antics before the match, Bobby Fischer finally sat down to play and immediately threw the world into a dither in the first game by making an apparent beginner's blunder on his 29th move. "Fischer blunders" was the universal estimate, when in the position in diagram one, he played



29 . . . BxKRP?!

Apparently Bobby had expected that after 30. P-N3, P-KR4; 31. K-K2, P-R5; 32. K-B3, P-R6; 33. K-N4, B-N8; 34. KxP, to play 34 . . . BxP (reaching our second diagrammed position). Here Fischer thought the bishop would make its escape after 35 . . . B-K8. However, Bobby saw in time that Spassky would prevent his bishop's exit with 35. B-Q2, and subsequently gather up the trapped bishop with his king. He elected therefore to diverge from his original plan on the 32nd move, when he played (instead of P-R6) 32 . . . K-K2; 33. K-N2, PxP; 34. PxP, BxP; 35. KxB, K-Q3; 36. P-QR4, K-Q4; 37. B-R 3, K-K5; 38. B-B5 P-QR3; 39. P-N6, P-B4; 40. K-R4 and our third position was reached.

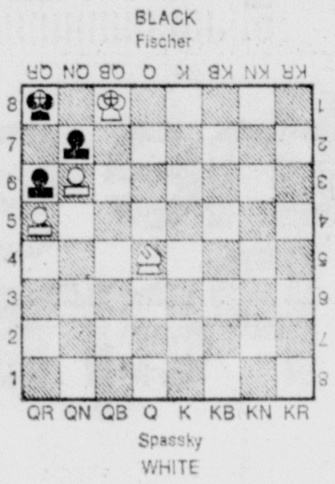
Here Fischer made his second blunder. His 40th move, . . . P-B5 offered minimal resistance to Spassky, who thereupon won easily. When Bobby later said that he, Fischer, a Pisces, had played like a fish, it was thought he had his 40th as well as his 29th move in mind.

But curiously there were at least two ways that Fischer might have drawn despite the original blunder 29 . . . BxRP. We can see the one discovered first chronologically if we look again at diagram three. The evening after the game, chess masters around New York City were wondering if it hadn't been possible to play, instead of 40. . . . P-B5, the alternative 40. . . . K-Q4. After the plausible 41. B-B8, the idea was to play 41. . . . P-K4, followed by 42. . . . P-B5, thus liquidating the lone white kingside pawn. The next step would be to run to the queenside with the black king and either: 1. win or trade the remaining white pawns, or 2. after inducing white to play P-R5, hide with the king in the corner with no worse than a stalemate as shown in diagram four.



The last method of drawing was an elegant idea which seems to work in many variations, and has not to my knowledge yet been authoritatively refuted.

Some months later another drawing possibility was suggested by several Russian grandmasters in the book "Fischer-Spassky, from the Soviet Point of View" (Alfred Kalnajs, Chicago, 1973).

The Russian idea was after 29. . . . BxKRP; 30. P-N3, P-KR4; 31. K-K2, P-R5; 32. K-B3, Fischer could have played (instead of K-K2) 32. . . . P-KN4, and after 33. K-N2, P-N5!; 34. KxB, P-R6, our fifth position would be reached where according to the Russians, "it cannot be seen how white can win."

Apparently even Fischer's "blunders" ought not to lose for him.

For Sunday March 17

ARIES (March 21 April 19) Loosen up a little today. You tend to take yourself and others too seriously. Look for the lighter side.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Yield a bit if discussing with friends issues and philosophies not in accord with yours. They have points to make as well.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can't expect others to be free and lavish if you aren't equally generous with them. Give, in order to get.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Though it appears the other party is selfishly seeking to have his way, he feels the same about you. Try to compromise today.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're likely to delegate a task today because you've neglected to do what you should have.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you're out among friends today, relax. Let yourself go. Minimize conversation that deals with weighty subjects. You'll bore them stiff.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your house will lack its usual warmth today. Those who enter will sense this unless you make an extra effort to put them at ease.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is a good day to take care of neglected correspondence. Write or phone those to whom you owe letters or calls.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's no time like the present to begin to be wise by living within your means. Give the old budget another once-over.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You'll not want to be idle or feel penned in today. It's best you have some outside activity planned for yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You require mental discipline today or you'll see only shadows where you should see light. Be more positive.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A friend has a serious matter to discuss with you. Up until now you've been unable to get together, but you can today.

Your Birthday
March 17

Reliable friends will play an important role in your affairs this year. Situations important to you will be advanced with their aid.

For Monday, March 18

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You'll make a faulty decision based upon a resentment harbored against another. It will be to your disadvantage as much as his.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) There's a problem brewing with a friend over a material matter. Spell out clearly any financial transactions.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In a situation where you have a joint interest, someone you're dealing with favors your partners. Be alert.

CANCER (June 21 July 22) Make no major decisions now unless you're certain you have all the facts. Something important is being held back.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) It doesn't appear as if you're getting full value for work or service you're having done at present. Compare prices elsewhere.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You will find yourself in the middle of an unusual social situation that could cause you unexpected problems.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Keep a watchful eye on home and possessions today. Be sure other members of your family do the same.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A gathering you're looking forward to may not turn out as pleasurable as you anticipate. Check first to see who else is coming.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Curb your outside spending temporarily. Concentrate your means on family and home. They can put it to better use.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan 19) There will be some confusions where work or career is concerned. Be sure your goals are in line with co-workers.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Funds you have earmarked for something worthwhile may be foolishly wasted for something else at this time.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Avoid if you can large groups of people who hang together clannishly. Crowds spell trouble.

Your Birthday
March 18

Solid achievements can be made this year if you set a course and stick to it. Don't be taken in by flash-in-the-pan offers that look good on the surface.

Young challenger of the Atlantic

WICKFORD, R. I. (UPI) — Bob Gainer's career goal is to become a naval architect, one who designs and builds ships.

But 1974 brings a more immediate challenge. Gainer this summer intends to become, at age 20, the youngest person to seriously challenge the Atlantic in a solo ocean crossing.

Gainer, of East Greenwich, R.I., plans to make the trip in a 22 ½-foot fiberglass Sea Sprite called Hitchhiker, to be launched from Wickford Cove on April 6.

"My original idea dates back into early youth," he said. "I've got notes and plans on the trip that date from at least 10 years ago."

Hitchhiker's hull and deck work are finished and Gainer is bolting down hardware and building the mast himself. He saved for three years to finance the project, getting discounts and other help from interested manufacturers.

Cast-off June 19

Gainer's timetable calls for casting off June 19. He expects to reach Falmouth, England 35-45 days later.

"I'm pretty much going to take the same route (the late) Robert Manry used for Tinkerbelle eight years ago," he said. The route, for the most part, will keep Gainer about 200 miles south of the New York-London shipping lane.

"I expect to have the same kind of weather Manry did, with 20-foot waves and 60-knot winds at least once during the trip, but my boat won't be thrown around the way his was," Gainer said. "It's at least four times heavier."

Gainer said his family in Hillsdale, N.J. wasn't overly enthusiastic when he announced the quest three years ago. "But they finally gave up and realized I was going to do it. So I have their blessing in a way. My dad has helped in outfitting the boat with parts and my mom keeps coming up with ideas."

The young adventurer is no stranger to Atlantic sailing. He made a solo trip to Yarmouth, Nova Scotia three years ago in a Sea Sprite daysailer, a boat the same size but lacking a cabin. He describes it as a "two month leisure trip."

Gainer said he's not worried about the mechanics or possible physical peril on the voyage.

"My only worry is that I'll be asleep when I arrive in England and miss seeing the land as it comes over the horizon," he said. "It would be disappointing after 40 days to wake up and all of a sudden the coast is there.

"It's supposed to be a highlight of the trip to first see birds, then clouds, then grey mist and then England. I think it would be disappointing to miss."

If all goes well, he plans to stay with relatives of American friends after his arrival, leaving the following spring on a voyage home via the Azores and Bermuda. Gainer said he would like to get a temporary job during his stay in England.

Doing what?

"Teaching sailing."

Dow chairman has a vision

Giant corporations could bring about better world

MIDLAND, Mich. (UPI) — Dow Cemical Chairman Carl A. Gerstacker has a vision.

He sees the day when Dow will own an island in international waters from which the company can operate "beholden to no nation or society."

This would allow the company to operate in many different nations without being thought of as an American company, he said. And it would prevent the United States government from attempting to force subsidiaries of the multinational corporation to conform to American interests.

Gerstacker, whose company produces chemicals, drugs and plastics in 28 nations, told UPI he thought Dow and other multinationals are moving closer and closer to his vision.

The result, he says, would be a world with greater distribution of wealth, more international understanding and fewer wars.

"I don't think I'm going to get that anational island for headquarters. The details are going to be very difficult," said the 57-year-old Gerstacker. "But if I'm right in my philosophy, then it's going to go more and more in that direction."

He defends the "international charter" concept from critics who contend it amounts to a power grab by multinational corporations.

"It isn't to evade taxes, and it isn't to evade your social and political responsibility in any place in which you operate," he said.

Many observers disagree with Gerstacker's contention that the multinationals are solving more problems than they create. They say the corporations have become so large that no one nation can control them and that because of their international character they have no allegiance to any given country.

The American-based multinational oil corporations, for example, are being accused of creating an aritificial energy crisis by restricting the import of oil into the United States— creating higher prices and record profits for the companies.

Congress has been considering legislation to limit overseas investment because of fears that such investment takes American jobs with it.

Gerstacker disputed claims that multinationals have exported the jobs of American workers and given them to workers at their foreign plants.

"We insist this is true and I firmly believe it's true that Dow's going multinational and building foreign plants has made U.S. jobs, has been great for the U.S. people and also has done good in Brazil and other places," he said.

Gerstacker, who has emerged as a leading spokesman for the huge companies, said multinationals do a much better job than government in managing technology, resources and people.

"There is no question in my mind but that groups organized for profit can and do do it better than governments — which are political animals," said Gerstacker.

"I do think that spreading technology, spreading jobs, helping the starving and poor and less affluent is to our selfish interest. The more we can do that the more we will get people understanding each other around the world, the less need there will be for wars, because all wars are economic," he said.

Although Gerstacker acknowledges there is a possibility multinationals will not live up to his expectations, he said "if we want to improve the world we've got to try to do something differently than the way we've always done it."

"I think the multinational is the best vehicle to improve the lot of all the people. I think generally people are smart and they'll see this."

Gerstacker said multinationals are creating more international understanding by mixing peoples from all nations and ethnic groups. He calls Dow "truly one international family" in which Brazilians, Koreans, Chinese and Hungarians interact successfully.

"I think that a world like that would lose a lot of the inability to communicate because when people talk different languages or feel they have a separate little group that's when they misunderstand each other," he said.

"We don't misunderstand each other in Dow Chemical because we're all mixed up in one common pot with one common purpose."

He recalls the time when Dow was an exclusively Midland company with no other operations. When it built its first out-state plant in Texas in 1940, Michigan employes began getting exposure to Texans who came to Midland.

"They were treated like foreigners," he said. "They talked differently."

But now, Gerstacker said, Midland and its 36,000 people are "very cosmopolitan" because of the foreigners brought in to work there and the Americans sent abroad who have returned.

Despite Gerstacker's optimism about the future of multinationals, some critics are fearful. Michigan State University economic professor Walter Adams, an articulate analyst of American industry, called the oil multinationals "Frankenstein's monster, partly of our own creation and seemingly beyond our control" in testimony before a senate subcommittee in February.

"I don't know why the world should worry about (multinationals) so much," laments Gerstacker. "It is conceivable they could do harm. But it's also conceivable that they could do a great deal of good.

"I don't think anybody would say that up to now the world has been perfect or that the system we've used has done the greatest good for everybody in the world. Why do we worry about trying something different?

"If it's happening, why not let it happen until it proves that it's doing wrong at least? If we want to improve the world, we've got to try to do something differently than the way we've always done it."

Market shows just modest increases

NEW YORK (UPI) — Wall Street gave a muted greeting this week to news the end of the oil embargo is imminent. Prices gained modestly in fairly active trading on the New York Stock Exchange.

Ironically, the gains occurred almost entirely before investors learned a meeting of Arab oil ministers held Wednesday in Tripoli apparently had decided to end the five-month-old oil embargo against the United States. The two sessions that followed the Tripoli meeting were colorless, resulting in slight declines.

For the week, the Dow Jones industrial average gained 9.78 to 887.83. Since Feb. 11, when the Dow set its 1974 low of 803.90, the index has spurted some 84 points largely on hopes the oil embargo's end was at hand.

But as the hoped-for end approached this week, the embargo issue seemed to have lost its punch as a market factor. As Harold M. Edelstein, investments vice president of Financial Programs, Inc. had predicted, "When the Arab oil embargo is lifted, it will be anticlimactic as far as the stock market goes.. The current rally has been discounting the end of the embargo already."

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 1.50. The NYSE index added 0.80 to 53.18.

There were 1,077 advances, 667 declines, among the 1,962 issues traded.

Turnover amounted to 86,812,260 shares, against the previous week's 84,121,130 shares, and 71,056,912 the year before.

The market's muted enthusiasm this week also stemmed from the conditional basis on which the embargo apparently will be ended—if indeed Arab oil ministers agree to end it at the meeting set for Sunday in Vienna. According to Arab sources, the embargo will be lifted on a two-month trial basis, to be continued if the United States succeeds in disengaging Israeli and Syrian troops in the Golan Heights.

Wall Street also received conflicting statements on the embargo's end — both from White House sources, and from the Arabs themselves.

Government in crisis

From Britain to Denmark

BRUSSELS (UPI) — The sound of Europe these days is the crack and crumble of government mandates and majorities.

No major West European nation has a one-party majority government. The best-known example is Britain, where an election held in economic crisis left the Labor party standing shakily atop a minority cabinet. But few other nations are better off.

Parliamentary democracy in Western Europe is struck with crisis, commented Norwegian Premier Trygve Bratteli, himself the leader of a minority government.

Perhaps Bratteli exaggerates.

No barricades have appeared in the capitals of Europe. One-party rule in any country seems a distant improbability. Election turnouts are still generally some 70 or 80 per cent—higher than in America— with voters content to use ballots, not bullets, to send messages to their leaders.

But it is true that West European democracy, reborn after World War II and reared in postwar prosperity, has entered a troubled maturity in the 1970s.

Increasingly, voters complain that the system fails to deliver the goods. No pundit will predict how it will survive the expected hard times coming.

Local conditions vary from nation to nation. But high taxes and mounting inflation, exacerbated by the energy crisis, combine in most nations to produce disillusionment. For instance:

—All nine Common Market nations, big and small, are led either by coalitions or by one-party minority governments. — Several governments—especially the British, Danish and Dutch—are so splintered or weak that they are given little chance to survive more than a year at best.

—West German Chancellor Willy Brandt, despite his popularity abroad, faces widespread voter disaffection at home. His Social Democratic party lost a major provincial election in Hamburg early this month.

—Scandinavian voters, groaning under 50 per cent taxes, have been turning away from old-line parties, especially the Socialists, who have dominated Nordic politics for years. In Denmark, a new, loosely-knit party led by an admitted tax evader placed second in recent elections.

—Italy, which has had 35 governments since 1943, has none at all now. Wags say that Italian politics "resembles comic opera with the entire chorus trying to sing the tenor lead."

— In France, President Georges Pompidou's health problems are debated publicly while his aides jockey for the succession. Pompidou recently fired Premier Pierre Messmer in the morning and re-installed him in the afternoon.

All this has had inevitable impact on the European Common Market and its relations with the rest of the world.

Several important decisions, especially on energy, have been postponed this year because Britain, Belgium and Italy were simultaneously without a government and, therefore, without a mandate for action.

Commentators generally blame much of the voter disaffections on economic problems — particularly inflation, which is expected to hit an average 12 per cent this year— and the government's inability to do anything about it. But each country has its particular problems.

The sagging popularity of Brandt's party has been attributed to disenchantment with his "Ostpolitik"—the attempt to come to terms with the Soviet bloc—and to fears that an ultra leftwing group is taking over the party.

Finance Minister Helmut Schmidt has complained that "the Social Democratic party has left an unclear impression during the last 12 months."

The government is under intense criticism, mainly for inflation.

The newspaper Le Monde called the Messmer-for-Messmer government switch a "joke" and a public opinion poll indicated 36 per cent less confidence in the new Messmer cabinet than in the old one.

Former British Prime Minister Edward Heath's attempt to control inflation foundered before union demands and loopholds in price control laws.

Eventually Heath called an election on the anti-union platform of "who governs Britain," and was turned out of office by the voters, who refused a majority to either major party but left the parliamentary balance of power with the small Liberal Party and a band of Celtic nationalists.

Italians, plagued by inflation, government inefficiency and a voting system that splits parliament into contentious blocs, joke that their country works better without a government than with one.

There is some truth in that— because tradition forbids strikes during a "crisis," when one government has resigned and the next has not yet been formed.

High unemployment, prices and taxes have brought Sweden's Socialists to the brink of defeat after 42 years in power. Parliament's 350 seats are exactly split, 175-175, between the Social Democrat-Communist coalition and the non-Socialist bloc. Premier Olaf Palme could fall at any time.

In Denmark, the Socialists lost last December's election. The Liberal Democratic party, which leads the new coalition, got only 22.3 per cent of the vote in that election, while 15.9 per cent went to the Progressive Party, led by Mogens Glistrup, a lawyer who boasts that he pays no taxes and wants to replace Danish defenses with a telephone recording that would tell the caller in Russian, "We surrender."

For all the troubles however, Europeans voters show no sign of giving up on democracy.

Britain, with all its divisions and problems, still managed to vote without violence or damage to any political institution.

When it was over, Philip Allott of Trinity College, Cambridge, spoke for many Britons when he said, "Let us praise once more our remarkable political system."

Phil splits; she's pregnant

By JEAN ADAMS

SIX MONTHS: (Q.) Phil is 28. I am 16. I ran away and lived with him six months. Then we had a fight. He brought me home and left. I haven't seen him in a month.

I am also pregnant. I haven't told either Phil or my parents. If I told them they would hate me. I need your help desperately.—Alone in Alabama

(A.) You need your parent's help desperately. Tell them the whole story now. Do not wait for Phil to come back. You can't count on him. But you can count on your parents. They will help you, and they won't hate you.

TENSION: (Q.) My dad gets mad at me. He says it is because I yell. The other night he tuned the TV up loud. My mom hollered at him. He said he did it because I was yelling. They had a fight and he walked out.

My mom started punching me around like I was a basketball. Is this because of old age? My mom is 42, my dad is 51. I am 12 and the youngest of five children. I can't stand it much longer.—Mistreated Daughter in Maryland.

(A.) Your parents are not old. But it is evident that there is considerable tension in your home. That can hurt people much worse than old age. With so many children to care for, your parents need a better system for handling family differences.

Suggest to them the idea of regular family meetings, in which each member has a chance to say what is on his mind, and the whole family can talk over problems. Talking is easier and more effective when everyone isn't all tensed up because of a fight.

No dream, really won $100,000

SOUTH SALT LAKE, Utah (UPI) — Ralph Davis found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

The 28-year-old machine operator was awekened recently by a telephone call informing him he had won $100,000 in the Massachusetts state lottery.

Davis works the graveyard shift at a paper company and was asleep when the incredible news came.

"I thought I was still dreaming," said Davis. He made a return call to Boston and found he wasn't dreaming —he was rich.

Bay State officials said Davis will collect $10,000 a year for the next 10 years for winning second prize in the lottery.

Mothers of Twins

Set spring party

During a 20-year period since its origin in 1954, Pomona Valley Chapter of the Mothers of Twins Club has played an active philanthropic role in the community. The members have also supported twin boys in Bogota, Colombia for 12 years through the Foster Parents Plan.

The nationwide organization was formed to bring mothers with twin children together socially to discuss twin problems and to exchange twin equipment. As the chapter memberships grew, individual clubs became involved in community endeavors in addition to social activities.

"Premier of Fashions" is the theme for the club's 18th annual spring fashion show and luncheon to be held Saturday at Orlando's. A social hour at 11:30 a.m. will precede the 12:30 p.m. luncheon. Proceeds from the event will be used to further the club's philanthropic activities.

Guests at the luncheon and show will view spring and summer fashions from the Dutch Doors, Glendora, and Magic Cradle-Teeka's Teens, Pomona, according to Mrs. Norburt Becker, show chairman. Assisting with arrangements are Mmes. Alan Coleman, awards; Eddie Lakkees and Howard Wright, tickets; Ted Gilbert, luncheon; Robert Liles and Richard Hart, public relations; David Williams, women's fashions; and Lloyd Gastineau, children's fashions. Mrs. Matthew Quay will be commentator.

Models will include Mmes. Allyn, Earl Bass, Larry Gridley, Lakkees, Williams and Wright.

Twins modeling will be: Michael and David Allyn, Thomas and David Ashcraft, Aaron and Gerrit Becker, Ian and Lana Bergman, Denise and Diane Bradford, Darin and Daryl Coleman, Eric Gastineau, Carrie and Cristie Hart, Lynette and Lyndeen Howard, Robert and Adeeb Lakkees, Leesa and Janice Liles, Ramona and Renee Orozco, Michael and Jeffrey Peacock, Leslie Stanley, Mindy and Michelle Wright, Anne Marie and Antoinette Newsom and Laila and Laura Gridley.

MODEL SHOW FASHIONS

Posing in ensembles they will wear for the fashion show to be given by Mothers of Twins Saturday, Janice Liles, Cristie Hart, Carrie Hart and Leesa Liles, from left, tour the Padua Hills Theater grounds. Luncheon and style show will be held at Orlando's.

A WALK IN THE HILLS

Mrs. David Williams and sons, Ryan and Bryan, left, and Mrs. Eddie Lakkees and twin sons, Robert and Adeeb, take a walk in new spring fashions for the Mothers of Twins show.

VIEWING THE WORLD

Mrs. Norburt Becker, fashion show chairman, and her twin sons, Aaron and Gerrit, try to find Colombia on world globe as she tells them about twin boys the club sponsors there.

Woman executive gives pointers on climbing corporate ladder

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Climbing the corporate ladder differs little from climbing any other ladder.

One woman who's reached the top rungs says that "first of all, you need a ladder and that means you need a job. A ladder must be firmly based so that it doesn't slip or tilt and throw you off in mid-air.

"You must be in good physical condition, able to climb steadily without losing your breath. And most important, you can't be afraid of the height once you approach the top."

Mercedes Bates offers this advice at a time when the numbers of women seeking careers are steadily growing. Women's liberation, without doubt, is partially responsible, for it's made women feel freer to go out into the professional world.

And another reason: Business and industry are learning how effective womanpower can be.

Ms. Bates is a vice-president at General Mills, Inc., supervising 80 employes in the company's many-faceted consumer center. Next runge The presidency.

At any rate, she advises on ways to move up in a speech reprinted in the current "Journal of Home Economics," publication of the American Home Economics Association (AHEA), of which she is a former president.

She traces her own rise through the basis of a home economics degree, but what she finds is just as applicable to any careerist in any field.

Ms. Bates' working years span the Depression, when she worked in a telephone company cafeteria, through her own food consultant firm and editor on a major women's magazine. Along the way, she studied typing and shorthand.

She says the variety of jobs "contributed to my education. I'm convinced that everyone who wants to move up the corporate ladder should experience a variety of positions that will broaden and add to professional skills."

Health is a very important factor, she says. "If you want to get ahead, you have to work hard and that means you have to be on the job and in optimum health."

Love the job. "I think you must find your work stimulating, exciting and pleasurable or you can't succeed in it."

"There's really only one way up the corporate ladder," she continues, "and that's through becoming a manager . . . In today's world, the manager must be firmly grounded in a skill and must move beyond that skill to the broader role of management.

"For starters, develop and perfect the ability to communicate—both in writing and in speaking . . . Effective public speaking in most jobs today is almost a necessity whether you are communicating on a one-to-one basis or whether you have occasion to address committees, staff meetings or management groups.

"I would like also to emphasize reading. Read widely and regularly in the context of the business world. Learn to read an annual report . . . Through such reports you can learn to see your own job in relation to the structure and thrust of your corporation and in the broader context of your industry." And read the general and specialized business publications.

Another point, she says, is "visibility. Be seen and be heard. Become an active member of appropriate community and professional organizations . . . The experience will strengthen your abilities to communicate and to organize and manage."

In your career aims, Ms. Bates says, "choose a company with a good track record" where women employes are concerned.

"And finally," she writes, "you must prepare yourself for many years of hard work. I'm not sure that women have to work harder than men. The successful businessmen I know work very hard indeed . . ."

Assistance League

Charts spring show

Lea d'Crenza develops fashions with the rhythm of a symphony orchestra. The dapper man of Italian descent possesses a quick wit and bright personality.

A musical fashion review, "Spring Elegance," will be presented by Glo Davis productions for the Assistance Legue of Upland on April 1 at Griswold's Pavilion. Glo Davis will be the commentator, and the fashions will be d'Crenzas.

d'Crenza does one collection a year and says each of his designs can be adapted to any climate by merely varying fabric and color. His street wear is classic, and his formal wear is exciting. The designer uses only natural fabrics like wool, silk and cotton.

According to Glo Davis, top designs of furs by Giba-Nobilia of Los Angeles, special designs of Julie Miller that are available at Robinson's and Bullock's, and Harris and Frank Men's Fashions will also be featured.

One of the gowns to be shown at the fashion show will be worn for the coronation of the King of Sweden.

Mrs. John Taves, ways and means chairman, anticipated that approximately 500 women will attend the 11:30 a.m. luncheon and show.

Other chairmen assisting with arrangements are Mmes. Eugene DeYoung, Robert L. Fitzgibbons, C. Richard Day, John S. Frost, Barry Brandt, J. Lewis Leisch, Richard S. McElvany, Alan MacCarthy, John Mortensen, John Owen and Philip L. Savage Jr.

Mrs. Dean Smothers, president, has announced that proceeds from the event will support the League's main philanthropic projects, Cucamonga Girls' Club and the San Antonio Community Hospital Dental Center.

Parents in search of a crib for a new baby would do well to carry a measuring device to be sure the bed is designed for safety, such as space of slates at a maximum of two and three-eighths inches.

Leaves wrinkles

Corduroy garments stand up better when they are washed only after slight soiling, home economists say, because the hand rubbing or long agitation required in heavy soiling leaves wrinkles.

Avoid peddlers

A responsible consumer avoids itinerant peddlers when buying something important. He wants a telephone number, a store address, a place to go to if something should go wrong with the purchase.

Forestry seeking seedlings

The Cucamonga-Alta Loma Junior Women's Club urges residents to help replace trees in the San Bernardino Forest which are being destroyed by pollution and the resulting bug infestation.

Since the California Division of Forestry does not have funds to replace these trees, they are asking service clubs in the area to purchase redwood seedlings and donate them to the forestry. Redwoods are not affected by pollution or bugs. The trees will be replanted and cared for until they can withstand the weather without care.

One hundred trees cost $33 plus shipping. For information, contract Jerry Holland, fire prevention officer, 882-1227, or Livia Vallance, 987-2497.

The Forest Service is also selling Fire Prevention Teacher packets used to acquaint children with the dangers of fire on a year-long basis. Each packet costs $6.50 including tax and can be obtained through Mr. Holland.

Reticence of French mostly buck-passing

PARIS (UPI) — A recent radio investigation of French civil servants' notorious insistence on anonymity uncovered a school teacher who even withheld her name from her students.

"I would rather they just called me 'madame the fifth grade teacher'," the elementary school teacher told Pierre Bellemare, a disc jockey for Europe One radio station who conducted the survey.

Bellemare broadcast a series of debates, interviews, and numerous telephone calls he made to government offices posing as a helpless citizen faced with complicated government forms.

Almost all office workers and other government employes he spoke to refused to give their names and some said they were merely following "the law" — although no such law exists.

The notion of "discretion" — the pillar of French manners— discourages name exchanging or familiarity. But Bellemare believes that in the case of civil servants in France's faceless bureaucracies "discretion" is mainly a buck passing convenience.

"When a functionary refuses to give his name, all too often he is trying to shun responsibility," Bellemare said.

Not only did office workers refuse to give Bellemare their names, the majority of listeners calling the radio station defended anonymity as essential to preserving privacy. Bellemare said even most of the callers who backed his campaign to end anonymity refused to give their names.

"I can't understand this reticence," the disc jockey said. "In the United States and in Britain office workers give their names the first thing off when somebody phones. Some even give their names before saying 'hello'. This is the only way to have real human relations, normal relations.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — To encourage good grooming for our children we mounted a mirror in the bathroom at a height so they could see how they look, and are prompted to use wash cloth, hair brush and toothbrush without prodding from us. —MARGARET.

DEAR POLLY — A styrofoam ice chest makes a great container for storing washing soap and measuring cup. There is also less chance of the washing powder caking. —SUE ANN.

Polly pays $1.00 for every idea used. Send them to her, c/o this newspaper.

DEAR POLLY — When your only reason for lining a garment is that it might be "itchy" and uncomfortable, tie a strip of the fabric around your neck, wear it for a while and you'll be able to decide. —GAYNEL

DEAR POLLY — To conserve fuel and still have my potatoes cooked by the time I get home from church, I peel them, cut them up and cover with water. I pour this water off and fill the pot again. This keeps the potatoes from turning brownish. I put the lid on the pot and put them in the oven, along with my roast in a separate pot. When I return from church, my dinner is ready to serve. — DONNA

DEAR POLLY — Paper pants guards are usually on wire hangers from the cleaners. They do prevent creases. Such cardboards will stay on the hanger longer if you put a couple of staples just beneath the hanger wire so it cannot come off. The pants do not slide, either. —HANNAH.

DEAR POLLY — Grocery coupons save us money, but often special bargains are missed because the coupons are left at home. I clip a coupon as soon as I see it and place it in a bright-colored envelope in my purse. Any other bargains are added, and outdated coupons discarded. Another envelope holds soap, cereal and other coupons. I save quite a bit this way and every little bit adds up! —FLORENCE.

DEAR POLLY — When caught short of time for finding placemats, cut out as many as needed from large sheets of pellon. I scallop the edges and use felt-tipped pens and crayons to add designs. They can always be cut up and used for interfacing later. —JUDY

BRITANNICA JUNIOR ENCYCLOPAEDIA

THIS WEEK'S TOP PRIZE QUESTION:

GRACE LAURENDI OF DELTONA, FL, ASKS: "WHY DO WE HAVE DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME ?"

DURING THE SUMMER MONTHS MANY PARTS OF THE WORLD HAVE DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME. ALL CLOCKS ARE MOVED AHEAD ONE HOUR. DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME DOESN'T ADD ANY HOURS TO A DAY. INSTEAD, WE GET UP AN HOUR EARLIER. AS A RESULT, AN HOUR OF DAYLIGHT HAS BEEN "SAVED," GIVING US MORE HOURS OF DAYLIGHT AFTER WORK FOR DAYLIGHT ACTIVITIES.

WE USUALLY DO NOT HAVE DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME DURING THE WINTER BECAUSE THE DAYS ARE SHORTER, AND NOT SO MUCH DAYLIGHT CAN BE "SAVED" IN WINTER AS IN SUMMER, BUT DURING THE ENERGY CRISIS WE ARE TO HAVE DAYLIGHT SAVING TIME THE YEAR AROUND.

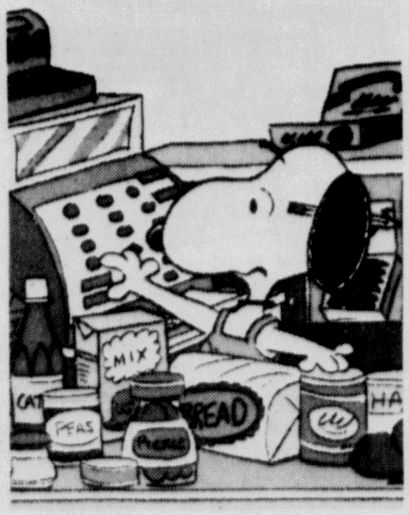
SNOOPY OWES IT ALL TO CHARLIE BROWN



Snoopy, the Peanut beagle, makes a dogged attempt to be part of the action when members of Charles M. Schulz's little cartoon clan mistake a supermarket for a modern art museum, in "There's No Time for Love, Charlie Brown."

In Charles M. Schulz's voluminous influx of fan mail there is an occasional letter from a "Peanuts" devotee expressing concern that Snoopy, the crafty canine, is getting more attention in the comic-strip than good ole Charlie Brown.

"Nonsense," exclaims the artist-writer. "Without Charlie Brown, Snoopy couldn't even exist."

That Snoopy is a smart-aleck Schulz readily admits. That he is a super-human beagle genius Schulz denies.

"So Snoopy flies around in the skies on his doghouse," Schulz says. "Now we all know who got him the doghouse in the first place—Charlie Brown.

"And we know who feeds him—both his stomach and his ego. Right—it's Charlie Brown.

"And, most importantly, who forgives Snoopy his selfishness, his pranks, his occasional disloyalties and his silliness and remains his steadfast friend? Charlie, of course."

Without Charlie Brown's kindness, says Schulz, Snoopy would be, in "Peanuts" language, "doomed" for sure.

He makes a dogged attempt to be part of the action in "There's No Time for Love, Charlie Brown," on CBS Sunday at 7:30PM.

"Snoopy upstaging Charlie Brown?," asks Schulz with disbelief. "Good grief, no! Not while I'm the one holding the pencil!"

A Form Of Snooping

On the Tuesday night episode of Snoop Sisters (8:30PM, NBC) titled "Black Day for Bluebeard,"—in one of the humorist's increasingly frequent dramatic appearances —Mort Sahl portrays a producer of horror films which star Vincent Price.

"Of course Vincent Price," smiles Mort. "Who else were you expecting—Shirley Temple?"

Mort sees humor in the fact that he's appearing on a program called Snoop Sisters, because "in a way I've been snooping for many years in order to gain information I use in my comedy monologues. Of course, it's not really snooping, it's research . . . which, I suppose is a form of snooping."

There is probably no humorist in show business history who has armed himself more fully with facts and figures through research than Mort Sahl. His research is not only through voracious consumption of magazines and newspapers but through intimate conversations with the world's foremost political, social and judicial figures.

Some of Mort's intimates include Senators Fulbright, McCarthy, Humphrey, Supreme Court Justice Douglas—and well, the list could go on and on. Mort Sahl is the only professional comedian ever to officially be on the speech-writing staff of a United States President. Many of the late John F. Kennedy's speeches contained material furnished by Sahl.

Even President Richard M. Nixon—today a favorite target of Sahl's incisive, biting wit—once told a Time Magazine interviewer, "Mort Sahl is the Will Rogers of today" . . . "Well," says Sahl of that compliment, "Our President had it a little twisted. Rogers portrayed a yokel who criticized the intellectuals who run the federal government, while I portray an intellectual who criticizes the yokels who run the federal government."

Sahl is bi-partisan . . . his razor-sharp thrusts are aimed at the right, at the left and at the center. The human comedy—and tragedy—all provide him with fodder with which to convulse audiences on college campuses, in night clubs, and TV. "The fact is," Sahl says, "I get some of my biggest laughs merely by reading verbatim quotes from leading political figures right out of the newspaper. Some of those guys are hilariously funny without meaning to be."

Watergate has, of course, provided Sahl with an almost endless stream of convulsing comments. In fact, he has recorded an album, "Sing A Song Of Watergate—Apocryphal Of Lie," which is a current big seller. His targets are the Republicans and the Democrats whose actions Sahl feels should be exposed via laughter.

"My album is selling," he says, "as fast as people moving out of their White House jobs."

'A SPECIAL SALUTE'

"The American Film Institute Salute to James Cagney," highlighted by presentation of the Institute's Life Achievement Award to the veteran film star, airs as a 90-minute entertainment-event special Monday at 9:30 PM on CBS, with Frank Sinatra as host. Luminaries of the motion-picture world will participate in the event, recalling not only personal anecdotes of their experiences with Mr. Cagney but also incidents of his profound effect upon their professional careers and upon the industry as a whole. The special will feature entertainment numbers and film highlights of Mr. Cagney's 60 motion-picture performances. The Life Achievement Award, set up by the AFI board of directors, honors its recipient not for a single work but "for the whole body of his contribution to American film."

Mr. Cagney, an Oscar winner for his now classic portrayal of George M. Cohan in "Yankee Doodle Dandy" and one of the most popular stars the movies have ever produced, retired in 1961 after 30 years in films. His show-business career actually began in the 1920s when, leaving college for lack of funds, he tried out for the chorus of a musical comedy called "Pitter Patter" and got the job—without any prior knowledge of the art of hoofing. There followed 10 years of theater experience. He and Joan Blondell had played opposite each other to critical acclaim in a Broadway play called "Penny Arcade," and they were brought to Hollywood in 1930 by Warner Bros. to re-create their performances in the film version. Released under the title of "Sinner's Holiday," the motion picture was the prelude to Mr. Cagney's long film career, during which he was consistently among the top box-office stars because of such memorable pictures as "Public Enemy," "The Roaring Twenties," "The Fighting 69th," "Angels with Dirty Faces," "Love Me Or Leave Me" and "Mister Roberts."

'A SPECIAL MOMENT'

"We don't care what it is, we just want it to be healthy." That thought expressed by expectant parents down through the centuries is the basis of an unusual documentary, "David Hartman: Birth & Babies," airing Wednesday at 11:30 PM on the ABC Wide World of Entertainment. In the documentary, the cameras follow John and Candace Farrell through their preparation for the birth of their second child, and the joyous moment when Nina Catherine Farrell weighs into this world at 8 pounds, 13½ ounces. In the process, many questions are answered, ones like: "What can we do to help insure having a healthy baby?" and "Just what goes on during childbirth?" and "What happens if we have an unhealthy baby?"

David Hartman, former star of the TV series, The Bold Ones, is both host-narrator and executive producer of the show. Under his questioning, the experts—Dr. Philip Brooks, an obstetrician; Dr. Donald Lackey, a pediatrician; Dr. William Wright, an anesthesiologist; Ms. Pat Clinton, a head obstetrical nurse; Ms. Edith Gonzal, head of a family centered maternal care group—provide the answers.

TV WEEK'S COVER CLOSE-UP

'POSITIVE FAMILY WITH NEGATIVE INCOME'

From the people that bring you comedy hits All in the Family, Maude and Sanford and Son, comes the contemporary comedy Good Times, seen Fridays at 8:30PM on CBS. Esther Rolle and John Amos star as Florida and James Evans, the heads of a true family unit that works and plays together with the common goal being "survival" in today's hard-pressed world. The characters played by Miss Rolle and Amos on Good Times were inspired by roles they played—in a different environment—on the Maude series.

BernNadette Stanis, Esther Rolle.

Good Times deals with the lives and humor of a black family as their joys and sorrows unfold in a Chcago ghetto. The Evanses are a hard-working, proud family, who, through no choice of their own, just manage to get by in an inflationary world and who don't look to charity or welfare for help, even when things look the darkest.

Also starring in the series are actress-waiter Ja'net DuBois as Florida's best friend and neighbor Willona, Broadway star Ralph Carter as 11-year-old Michael Evans, comedian Jimmie Walker as 17-year-old James Evans, Jr. and newcomer BernNadette Stanis as 16-year-old Thelma Evans.

Allan Manings is the producer with Jack Elinson and Norman Paul as story editors, Eric Monte as script supervisor and Norman Lear as executive producer. Good Times, a Bud Yorkin-Norman Lear Tandem Production, was created by Monte and All in the Family regular Mike Evans, and developed by Lear.

"In today's world, where the dissolution of the family unit seems to be more and more prevalent, our show hopes to show the great strength that can be attained if a family just sticks together," explains Manings.

"Humor often springs from adversity. Throughout history the first exposure one has to the trials and tribulations of a people has usually been through their humor, and Good Times will utilize this method," continues Manings.

Giving us further insight into Good Times, Manings explains that "even though our characters are black, and they may represent the black point of view, their life situation is a universal one. The Evanses are a low income family struggling to keep their heads above water in today's high-priced market, and this circumstance is by no means limited to any one race, color or creed," continues Manings.

Co-star Amos describes his new television family as "a positive family with a negative income. We simply couldn't survive if we cried all the time.

"Poverty is an economical fact of life to the Evanses, not a psychological or philosophical way of life.

"They work hard and fully enjoy whatever they have. The Evanses are happy people because they have love, trust and respect for each other. As long as they have each other, they will never be without riches," says Amos.

"We may be poor, but we're not losers," says Miss Rolle. "If you've got love, you're a winner. And we've got love."

Miss Rolles' childhood background has helped her interpret her new series role, Although she grew up on a Florida farm instead of in a big-city ghetto, she recalls that her real-life family, like her television family, didn't have many worldly possessions. But they were not poor in spirit.

"I was a grown woman before I found out I was poor," continues Miss Rolle, the ninth child in a family of 18 children. "We were a family full of love, and where there's love, it's hard to be depressed."

Miss Rolle now translates these same qualities to the fictional Evans family whose daily dilemmas include meeting the rent, feeding the family, paying their taxes and keeping the kids in school.

'WE THE WOMEN'

Geraldine Fitzgerald's soft Dublin-Irish lilt could be heard during the brief lulls between the clatter of thick china on sticky table tops and the calling out of pancake orders in a small coffee shop near Tennessee's historic capitol building in Nashville. Though unobtrusive, the distinctive non-Nashville sound of her voice caught the attention of early morning breakfasters, few of them realizing, however, that they were sharing the steamy-windowed room with someone who was once introduced to them as Heathcliff's unloved wife, Isabella Linton, in "Wuthering Heights."

From this decidedly non-wuthering atmosphere, far removed in miles and mood from that classic film in which Miss Fitzgerald made her American motion-picture debut in 1939 the famous Irish-born actress stepped down the street, past a downtown urban renewal project, and into her newest role, as Carrie Chapman Catt in "We the Women." This historical special, narrated by Mary Tyler Moore on CBS, Sunday at 8PM, is the first in The American Parade series of 13 hour-long, primetime, American history-oriented programs which will be presented over the next three years in conjunction with the country's 1976 bi-centennial.

IN MEMORY OF SUSAN B.

Geraldine Fitzgerald, portraying Carrie Chapman Catt, carries on where her predecessor, Susan B. Anthony, left off in the fight for women's rights.

Miss Fitzgerald's segment of the special, which traces the history of women in America through the accomplishments of some of the nation's leading feminists, was filmed entirely in Nashville. It was there that Carrie Chapman Catt, the woman's suffrage pioneer and co-founder of the National League of Women Voters, realized one of her most important goals by heading a campaign considered to have been a leading force behind the ratification of the 19th Amendment, which allowed women the right to vote in 1920.

The scenes were shot in the capitol building, where the deciding vote was cast by Harry Burn, a 24-year-old member of the state legislature, and at the nearby Hermitage Hotel in the actual room which served as Mrs. Catt's campaign headquarters that memorable summer. Other segments of the special, which also stars Kathleen Widdoes, Vinnette Carroll, Katharine Houghton, Sasha von Scherler and Leora Dana, were filmed in various other locations, including Old Sturbridge Village, Mass., and Philipsburg Manor in Tarrytown, N. Y.

Waiting as the Hermitage Hotel room overlooking the Nashville capitol was being set up with camera equipment, banners, leaflets and an antique printing machine, Miss Fitzgerald praised Mrs. Catt's "dynamic spirit" and expressed the hope that more women would carry that spirit on in their own individual ways.

"Carrie Chapman Catt's way was to stand on a soapbox and say what she believed in." noted the actress. "I try to reach people through my art. But the important thing is to do whatever you can in the area where you can make things happen."

BARBARA RUSH DOESN'T MISS MOVIES

Does a movie actress mind shifting her career from the big screen to television?

Barbara Rush guest stars as the wife of a police chief (John Forsythe) in a Police Story drama.

"I prefer performing on TV rather than movies today," answers Barbara Rush, who guest stars as the wife of a police chief (John Forsythe) in "Chief," a Police Story drama on NBC, Tuesday at 10PM. "The important thing to me is that I'm working, and I haven't had more than a couple of weeks off the entire past year," says the actress. "Since television shows don't take near the time to film that movies do, I can play maybe six totally different kinds of characters in the time I would be portraying the same character in one feature. And I probably make more money." Miss Rush has made only two movies in the past five years.

"As the wife of a police chief in this show," she says of the Screen Gems film, "I must transmit love, respect, pride and concern for a man all at the same time. You can DO something with a role like that. It's what acting is all about. It makes the long hours and the hard work worthwhile."

Barbara is not only seen continuously in television guest roles, she has also performed in various major cities on the stage. "But I wouldn't want Broadway," she states, reasoning that it would take her away from her husband, sculptor James Gruzalski, and son and daughter. The family resides in Beverly Hills, in a home she's lived in for the past dozen years.

'TWO KIDS FROM THE SAME STREET'

Two skinny kids—one named Carol and one named Alan—grew up on the same street in Hollywood where their lives were to be influenced greatly by the movies and movie stars. Is it likely that these two Hollywood kids would grow up to share the stage one day in a hit Broadway play?

The answer is a resounding "yes" if the girl's name happens to be Carol Burnett and the guy is Alan Alda, son of actor Robert Alda. They've proved that they can do just about anything in the theater, as well as television and the movies. Both, of course, are big television favorites—in The Carol Burnett Show and M*A*S*H. Their next vehicle is "6 Rms Riv Vu," their first joint venture, which represents a rare merging of Broadway and television. The production is a legitimate Broadway play, but Miss Burnett and Alda are doing it on television—as a 90-minute special, Sunday at 9PM on CBS.

Carol Burnett and Alan Alda star as two people who are married, but not to each other, who meet while apartment hunting.

Important to the actors is the fact that it is theater and that the play was taped in New York, where they were both so successful before their current television stardom. Miss Burnett triumphed in "Once Upon a Mattress" and Alda starred in "The Owl and the Pussycat" and "The Apple Tree."

"This is really the best of two worlds for me," says Miss Burnett. "It's wonderful to do a Broadway play in a real New York theater in front of a live audience—and at the same time tape it so that it can been seen a month later on television. I can't imagine a better situation." Alda agrees, adding, "Carol's a joy to work with because she's a very, very talented lady, though somewhat of a nut."

"Alan's a nut, too," says Miss Burnett. "I guess that's why everything about the show seems to be working smoothly. I seem to work best with people who are slightly nutty like me. After all, who'd expect me to understand anyone sane after seven years with Harvey Korman (her co-star on The Carol Burnett Show)?"

"Come to think of it, Carol," Alda teases, "your background isn't too stable. I mean, all those years with Garry Moore and then Harvey Korman and Tim Conway! Are you sure you want to continue rehearsing this heavy stuff?" "Look who's talking," Miss Burnett hoots. "You and that mad bunch from 'M*A*S*H.' Maybe I should get out while I'm ahead!" When the banter is over and they rehearse another love scene, funny and romantic at the same time, it's pretty obvious that this light-and-easy effect is only achieved by two talented people working very hard.

"The most important thing of all to me," Miss Burnett adds, "is that this is a New York play, about New Yorkers, and we're doing it in New York in front of New Yorkers. Any laughs or applause we get will be real. I wouldn't do this play with a laugh track or without a live audience. It just wouldn't be fair."

It's interesting to note, however, that Miss Burnett and Alda rehearsed the play in Hollywood only a few blocks from where they were once just two skinny kids, never dreaming they'd one day star together in a Broadway play—on television.

"WHAT EVERYONE IS DOING . . . IS PANICKING."

No, he is not looking for "villains," says Fred Freed, executive producer of NBC News' upcoming two-part special on American solutions to the energy crisis.

"It's so easy to do a TV program right now on the energy crisis and find yourself a villain and scream about it," he says. "It would be so easy to do the wrong thing now because there seems to be villainy afoot. 'This crisis couldn't have happened to us,' we hear. 'except that some terrible people are planning it.' " Mr. Freed's "NBC News Presents: The Energy Crisis—American Solutions" airs on successive Thursdays (March 21 and 28) at 10PM on NBC.

Adrienne Cowles, as field producer for the two-part "NBC News Presents: The Energy Crisis—American Solutions," interviews an oil tanker barge captain on the Arthur Kill River that runs between New York's Staten Island and New Jersey.

"The oil companies are certainly not without blame," says Mr. Freed. "The question is whether we will be helped by punishing them and what kind of reforms there should be. The question is not, 'What will make the oil companies feel miserable?' But 'What will make us have more energy?' " Basically, what people are saying, as he sees it, is: "Tell me who is a bad guy and tell me how to solve the energy crisis. Who's to blame? The oil companies are so big and they're making all this money and if only they weren't making money, that would solve the problem."

It's much more complex than that, Mr. Freed says. "What everyone is doing, because it's a crisis, is panicking. If the oil companies had done the opposite of what they are doing now—if they had used up all the American oil and had not gotten mixed up with Arab oil at all—we would have used our own oil up sooner, and then people would blame them for using up our oil and not using Arab oil.

"The fact is that there is no good solution because in the end we are going to run out of this kind of energy. The big thing is to try to find the answer." There is, Mr. Freed notes, a lot of "wild speculation" on the part of the public. "There are all kinds of rumors like the business of tankers piled up outside the harbor in New York, waiting, but the oil companies are not going to take them in. It's ridiculous."

The misconception, he says, is that people thought those tankers were sitting out beyond the harbor waiting for the price of fuel oil to go up. The reality, he believes, is that the tankers were waiting because the storage tanks on land were already full. It had been one of the warmest of winters; fuel oil for homes was in good supply. But people short of gasoline for their cars found it easy to believe there was no real shortage—just manipulation.

"It's hard to know whether any oil is being held back, what parts of the crisis are manufactured—and by whom," Mr. Freed says. "The oil companies, for instance, don't even know how much money they're going to make out of the oil they're getting out of the Persian Gulf, because some of the countries are imposing retroactive price increases on them. They can't even figure it out."

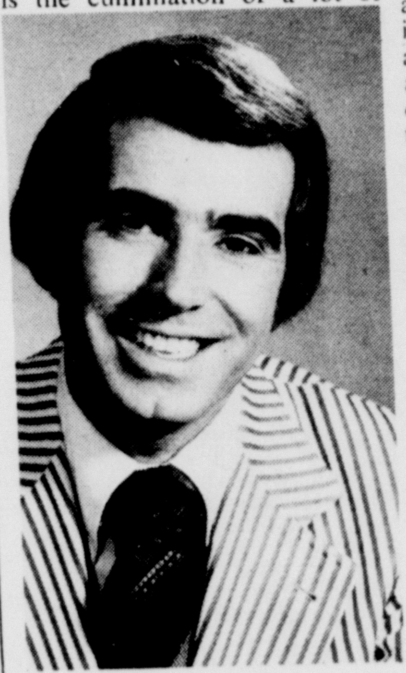
IT'S NOT THAT SIMPLE

It's a television program without a studio audience, emcee, singing or a script. Thus, it would seem to be a very easy show to produce . . . Not so! When host Tom Snyder raps with a guest or guests in an animated ad-lib discussion on NBC's Tomorrow program, it is the culmination of a lot of hard work by a large staff of researchers, talent coordinators, technicians, a director and a producer.



TOM SYNDER

The guests, some unknown to the general public but experts in their chosen fields, have been researched to make sure that they know whereof they speak. Each has something to say on a variety of subjects, ranging anywhere from mercy killings, infidelity, UFO's, religion, taxes, abandoned children, gambling and political tricks to countless other matters. The staff pours through volumes of books, newspaper clippings, news reports and makes hundreds of calls not only around the country but around the world. When a particular subject is in the news, the staff contacts those who can talk intelligently about it.

Frequently, a scheduled guest might be switched to another date to make room for someone who is knowledgeable about a topic in the news. That person will be flown to NBC's Burbank, Calif., Studios. Tom Snyder, a newsman with the inquisitive mind of a good reporter, has a knack of keeping the conversation animated, and often controversial, by challenging his guest to support his statements.

'THE PAINTED DOORS'

Three years ago, some promotion-minded people on an NBC series painted the doors of the studio where their show was taped with the series' logo. The show was subsequently cancelled by the painting of studio doors has since become a policy at NBC's studios in Burbank, California. The now-defunct series was called The Funny Side and starred Gene Kelly. Soon after Studio Three was decorated with The Funny Side and a caricature of a smiling mouth the staff of Rowan and Martin's Laugh-In decided to paint the doors of Studio 4.

"This job," according to Albert Obregon, foreman of NBC's scenic department, "was by far the most difficult of all the studios. We painted the face of every regular in the cast and that was quite a number. Then, on top of that, they kept dropping and adding people and we were constantly repainting the doors."

After the Laugh-In door was painted, the production company of The Flip Wilson Show was asked to paint the "Flip" logo on studio 2. The company was not anxious because they were already having trouble with Flip's fans breaking away from tours and trying to get autographs. The producer felt that painting the door would be like a beacon leading autograph-hunters to Flip and therefore disturbing rehearsals. But, the network thought the painted doors was a good attraction for studio tours, the door was painted, and Flip was proud. "In TV, it's as close as you come to seeing your name in lights," said Flip. "If I didn't see my name on the studio every morning I might not know whose show I was doing."

Since then, every NBC show taped at the Burbank complex has a painted door. The unit manager of each show consults the art director and they come up with an idea of what to put on the door. Most of the doors are logos (The Flip Wilson Show, Midnight Special) or caricatures (The Bob Hope Show). Then, this year scenic painter Jerry Mouser was hired to paint the door for Sanford and Son. He did a realistic 4-foot-high portrait in oil of Redd Foxx and Demond Wilson as the characters of the show. To do the painting, Jerry used three-foot-long brushes he made himself and only two pints of oil paint. First, he drew the picture (from a photograph) onto paper the same size as the door. He then perforated the pattern which was pounced onto the surface of the door by hitting it with a charcoal bag. The charcoal went through the perforations leaving an outline for painting.

Other shows want more realistic doors now. Johnny Carson's door was once a caricature, now it is a realistic face of Carson, but in black and white rather than in colors. The Dean Martin Show, Lotsa Luck, and NBC Follies (starring Sammy Davis, Jr.,) also have black and white drawings on their doors. Said Foreman Obregon, "I guess we'll always have a door to paint. Right now, we're even painting the doors where the local news is broadcast. When we finish that, some show will get cancelled and we'll have to paint a door for its replacement."

SHELLY NOVACK TACKLES THE FBI

Shelly Novack can run 40 yards in less than 4.7 seconds and tackle a 300-pound man without working up a sweat.

Now co-starring as Special Agent Chris Daniels in Quinn Martin Productions' The FBI, Novack brings an impressive athletic background to his action demanding role. He was a flankerback for the San Diego Chargers, a professional football team, prior to joining Efrem Zimbalist, Jr. in the ABC Sunday night series. The sandy-haired six-footer, who still plays sandlot football, graduated from Long Beach State College with a Bachelor of Arts degree in English and Physical Education and went on to earn a Master's Degree in English. During his senior year, he was named "All-American" Small College Receiver. He also holds the all-time "Pass-Receiving" record in his college league.

Novack says it was a smooth transition from football to acting. "The game is the same. The rules are the same. You just fight for what you believe in or you're dead."

'ILLUSTRIOUS EXPLORERS'

Adventure and patriotism—the rush to plant flags and claim territory for the mother country—were behind much of the early explorations of Antarctica. "Because it is there" might well have been the talisman of the pioneer explorers.

But it was only natural that Jacques Cousteau, for decades an acknowledged giant in marine life research, would one day go to the Antarctic. Last winter (Antarctica's summer), Cousteau and his 30-man crew spent three months aboard his wooden-hulled Calypso plying the Antarctic waters and land mass. The results can be seen on the fourth episode of ABC's "The Undersea World of Jacques Cousteau," Friday at 8:30 PM, in "Blizzard at Hope Bay."

Many of Cousteau's predecessors are famous. Some are not. There was Captain James Cook, who skirted the continent during several voyages, between 1768 and 1775. But Cook never reached land. He never could find a path through the outcropping ice floes. An American—Nathaniel Brown Palmer—was the first person to actually see the land mass of Antarctica. That was in 1820, the same year that James Weddel discovered the icy sea that bears his name. But it would be another 91 years before the South Pole was attained.

In 1911, expeditions from Norway, Germany, Great Britain, Australia and Japan set out to conquer the Pole. The winner was the five-man Norwegian team, headed by Roald Amundsen. He planted the Norwegian flag at the Pole on December 14th, after traveling for weeks by dogsled across the rugged, glacial terrain.

The biggest loser was Robert Scott and his British group. They actually reached the Pole 35 days after Amundsen. But the long, arduous trek cost them their Siberian ponies, and they were too weak to make it all the way back to base camp before the Polar winter struck. A rescue party reached them next spring, but too late. All had perished.

Commander Richard E. Byrd captured the imagination of the world with his Arctic and Antarctic explorations during the late 1920's and early 30's. Perhaps his most courageous feat came during the winter of 1934, which he spent at the South Pole—alone.

On his voyage, Jacques Cousteau had the benefit of the most modern equipment and technology available. But, as can be seen in "Blizzard at Hope Bay," several brushes by the Calypso with total disaster in the icy seas make it plain that man still is at the mercy of nature.

Captain Jacques Cousteau and his marine adventurers face unexpected danger in the "Blizzard at Hope Bay," when their ship the Calypso, preparing to leave the frozen Antarctic, is buffeted by ice floes and partly disabled, threatening the men's mission and their lives, in "Blizzard at Hope Bay".

Ever wonder what goes into the televising of a golf tournament? Ed Proctor, technical coordinator, NBC Field Operations, provides some of the answers. For the first NBC coverage of the $200,000 Sea Pines Heritage Classic (Saturday, 2PM, and Sunday, March 23 and 24) from the Harbour Town Golf Links, Hilton Head Island, S.C. — described by Proctor as "the most difficult place we've ever originated from" — 12 fixed color cameras and one PCP-90 "Creepy" were deployed over the last four holes of the 6,655-yard par-71 course.

Since the tournament site is an island ("and a heavily wooded one, at that, some 45 miles from the nearest transmitter at Savannah, Georgia"), extensive use will be made of microwave. In order to get the transmissions to Savannah, one of three telephone companies working on the project "has erected a 70-foot tower from which they can be beamed." In addition, Proctor says, "14 radio microphones will be situated around the course, while for internal communications there will be five separate on-course radio circuits and 38 portable receivers."

The dollar value of the equipment to be utilized, he adds, "is over $3.5 million." This includes, in addition to two mobile units with six color cameras each, 12,000 feet of camera cable and 60,000 feet of audio.

Time-wise, Proctor says, "setting up for the Heritage for the first time hasn't proven to be much more difficult than any other tournament we've done before." But this, he adds, is due almost entirely to the experienced personnel available—and good prior planning. Fifty-seven NBC engineers will be on hand for the Heritage, which has "the highest budget for any golf tournament NBC has ever done."

'remember when'

"Remember When", a World Premiere movie and a pilot for a projected series, airs on NBC, Saturday (March 23) at 9PM. The story revolves around a family during the World War II years, a time of unity and togetherness that our country has not seen since. The teleplay was written by Herman Raucher ("Summer of '42") with Buzz Kulik directing and Paul Junger Witt producing. Kulik and Witt teamed together previously on the award-winning "Brian's Song."

Jack Warden, Emmy winner for "Brian's Song," stars as Uncle Joe Hodges, the patriarch of the family who helps through the troubled times with humor, wisdom and understanding, even though he too has a son in the war.

The Hodges family has two sons, one nephew and a son-in-law in various theatres of operation and branches of the service. Dan and Ann Hodges played by the accomplished actors, William Schallert and Nan Martin portray the parents who not only have to bear up under the stress of having two sons in service but also must concern themselves with their eldest daughter, Joanna, played by Jamie Smith Jackson, a young mother who has moved back to her parents' home, while waiting for her husband to return from the war; their younger daughter, Beverly, portrayed by Margaret Willock in her film debut, who finds herself falling in love with a young serviceman despite her fears that he'll be shipped overseas like her brothers; and keeping Frankie, played by Robby Benson, their youngest son from volunteering for a war he's afraid he'll miss.

To re-create the typical small American town of World War II, the company went to great lengths to film the 1943 story recalling a time when the appearance of a Western Union messenger could strike terror in the hearts of a family . . . . a time when, a shortage of nylon necessitated the American Woman to create the illusion of stockings with leg make-up . . . . when servicemen relied on USOs to be their home away from home . . . . A time when food and gas were rationed and the only way to get a pair of shoes was if you had a number seventeen ration stamp. It's all there from the big band sound right down to the family Victory Garden.

The War Years were a time when Americans stood up to be counted . . . . a country unified in spirit and determination for a common cause. This unified spirit is a reminder to all, that when we, the American people, speak as one, there is no worthy adversary. Now it is the time to look back and remember when.

'A GOOD SCREAM'

Vincent Price, who says he enjoys roles of the macabre, portrays a hammy former horror movie star trying to make a comeback.

Clearly, Vincent Price was enjoying himself. With flowing black cape and ghoulish makeup he looked like a cross between Count Dracula and the Joker. "There must be some small children around here that I can frighten," he said with a wicked grin.

Price, the veteran of 103 films, was on location in Burbank guest starring as a hammy former horror film star trying to make a comeback in the "Black Day for Bluebeard" episode of NBC's The Snoop Sisters, starring Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick. The segment airs at 8:30PM on the NBC Tuesday Mystery Movie.

Price has played mostly villains in his long career, but in recent years his film roles have been almost entirely about the macabre. "Theater of Blood," for instance, is one of his more recent films.

"Actually, these are sort of gothic tales . . . Edgar Allen Poe type of things rather than outright horror stories," he says. "I love to do them. They're great fun and these films use more tricks and special effects than any other kind of movie."

In "Bad Day for Bluebeard," Price plays a man who is, among other things, a gourmet cook and art lover—two of the abiding loves of the off-screen Vincent Price. "The role was written with me in mind but of course there are some exaggerations made in the character for comic effect," he said with a smile. Price's cookbook has sold more than a quarter million copies and he has written a new book on art.

"That's what I'd like to do more of—write. I love to write and lecture. I write about things I know something about, such as art and food. I haven't any ambition to try fiction," he says. "I write everything in long hand and I'm one of those horrible people who sleeps with a pad next to his bed. I'll wake up in the middle of the night with an idea and start jotting it down."

Price, at 62, is remarkably good-natured and relaxed for someone who has spent his life scaring people or making them mad at him.

"I've had a wonderful life . . . a marvelously varied life," he said. "When I was a young man I thought the best time of my life would be when I got older. And I was absolutely right. I feel like a million and I've never been happier. I'm having great fun with this role. And it's such a delight to work with Helen Hayes and Mildred Natwick. But this isn't the first time. It's sort of a reunion.

"I was in a play, 'Victoria Regina,' on Broadway with Helen in 1935 through 1937. And I was in a play with Mildred in the summer of 1936, so we're old friends. But I think we should try to get together more often than every 37 years," he said.

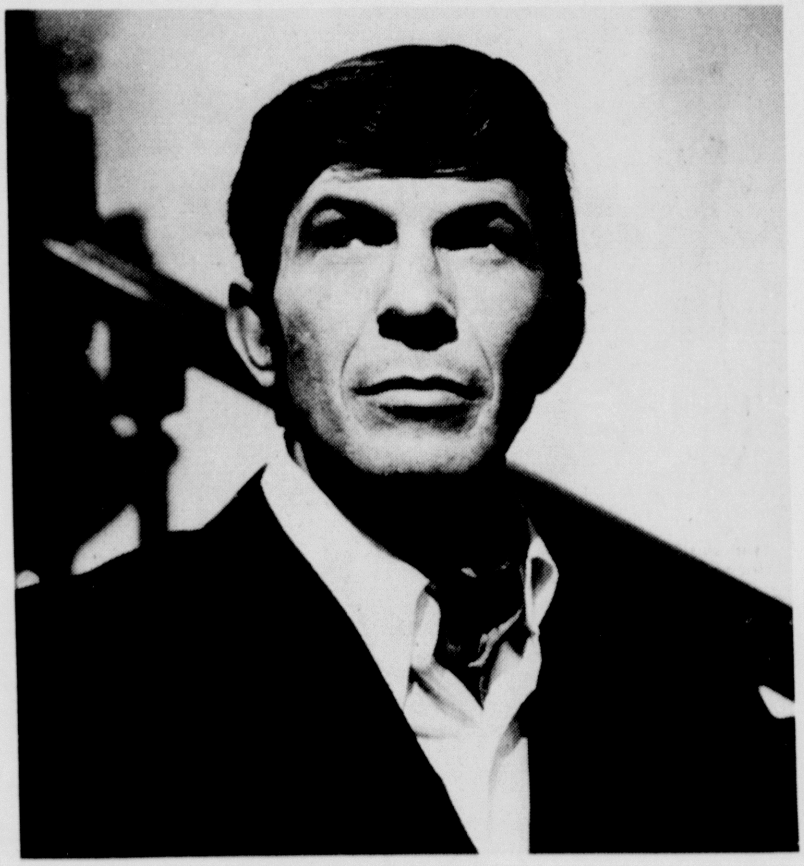
SCIENCE FICTION SOCIETY

"We live in a science fiction society," says Leonard Nimoy, who provides the voice of Mr. Spock for NBC's animated Saturday morning series, Star Trek.

"A lot of people aren't really aware of it. But we really do. We are terribly affected by science fiction in communication, food, transportation, health, medicine, every aspect of our lives," says Nimoy, who played the role of the half-human, half-Vulcan Mr. Spock in Star Trek during its three-year run on NBC as a live-action show.

"The trips to the moon brought a lot of science fiction into focus suddenly. Extra-terrestrial travel and the possibility of extra-terrestrial life (which I am convinced must exist) are simply the next steps. Whatever discoveries are made on other planets will finally put everything into focus and it won't be science fiction anymore. "Star Trek deals with the very near future, really. At the same time, it raises very serious and worthwhile questions about things that we are dealing with now. It is not always possible for an audience to immediately relate to things that we talk about on 'Star Trek' and perhaps that is good, because if they were able to, some of the things that we do on the show would terrify them."



LEONARD NIMOY

Nimoy believes that science fiction enables an author to present things pertinent to contemporary society in an altered form. "You can remove it one step and say, 'This is in the future on another planet, look at what happened to these people, they are all living underground because they destroyed the surface of their planet.' If you can say it's on another planet and they can feel for these poor people, it becomes a good way to raise questions which you can't raise in a contemporary drama, at least not in those specific terms."

Nimoy says he is a fan of the social aspects of science fiction. "There are some kinds of science fiction that don't intrigue me at all. They are the nuts and bolts mechanics of science fiction that have to do with certain kinds of ships battling it out. It's just another way of playing World War II. The rocketry and stuff like that intrigues me to the extent that they're useful as a vehicle to establish another time, another dimension, another planet."

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR CARROLL O'CONNOR

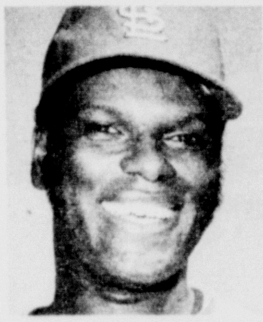
Are you ever conscience-stricken because of the harm and damage you do to American Poles, or is money your only consideration?—T. Wlarorski, Bloomfield, Conn.

● There is not enough money on earth to make me consciously hurt anyone, be it an ethnic, racial or religious group. If you watch the show with an open mind, you will see that Archie never slurs his son-in-law with malice. Archie is a frightened man and has trouble coping with society. He never wins, he is a loser from the word go. The show's foremost purpose is to entertain, and we take great care not to offend anyone. Everyone—from the producer to the writers to the actors to the network censors—checks and double-checks the use of epithets. And we all have one purpose—to look at ourselves with humor and never, never with harm. I send my deepest and sincerest apologies to you and your family, if you feel that I have offended you.

FOR JULIE NIXON EISENHOWER

What will your responsibilities be as an editor for Curtis Publishing?—B. J., Oklahoma City, Okla.

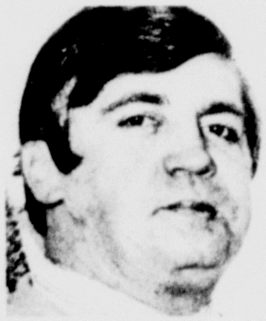
● I'm enjoying trying my hand at writing, in addition to editing material for the revitalized "Saturday Evening Post." I'm also working on a special project: an anthology of the best literature from 50 years of Curtis' publications in the children's field ("Jack and Jill," etc.).



FOR BOB GIBSON, pitcher for the St. Louis Cardinals

You've hit more home runs than any other active major-league pitcher. How would you feel about the designated-hitter rule being used in the National League?—Fred Williamson, Milton, N.C.

● As a pitcher who enjoys hitting, I don't like the designated-hitter rule. I feel that hitting and defense are parts of my game, just as pitching is.



FOR BUFORD PUSSER, real-life hero of "Walking Tall"

I hear that you've been going around the country promoting the movie based on your career as sheriff of McNairy County, Tenn. How do you react to the scene in which you and your wife are ambushed and she is killed?—J. J. Goodyear, Durham, N.C.

● I turn away from the screen when that scene comes on. Then, when people in the audience start crying, I give in and cry myself.

FOR FLORENCE HENDERSON

On "The Brady Bunch" you mother six children and when you go home, you have four of your own. Don't you ever get fed up with kids?—Mrs. D. G. Martin, Tuxedo, N.Y.

● No! I like children. I only get fed up with obnoxious parents who make their children into human beings who obviously don't turn out to be the world's most likable people.

FOR THE "ASK THEM YOURSELF" EDITOR

Whatever became of Connie Francis? I understand she was booked for a few engagements, but canceled out.—M. Deever, Washington, D.C.

● Connie Francis is alive and well and living quite comfortably. Yes, it's true she canceled several engagements at the last moment; the last one was scheduled a few months ago at the Waldorf's prestigious Empire Room. Her closest associates attribute it to "cold feet," a bit of fear about appearing before a live audience again. But she's safe. She's a millionairess from past record royalties and motion pictures. Also, she has a guaranteed income of $125,000 a year for life from MGM Records. Not bad, huh?

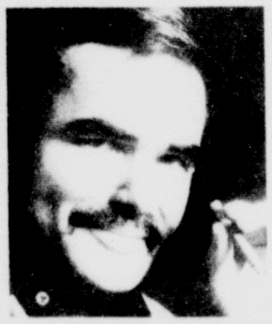
FOR KATHY LENNON of the Lennon Sisters

Have you ever thought of breaking up your act to become singles?—M. N., Pontiac, Mich.

● No. Never. We all feel we need the security of each other. We do solos in the group, but wouldn't care to go out alone. If one of us ever said, "This is too much for me," we'd all quit. We care about each other very deeply.



FOR BURT REYNOLDS

What do you eat to keep your physique so beautiful?—Cindy Anderson, Tulare, Calif.

● I follow a high-protein diet Monday through Friday. I eat pasta or other starches on weekends only, and I never eat candy or sweets.

FOR SUZANNE PLESHETTE

Is your husband in films [Suzanne is married to Thomas Joseph Gallagher III]?—D. H. H., Lorain, Ohio

● No, he's in business—a stock investor. And at first it was quite difficult. He'd ask me, "What time will you be home?" and I'd say, "I don't know, maybe nine or ten." And he would say, "Well, why don't you ask someone?" And I'd try to explain that it doesn't work that way in films. If we're in the middle of a scene, we have to finish it. Now he understands these problems better.

FOR TED KNIGHT of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show"

Is the newscaster you play on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" typical? And how do the men on the network news regard this representation of themselves?—B. V. F., Princeton, N.J.

● Ted Baxter is a composite of several local television newsmen. Everywhere I go people tell me they know who the "real" Ted Baxter is. Network newsmen resented the character at first, but most of them have now come around to where they can see the humor.

We Asked These Stars, "What Do You Fear Most?"

Compiled by Alan Ebert

Here, in their own words, seven stars of our entertainment world reveal the innermost fears that rest, hidden no more, in their hearts.

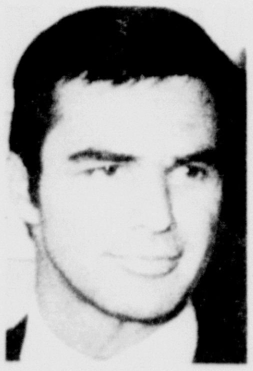
Rita Hayworth: "Between the third floor and death"

Maureen Stapleton: "One long cardiac arrest"

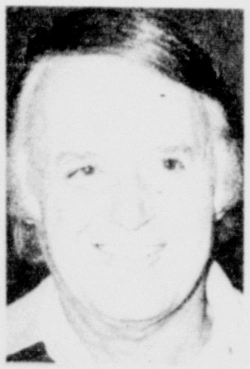
Godfrey Cambridge: Attacked by a wild sleeping bag

Patti Page: A star-spangled bleep

Dyan Cannon: Pollutants and politics



Burt Reynolds: The double rip-off



Rod Steiger: "I ate the w-h-o-l-e thing"

RITA HAYWORTH

"Several years ago, in Madrid, after dining in the penthouse of a new 23-story apartment house, I entered an elevator with five friends. No sooner did the door close than we plummeted. I can still hear the screams and feel the terror as we plunged downward. And I remember being thrown to the floor as the emergency brakes finally caught and held. We later learned we were dangling somewhere between the third floor and death.

"The worst was not over. For more than an hour, we remained trapped in our cell with no means to force open the door, no air and no way of knowing if we would suddenly fall again.

"I will not belabor the point. Today, I ride escalators or walk, even if that means six or seven flights to a hotel room or a friend's apartment. The doors of an elevator will never close on me again. The very thought produces a cold sweat."

MAUREEN STAPLETON

"That Great Silver Bird in the Sky, the Wrights' Wrongo, the airplane—that's my fear.

"I don't understand the principles of aviation—why the Big Bird doesn't fall down from the sky. So I don't fly – which causes considerable grief to an actress whose work is on both coasts. Only once did I succumb. Many years ago, when in Los Angeles, my agent called to inform me I was signed for a Broadway play. He convinced me to save two days and fly rather than take the train.

"In those days, there were no nonstop jets from California. Planes to New York generally made a tour of the U.S. before falling down on the Manhattan airport. Well, my dears, I am here today by the grace of God. That trip was one long cardiac arrest. They had to carry me off the plane sucking my thumb. I vowed never again. There's no percentage in it. If the plane doesn't crash and kill me, I'll die of heart failure anyway."

GODFREY CAMBRIDGE

"Even the new slim me can't stand small enclosures. In a restaurant, I can't sit facing a wall, only facing front. In an airplane, if I know it's going to be a full flight, I'll buy a second ticket so I can have the space next to me. I get physically ill when I feel closed in.

"The worst experience I ever had was when I decided to commune with nature. I bought a terrific new canvas sleeping bag, put on my Doctor Dentins, and snuggled in for a night under the stars. I couldn't stand it. I felt trapped. And I was! The zipper was stuck and wouldn't open.

"I said to myself: 'Godfrey, you are a reasonable, mature, intelligent, fairly together fellow. Don't panic.' Only Godfrey didn't listen. He was too busy clawing, ripping and biting his way out of that straitjacket!

"Anyone interested in buying a hardly used sleeping bag with a lot of fringe?"

"Before every performance I sit in my dressing room convinced I will lose my voice in the middle of a song; that I'll open my mouth, reach for a note and come up with nothing.

"It happened once in a football stadium before 50,000 people, and Lord knows how many others who were tuned in to the nationwide broadcast. And to make matters even worse, the song was 'The Star-Spangled Banner.'

"I can never forget that helpless feeling of standing there before others, desperately trying to make a sound, and being capable of none. I know exactly what I would do if it happened again. I'd hum loudly, break into the three dance steps I know, add a card trick or two, and then run – all the way back to Claremore, Okla., where I was born."

DYAN CANNON

"I am afraid of the growing insensitivity to others in the world today. I am fearful of the self-involvement of which we are all guilty. I am afraid of pollutants and politics—which almost seem synonymous these days. I am afraid my daughter will never see the true beauty in this world before it's destroyed."

BURT REYNOLDS

"There are two things you must hold on to when you become famous – yourself and your friends. Show business, or 'The Fame Game,' as I call it, can rip off both. And that frightens me. Not all the money or fame in the world can compensate for that kind of aloneness.

"Mine is a crazy business. The more famous you become, the more you are surrounded by people. But they are 'paid' people – managers, agents, aides, and when the 'pay' goes, so do they.

"Luck plays a big part in any career, and when you're down on it, if you haven't kept your friendships, haven't kept a true perspective of yourself, you're in big, deep trouble. I've seen it happen to many. When the money goes, so go the lights, the cameras, the action. As I said, man, it's frightening."

ROD STEIGER

"I am fearful of waking up one day to find I have lived my life without ever having lived it all; without having played every card held in my hand; without having dared to experience all there is to experience.

"This fear results in my playing and working with determination. I must do and be all I can. Sometimes it seems my appetite is insatiable, but I want to leave this life feeling I ate the w-h-o-l-e thing."

Pat Loud on Love and Divorce: "In Spite of It All, Married Is Better"

By Pat Loud

Especially for FAMILY WEEKLY

Where are the brides of yesterday? Why are so many of them spitting nails and traveling to the divorce mills of Las Vegas or the Dominican Republic—or just battling it out in hometown divorce courts? Nervous and hollow-eyed, but determined, these are the women who are tearing up their nests the minute the last child graduates from high school. But they are not alone. Many of us who are too timid to go that far talk about divorce a lot when the old man's back is turned or after the second martini has been trotted out to assure a relaxed and congenial Saturday evening.

What's the matter with us, anyway? Why are so many people so dissatisfied with their marriages? Why do the sweet "I do's" of our youth turn into the outraged "I won'ts" of middle age? Most often it's the wife who is more vocal about her dissatisfaction and the husband who retreats into a shell of silence—a "don't-bother-me" attitude that drives her right up the wall. Sometimes he has a lot of other retreats, too. How many of us single and divorced ladies have met a married man who explains that his wife "simply doesn't understand me"? The implication in his complaint is that she is a soulless witch who has ruined the tranquillity of his years and that he stays with her only because of his great spirit of humanity. In an epic loneliness reminiscent of the Flying Dutchman, he now covers every wateringhole inside his limits of time and space, questing for some noble maid who will ease his pain for one brief, erotic encounter.

But then we're all so inept and inanely self-righteous in dealing with our mate's faults. No wonder our household gods seem to have forsaken us. Where did it all start, this inability to cope with the realities of married life? Our bodies sure got older, but our emotions have declined to make the trip. They seem no older or wiser than they were 15, 20 or even 30 years ago.

"How can we believe in not marrying? To do that . . . is to believe that we have become such spiritual grotesqueries that we should bounce off each other in brief collision like the bumper cars in an amusement park."

"The main thing I miss," says Pat Loud, "is the companionship, a word that covers a whole lot of territory."

Eva Rubinstein

We've got more than our solid Victorian heritage to confuse us, you know. We remember things like World War II, in which we triumphed over the forces of evil to make the world safe for democracy. But the world didn't seem to work out quite that way, because, somehow, we have been sending the flower of our manhood off to fight and die on foreign shores ever since. That has confused us a little, too. What is real and what isn't has never really become clearly sorted out in our minds.

Obviously, we had to get away. We had to escape. The Great American Tranquilizer was escapism, and some of that confused us even more. Take our popular music, for instance. Which one of us didn't fantasize that Frank Sinatra was standing beside her nonexistent but magnolia-scented garden gate whispering her name in the moonlight? Or that Lena Horne wandered around in stormy weather, covering the waterfront and had it bad and that ain't good?

And the movies. Who dared to ponder the Vesuvian lust rising in the manly heart of that gentleman/savage Errol Flynn as he gazed into the eyes (totally ignoring the cleavage and heaving bosom) of gentlewoman/savage Maureen O'Hara? And who wondered if their romance would still be warm and prosperous ten years later? Not a soul then, but today I'd be interested in what Captain Blood was like after a few anniversaries. And what about the Captain from Castile? We all believed that noble and hot-blooded Spaniard would be forever faithful to the little barroom slattern he loved. The fact is, we never questioned the Captain's future and just weren't interested. To us, our romantic adventure was the Mount McKinley of life. Marriage and the rest were just the inevitable downhill stroll.

So it doesn't seem so strange, in retrospect, that a lot of us married for the wrong reasons. Many of us did manage to make the painful journey into adulthood. But for others, divorce may have been only the logical unraveling of a flimsy little courtship.

Marriage for today's young people is about as different from what it was in my day as Mick Jagger is different from Dick Haymes. There's romance, sure, but also a lot more realism. (Isn't there?) Most young people don't have the same social pressures to marry—nor do they live in romantic isolation booths separated from reality by mirror images of their parents' perfect marriages.

Modern man has been relieved (hasn't he?) of those simpering, overromantic courtships in which that cute idiosyncrasy of his beloved fiancée became a revolting habit once she was his wife. There is an openness in these new relationships that allows for honesty (real or imagined) and in which frankness and candor exist even as love itself is nurtured. They've solved it, right? Wrong! As wise and logical as they are, it's really a pity that they aren't having any better luck staying married than their parents' generation had.

Pat Loud achieved fame with her husband and five children in the educational-television series, "An American Family." She is the author, with Nora Johnson, of "Pat Loud: A Woman's Story" (Coward, McCann and Geoghegan, $6.95) and, without Nora Johnson, of this article about the state of American marriage and divorce. She and her husband Bill reached their own parting of the ways while the TV cameras rolled. Their breakup was seen by millions of Americans and Europeans.

YOUR NERVES CAN CURE THEMSELVES

once you learn how to de-sensitize them, this doctor's ingenious new way...

If You Suffer From A Single One Of These Torturous Symptoms Of Nerves, Tension Or Chronic Anxiety, THEN THE FACTS BELOW MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT YOU HAVE EVER READ IN YOUR LIFE!

Because they reveal, for the first time, how your nerves have tricked you into the following mental symptoms:

constant nervousness and over-irritation . . . indecision . . . depression . . . loss of confidence in yourself and others . . . feelings of unreality . . . overwhelming obsession with one or two horrible thoughts . . .

a hopeless feeling that your entire personality is coming apart . . . that your identity is dissolving . . . or that you may be helplessly drifting into a nervous breakdown!

And—equally as bad—how your nerves have tricked you into the following physical symptoms:

chronic fatigue, that starts in the morning, and grows worse as the day goes on . . .

"missed" heartbeats—"racing" heart—palpitations—or sudden sharp pains under the heart . . .

sweating hands—or "pins and needles" in either your hands or your legs . . .

"churning" stomach . . . nausea . . . choking feeling in the throat . . . inability to take a deep breath . . . tight band of pain around the head . . . "ready to jump out of your skin" . . . strange tricks of vision . . . weak spells . . . insomnia, that goes on night after night after night . . .

hand shaking . . . panic spasms . . . knots in your chest . . . dizziness . . . difficulty in swallowing . . . vomiting . . . and all the other physical tortures that turn your life into one continuous hell!

And Every One Of These Nervous Symptoms Can Be Controlled . . . And Then Diminished . . . And Then Eliminated—OFTEN BY AS LITTLE AS THIS ONE SINGLE INSIGHT INTO THEIR HIDDEN CAUSE!

And that insight is this:

If you suffer from any of the nervous symptoms listed above, then you must understand at once that your nerves are not ill . . . they have not deteriorated . . . they have not lost their true physical health in any way! What has happened to them instead is that they have simply become OVER-SENSITIZED . . . "rubbed raw" by too much outside irritation . . . and are now ready to discharge the emotional and physical symptoms of panic at even the slightest thing that goes wrong!

Thus, the depression . . . indecision . . . loss of confidence and all the other emotional symptoms you feel are all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves! And the churning stomach . . . palpitating heart . . . never-ending headaches and all the other physical nervous-symptoms you feel are—again—all caused by OVER-SENSITIZED nerves!

And therefore the way to treat ALL these symptoms is NOT with drugs . . . NOT with shock . . . NOT with medical formulations or hospitalizations at all! The way to treat these nerves is to change the poisonous-thoughts that are rubbing them raw!

And this is done (as proven by this internationally-famed physician on thousands of patients) in four simple steps! The first of which stops nervous symptoms (both physical and emotional) from multiplying from that moment on! The second of which serves to tranqualize and quiet down those over-sensitized nerves far more powerfully (and permanently) than any drug a pharmacist could ever give you!

The third of which lets you stop fighting those symptoms (which only intensifies them in an ever-increasing spiral of sheer torment), and—instead—leave them alone in an ingenious way that lets them start healing themselves!

And the fourth of which—the great reward—brings you slowly-but-surely back to the person you used to be! With a new, enduring feeling of control and confidence that nothing can destroy! So much so that this doctor actually comes right out and states bluntly: "The advice given here will definitely cure you, if you only follow it"!

In Fact, Case History After Case History Proves That Cure May Be So Dramatically Quick That Your Friends And Family Will Beg You To Tell Them Your Secret!

Once again, it doesn't matter what physical or emotional symptoms you are now suffering from . . . how "deeply entrenched" they are . . . how long you have been plagued by them . . . how "old" or "weak" or "out-of-control" you may feel today! Here is specific, step-by-immediate-step advice that will (again to quote directly from the doctor) "banish every unwelcome sensation and regain peace of mind and body"!

For example:

The two-minute self-treatment (you perform one ingenious little action with your chest) that ends sudden panic seizures on the spot—including all their side effects such as dizziness, pins and needles, involuntary stiffening of the joints, inability to breathe, and all the rest.

That "lump in the throat that won't go away"—how to banish it in minutes . . . and enjoy eating any food you wish to once again!

Physical weakness—perhaps the most dreaded of all symptoms—and (surprisingly) perhaps the fastest of all to banish!

How to deal with the twin monsters of fatigue and guilt! And leave behind emotional exhaustion . . . morning depression . . . thoughts that once raced around and around in your mind without cessation! (And leave them all behind—for good!)

Why so many patients who tried these simple techniques actually came out of their nervous sicknesses as far finer and stronger people than they ever were before!

How to recover from chronic tension caused by an insoluable problem! The only sane way to overcome it! How to avoid unnecessary suffering, for both yourself and others! And, perhaps, actually turn your worst defeat into crowning success!

The surest and most permanent way to cure obsessions!

How to tap the forces of Nature, every morning, that are just waiting to cure you!

How to bring happiness back into your everyday life! Not by waiting for some great event or reward . . . but simply by developing the eyes to see joy in the little things all around you!

And—the final goal: How to develop the kind of nervous control that automatically turns panic off the instant it starts! That frees you forever from "nerve-crutches" such as drugs or alcohol! That lets you pick up your life again from the point where over-sensitized nerves forced you to abandon it, with absolute confidence that you now have the poise and self-possession to accomplish the goals you have always wanted!

Already a best-seller in nine foreign nations, as well as the United States! Read it from cover to cover. We take all the risk! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon—TODAY!

VITAL NOTE!

To gain the wonder-working benefits of this book in every area of your life starting within the first five minutes after you pick it up—there is absolutely no need to STUDY this revolutionary new book or even read it from cover to cover, or expend any more "literary" effort on your part other than to browse through it at your leisure for one or two thrilling minutes a day!

This is NOT a textbook! NOT a study manual! There are no lectures—not a single "blue-sky" theory to ponder over anywhere!

Instead, for the first time; here are revolutionary new breakthroughs that HELP YOUR NERVES DE-SENSITIZE THEMSELVES . . . ACTUALLY DRAIN OUT TORTUROUS MENTAL AND PHYSICAL SYMPTOMS, STARTING THE VERY FIRST DAY—all through a few incredibly-simple techniques that you can put to work for you the very first time you pick it up.

Therefore, we do NOT want you to treat this amazing volume as you would an ordinary book! Instead, we ask you this:

Place it on your bedstand, entirely at our risk, for thirty days! Browse through just a few pages every night before you retire! Skip around if you like! But make absolutely no conscious effort to "study" this book, "work" on it, or even memorize a single one of the thrilling techniques you will find on every one of its pages!

Instead, you'll make this startling discovery in these very first thirty days alone. Instantly—simply by leafing through its pages—your mind will automatically absorb the wonder-working procedures laid out for you in this book! Effortlessly, you will respond to its convention-shattering breakthroughs!

Inevitably—hour after hour—day after day—week after week—you will find your body draining away, almost by itself, the tortures of constant nervousness . . . overwhelming depression . . . lack of confidence . . . chronic fatigue . . . 'skipping' or 'racing' heart . . . pins and needles in hands or feet . . . even nausea, shortness of breath, chest and stomach pains, weak spells, and never-flagging insomnia! And much, much more!

All these—gone! For just a few short moments a day!

WHAT OTHERS SAY:

". . . helped me so much and released me from the particular hell I have been living in since my breakdown six years ago."

"I think of Dr. Weekes with admiration and deep gratitude, as I am sure thousands of other people are doing."

"I am amazed at the progress I made in such a short time."

"It would be no exaggeration to add that your book saved my life."

"The method you give for cure of nervous conditions is so effective—and so simple—I cannot think why nothing remotely like your system has been suggested to me."

"The great reassurance you give about the distressing physical symptoms of a disturbed nervous system is one of the greatest benefits to be derived from your book."

"You cannot possibly imagine what a relief it is to be able to view life normally again, instead of fear-panic all the while."

"I cannot describe the emotion I felt to find, at last, someone who really understood the problem, and to hear her say the condition can be cured. . . ."

"I would like you to know that my nervous condition has so greatly improved through the advice gleaned from your most precious and invaluable book . . . that all symptoms have now disappeared and I rarely need Librium or sleeping capsules."

"My physician is amazed at my progress and of course I showed him your book which he borrowed and read thoroughly and is now recommending to other patients."

"My wife has made a vast improvement since using your book and now feels for the first time like getting away from the hospital altogether. I'm sure if she had had your treatment in earlier years she would never have had to go into the hospital at all."

Pat Loud

Continued

So here we are, young and old alike, with more than one in three of us getting divorced and a lot of the others apparently restless but holding fast—at least so far. [According to the best statistics available to FAMILY WEEKLY, more than 36 percent of U.S. marriages are ending in divorce.]

Remember the old saying, "Love is the answer," to which the rejoinder was, "What is the question?" That was a pretty good rejoinder, it turns out. Love just isn't the answer to everything. I think we have to realize that love is a bust as an all-purpose problem solver. We have foolishly expected love to answer too many of our needs.

Is it just plain impossible for most of us to dedicate our integrity to a lifetime commitment? Must prenuptial bliss so often turn into postnuptial boredom? I don't think so—not if there is enough light, air and freedom in the union, and if both parties work hard to keep it that way. To think of marriage as a ball and chain helps create resentfulness and boredom. Yet incredible numbers of people do just that. After my divorce, my married friends knew I sat up on my hill in Santa Barbara every night in a house full of kids. But many of them still envied me. I was free to do whatever I wanted to and they weren't. Yet they were supposedly happily married people!

But how can we believe in not marrying? To do that is to believe that to truly know each other would be a revolting shock. It is to believe that we have become such spiritual grotesqueries that we should bounce off each other in brief collision like the bumper cars in an amusement park. It is to believe that intimacy assassinates love, which is a word too few of us really understand in the first place. It is to believe that life is a tragic joke in which we, ladies and gentlemen, are all portraying fools.

I remember this: When my marriage was good, it was very, very good. I once believed that it would automatically go on forever, that it was not fragile, but solid and substantial. But my mistake was one of immaturity, not sloth or callousness. I like being married, and I think most people do, too, because in spite of the risk and all the ugly statistics, an awful lot of people are still marrying. Even people involved in what they call "experiments in alternate life-styles" haven't really come up with anything very different from the basic family concept, no matter how hard they try. The basic ingredients are a man and a woman who want to distill a life together. It's a primal urge in practically all of us.

Some say love's opposite is indifference. But I seem morbidly unable to conjure up this indifference toward Bill, even though he and I haven't lived together for two and a half years. And that isn't because I'm one of the classic torchbearers, either. I hadn't thought of him as Captain Marvelous for years before we divorced, and it's pretty obvious that I wasn't the sweetheart of his dreams during those same years. Both of us wanted out. Indeed, we had to get out, or we would have wound up cutting out paper dolls and talking to them. So our divorce was more like telling the frontline troops that the war was over than like a visit from the angel of death. We were free to face each other without rancor for the first time in ages. It was like having bad Mr. Hyde turning into good Dr. Jekyll again, and I can now remember my marriage with pleasure instead of anguish. The gentleness of my divorce is largely responsible for that. Bill and I had emerged from the battle of the sexes and we were still friends.

"Our divorce was more like telling the frontline troops that the war was over than like a visit from the angel of death."

But the price of freedom comes high. Though I don't regret my decision to divorce, I have seen life from both sides now. And for me, at least, married is better. The main thing I miss is the companionship, a word that covers a whole lot of territory. A lot of my unmarried friends use that word to describe what they're missing. I do have a new life and the challenge is exhilarating. I'm not about to retreat from it again, but I like life better and feel more complete when I'm sharing the experience-of-living with a husband. Living alone seems unnatural to me.

My children have to go out, hopefully a lot wiser than Bill and I, and face the challenges of their own lives. They'll have to find their own mates to do that with them. I'm just their launching pad, and that's the way it should be. It's just that I want the same thing for myself, and having had such balance in my life once, I know what's missing now. fw

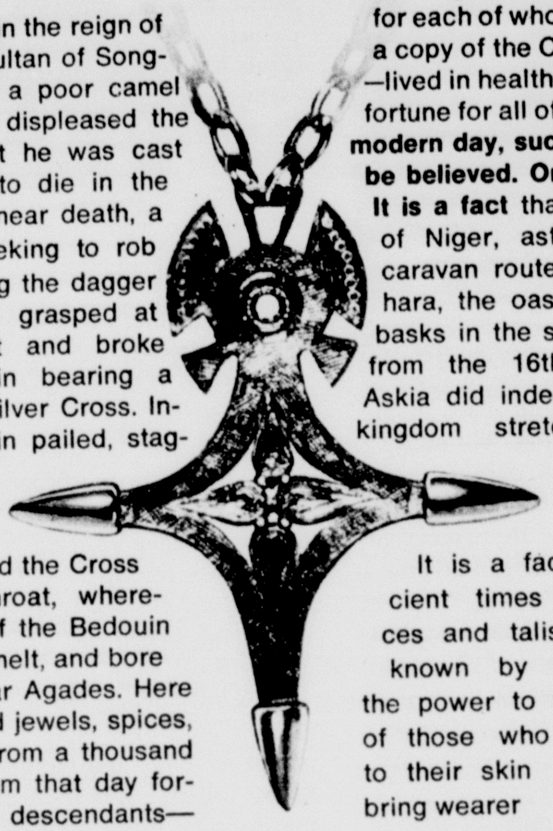
The Legend of the Amazing Powers of LA CROIX d'AGADÈS



Once upon a time, in the reign of Askia the Great, Sultan of Songhai, it is told that a poor camel driver, Ahmed, so displeased the powerful ruler that he was cast out of the oasis to die in the desert. As he lay near death, a Bedouin came seeking to rob him. Ahmed, seeing the dagger raised above him, grasped at the thief's throat and broke therefrom a chain bearing a strangely carved silver Cross. Instantly the Bedouin pailed, staggered and fell dead! Praising his luck, Ahmed placed the Cross upon his own throat, whereupon the camel of the Bedouin approached and knelt, and bore him to a cave near Agades. Here Ahmed discovered jewels, spices, and gold, looted from a thousand caravans. And from that day forward he and his descendants—for each of whom Ahmed caused a copy of the Cross to be carved—lived in health, riches, and good fortune for all of their days! In this modern day, such tales are not to be believed. Or are they?

It is a fact that in the Republic of Niger, astride the ancient caravan routes across the Sahara, the oasis of Agades still basks in the sun, little changed from the 16th century, when Askia did indeed control a vast kingdom stretching from the desert to the sea!

It is a fact that, since ancient times certain substances and talismans have been known by millions to have the power to affect the destiny of those who wear them next to their skin — the power to bring wearer

Health, Happiness, Luck, Success!

And while it is not known how, or by whom the original Cross of Agades was first copied and smuggled to Europe, it is a fact that Agades was part of the French African territory in the 18th and 19th centuries! And today it is a fact that thousands of Frenchmen and women wear this identical Cross of Agades (always in contact with the skin)! The modern belief is that the curious carving and design of this beautiful piece of jewelry somehow modifies the human body magnetism—that it makes this magnetism positive, capable of repelling harmful and inauspicious waves, and attracting those beneficial to the wearer. (Certainly you have often been aware of the magnetic attraction of those who succeed—who are lucky and happy and in good health. And we often speak of the "good vibrations" we get from certain people!)

THE GENUINE CROSS

We certify that this is a true, in every detail Cross of Agades described in the legends of the orient. We make no claims for its power to change your destiny or improve your health and happiness. Wear it if you like simply as a distinctively beautiful piece of jewelry—delicately carved and beautifully plated in your choice of silver or gold. But we can make it possible for you to test its power for yourself — without risk! If after 15 days of wearing LA CROIX d'AGADES in direct contact with your skin you are dissatisfied for any reason, simply return it and we'll refund the purchase price! Mail coupon at once!

INTERESTED IN ASTROLOGY?

How Your Horoscope Can Bring You Wealth, Love, Success And Happiness

by Norman P. Kennedy - Reporter, World News Agency of Astrology

Canton, OH (WNAA)-Did you know that you can have your personal natal horoscope cast and analyzed free? You can. The American Astrological Association, the largest known astrological society in the world, is conducting astrological research. They need birth information for this project. If you send them your birth data, they'll cast your horoscope on their computer for research purposes. And if you wish, they'll send you a copy of it.

Your personal natal horoscope will consist of about 9 pages and 3,000 words. It will offer you the best psychological analysis of yourself available today. Your horoscope will analyze your strengths and weaknesses. It will tell you how to take fuller advantage of your talents, and show you how to overcome your weaknesses. Your horoscope will discuss your lovelife, tell you who you should be sexually compatible with, and outline your marriage potentials. It will also cover your marital, family, and child relationships along with your health, your career opportunities, and your finances.

An important point should be made. Your personal computer horoscope will not be the general kind found in paperbacks. Your personal computer horoscope will analyze your sun-sign, moon sign, rising sign, and planets according to your exact time, date, month, year and place of birth. Many people don't understand the importance of their moon sign and rising sign. Your moon sign refers to your subconscious mind relating to your past. It also affects your childhood conditioning, instinctive patterns, feelings, and inner nature. Your rising sign shows you how you project yourself. It is the mask you wear before others.

Your 3,000 word, 9 page natal horoscope will be cast on the Association's gigantic 360-65 I.B.M. computer. The computer was programmed by the Association's staff of top certified astrologers. It contains over 24,000,000 bits of authenticated astrological information. No two horoscopes produced by the computer are ever alike.

I have visited the Association and had my 9 page computer horoscope cast and analyzed. I was awestruck at the accuracy of my horoscope. It described me perfectly. It even pointed out some hidden talents which I wasn't aware of until I really sat down and took an honest look at myself. I'm happy to say, that I've now begun to take advantage of these talents.

Few people realize that the majority of famous people used horoscopes just like the ones produced by the Association to discover and cultivate their talents and thus gain success and riches. Nearly all successful people use astrologers--politicians, movie stars, businessmen, doctors and lawyers. Many famous scientists were astrologers themselves, such as Sir Issac Newton, Carl Jung and Sigmund Freud. Famous business tycoon J. P. Morgan used astrology to achieve his wealth. He did not make a financial move without consulting his astrologer. Astrology helped the allies win World War II by predicting the enemies moves. A horoscope of Adolf Hitler done on January 30, 1933 exactly predicted the course of World War II. See chapter 30 of the RISE AND FALL OF THE THIRD REICH, by William L. Shirer. Astrology was used to find and keep the successful marriage of Grace Kelly and Prince Rainier. Together, they recently had their horoscopes updated by American astrologer, Keith Clayton.

These rich and famous people are no different than you and I, except for one thing. They weren't forced to use the general astrology carried in paperbacks. They could afford to pay a professional astrologer hundreds of dollars to cast their horoscope from their exact time and place of birth. This special research project has changed all that. Now you too can have your personal natal horoscope cast from your exact time and place of birth.

Here's how it works. The A.A.A. will cast and analyze your natal horoscope. They then check to see if your planet placements fit a group that they wish to research. (People who fit this group can receive extra bonuses by filling out a research questionnaire.) Since your horoscope has already been cast and analyzed for research, you may get it for only a $3.00 charge to cover postage, handling, and the cost of making your duplicate copy. You get the expensive casting and analyzing process, which could cost $300.00, free.

To get your personal natal horoscope thru this special opportunity, simply fill out the research computer form below and mail. Include the $3.00 postage, handling, and coping cost for each horoscope or charge your credit card.

If you're not as astounded with the accuracy of your horoscope as I was with mine, return it and you'll receive every penny of your money back. I've been authorized to tell you that your horoscope is covered by a one year - 365 day - full money back guarantee. If you have any questions, call John F. Ford, President of the American Astrological Association, at (216) 478-2171 . He'll be happy to talk with you.

WHY PLANT A GROUND COVER?

In many areas and situations, ground covers are more appropriate and more satisfactory than turf. They are able to grow and thrive in sun OR shade, and in poor soil.

On steep slopes where mowing is difficult, ground cover is much more effective and much less laborious to maintain than grass. Ground covers hold the soil as well as turf and the textures are far more interesting.

Small areas of grass are a continual chore to keep mown and trimmed but ground covers require almost no care. They are excellent protection and soil conditioners. They hold the fallen leaves from blowing away, thus helping to add annually to the humus content.

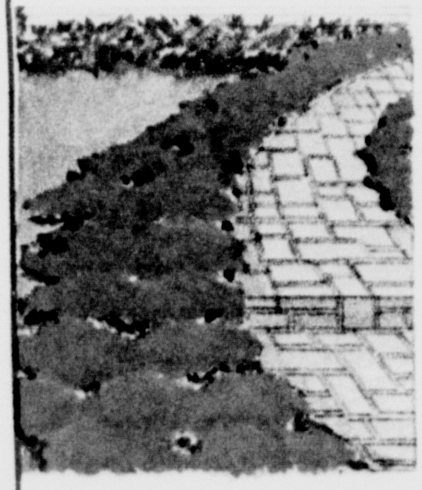
WHY CREEPING RED SEDUM?



One of Sedum's most valuable assets is its full time beauty. Lush foliage begins in early spring, and star-shaped wine red flowers delight the viewer from late June through September. The attractive semi-evergreen foliage lasts well into winter, maintaining its rich green and bronze color nearly all year round.

Besides being one of the loveliest of the ground covers, Sedum also rates high on the other requirements. It is hardy, grows well in sun or partial shade, in sandy soil, clay soil, or good soil.

Its thick foliage and root system hold the soil on slopes or banks. The neat 3-4" cover forms a dense perennial mat to bring green and wine red beauty to slopes, borders, rocky areas, anywhere beauty and durability are needed.

Each plant will easily and quickly spread to fill one sq. ft. Sedum spreads evenly, maintains its uniform smooth beauty at all stages of growth. Unlike some other ground covers, Sedum, also called "Dragon's Blood," stays where you put it — does not straggle out into places where it doesn't belong. Sedum is almost indestructible, enduring and persisting against heavy climatic and nutritional odds.

FULLY GUARANTEED

All items guaranteed to be of high quality, exactly as advertised and to arrive in good healthy condition or purchase price will be refunded. RETURN SHIPPING LABEL ONLY —you may keep the plants. (One year limit).

Now is a Good Time to Plant RED SEDUM!

Your young Sedum plants will establish themselves and begin to spread a few days after planting. In a month or so they will already be 3-4 inches in diameter. They may lose their foliage as the first winter progresses but will leaf out again in early spring. During a long growing season they may reach 12" in diameter, always maintaining their neat regulated shape.

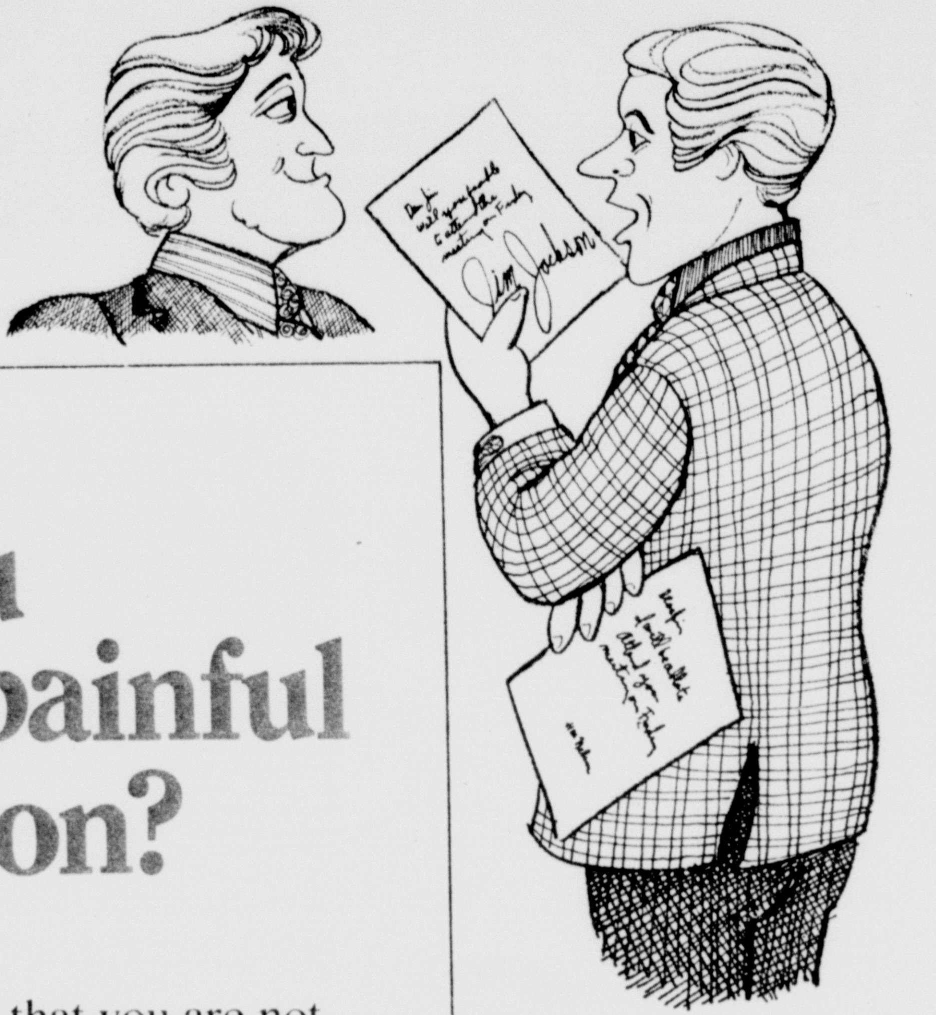
People Quiz

By John E. Gibson

Do You Dot Your i's?

(It Could Be a Clue to Your Character!)



True or False: The size of your signature tells a lot about how you regard yourself. (See number 4)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Most people talk the way they write.

2. People with illegible handwriting are likely to be accident-prone.

3. People who stay young despite their advancing years write differently from those who get old before their time.

4. The size of your signature tells a lot about how you regard yourself.

5. If you frequently fail to dot your i's, it indicates you're lacking in self-confidence.

6. You can tell from a person's handwriting whether he's an introvert or an extrovert.

ANSWERS

1. True. In studies in which samples of subjects' voice recordings were compared with their handwriting, many similarities were noted. For example, handwriting of people with loud voices tends to be characterized by bold strokes and heavy pressure. Hesitancy in speech may be reflected in "breaks" in the handwriting, with longer spaces between words. People whose speech is forceful, persuasive, and who try to influence the opinions of others, often underline words when they write to add extra emphasis, and so on.

2. True. University studies have shown that people whose penmanship is characterized by indecipherable scrawls and undisciplined flourishes tend to be more prone to accident than others. This was found to be true even in the case of schoolchildren, where "poor penmen were rated as being restless, impatient and lacking in physical coordination."

3. True. A study of more than 500 subjects of various ages and walks of life has shown that people who retain their vigor and zest for life, irrespective of the number of birthdays they have under their belts, write much faster than those who "feel as old as they are."

4. True. As one behavioral scientist has observed: "A man reveals more than his name in his signature. The writing of his name, an action performed over and over throughout his life, can be seen as a repeated test that indicates that man's estimation of himself." Research at Wesleyan University on groups of people of varying status in life—including blue-collar workers, university students and professors—showed that a man's signature tends to grow appreciably larger as his status increases. Similar studies at Brigham Young University resulted in the same finding.

5. False. A team of investigators at Illinois State University made a psychological study of more than 100 men and women students. Each was given a battery of standard personality tests. Then the handwriting characteristics of each person were carefully tabulated. The characteristic that stood out most significantly as an indicator of personality traits was "missing i dots." The personality tests showed that people who frequently skipped dotting their i's tended to display self-confidence, self-sufficiency, non-submissiveness, an outgoing temperament and an interest in and liking for other people.

6. True. In psychological studies that compared handwriting characteristics with the results of personality tests, it was found that the handwriting of introverts and extroverts tended to differ markedly in one particular respect: the size of the handwriting. The extrovert's writing was appreciably larger than the average introvert's. The study showed, however, that the handwriting of both introverts and extroverts is affected by personality conflicts, emotional crises, neuroses, and so forth. fw

Do you suffer from painful elimination?

First of all, you should know that you are not alone. Thousands of people experience pain from dry, hard stools. The reason is often constipation or hemorrhoids. What's needed is something that will soften intestinal waste for smooth, comfortable relief.

And that's exactly what Serutan does. Serutan is a softening laxative that helps relieve painful elimination. It forms a smooth, mild gel that supplies moisture and bulk to bring effective relief without strain or griping.

Serutan is the same formula as the laxative prescribed by many doctors to give their patients the relief they want with real comfort.

Do you suffer from painful elimination? Try the Serutan way to gentle regularity. Soon you should discover that elimination can be as smooth, easy and comfortable as nature intended.

When People Criticize— How to Come Out Ahead

By Robin Worthington

"I'm only telling you for your own good. . . ." "Now, please don't take this personally, but. . . ."

Instinctively, when we hear those words, most of us cringe. We know what's coming—the put-down.

Yet we don't have to let criticism damage our self-esteem. We can't do much to change our critics, but we can change our own response to criticism. Instead of consenting to let criticism tear us down, we can make criticism work for us.

"The key to coping with criticism is to evaluate it," say the human-behavior experts. Easier said than done? Right, but you can find help as close as your nearest dime store. Carla, an attractive young wife I know, did just that.

"I used to pretend I didn't even hear criticism," she confided. "But by myself, I'd brood. Was I really as bad a housekeeper as my mother-in-law said? Was I really as much of a klutz at the card table as my husband said?

"One day I decided to get firm with myself. I marched down to the dime store and bought a spiral notebook. I started writing down what people criticized me for—the way some people keep track of calories.

"At first I was scared—it seemed such a negative thing to do. Then I discovered I felt very brave writing everything down. I could decide for myself whether my critics were right—or if I cared. For instance, my husband's criticism about my bridge-playing—I decided he was right! I do play badly, and bridge is important to us. So I signed up for bridge lessons, and I'm improving already.

"Buying that notebook changed my life. Now I'm finding out what I think is important instead of getting upset because I can't please everyone."

There are several ways we can improve our ability to cope with criticism. Here are some guidelines:

1. When you're criticized, stall for time. Take a deep breath. When you're under stress, you tend to breathe shallowly and rapidly. If you inhale and exhale deeply, you not only increase your sense of well-being, but you play for time before answering your critic—whether boss, wife or boyfriend.

2. Is the criticism really directed at you? Next time criticism seems misplaced, ask yourself if you're the cause of the other's wrath or merely the object. Maybe your critic is really mad about commuting traffic or inflation or taxes.

As one wife says, "Life got simpler the day my husband admitted he isn't mad at me when he pays the bills—but he doesn't have anyone else to shout at."

3. Evaluate your critic's competence. Your neighbor criticizes your taste in home furnishings, but she wouldn't know a Picasso from a planter box. Don't seethe, just shrug. If your boss criticizes your sales report, listen. If he tells you how to raise your children better, his criticism may be no more valid than that of your maiden aunt Martha.

4. Consider your critic's motives. Some people think they pull themselves up by pulling others down. If you realize that their criticisms often reflect their own fears, it's easier to remain calm. If your co-worker criticizes your skirts as too short, maybe she's worried about her own attractiveness.

5. Your critics could be right. All your critics won't be wrong all the time. If you've heard a certain criticism many times before, it just might be true. And, as marriage counselor Dr. Allan Fromme says, "We are not adults if we cannot face a moment of truth with ourselves."

6. Motivate yourself — the right way. Motivation experts tell us it doesn't help to make vague resolutions like, "I won't let criticism bother me." To make criticism work for you, evaluate the criticism, then write down your action decision in one simple, positive phrase on a 3x5 card. Keep the card where you'll see it during the day—on your mirror or in a desk drawer. Every time you see the card, reaffirm your decision.

Oh, yes—then give yourself a pat on the back each time you follow through on your decision to make criticism work for you. fw

Lady Plugs In Zoysia Grass Saves Time Work & Money

SPECIAL INTRODUCTORY OFFER! ORDER NOW AND GET UP TO 200 PLUGS FREE!

Amazoy is the Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office for our Meyer Z-52 Zoysia Grass.

By Mike Senkiw
Agronomist

Every year I watch people pour time and money into lawns that fail them just when they want their lawns the most.

I see them reseed, feed, water, weed and mow, mow, mow! When it turns to hay in midsummer, I feel like calling out, "For Heaven's sake, when are you going to stop throwing money away and switch to Zoysia Grass."

In comparison, I'm always happy to get letters from people who have plugged in my Zoysia Grass, because they write to tell me how beautiful their lawns are even in midsummer heat and drought.

IT'S AS HARDY AS BEAUTIFUL!

A typical Zoysia owner, Mrs. Harry Winslowe in the heart of wintry New England tells how she got rid of weeds with Zoysia: "We had a lawn that was a disgrace. My husband used weed killer for every known weed—but next season new weeds sprang up. We dug the lawn up twice and re-seeded before we learned about Zoysia. It does everything you say . . . how pleased we are with our Zoysia lawn."

And from Iowa came word that the State's largest Men's Garden Club picked a Zoysia lawn as the "top lawn—nearly perfect" in the area. Yet this lawn had been watered only once all summer up to August.

Cuts Your Work, Saves You Money

Your deep-rooted, established Amazoy lawn saves you time and money in many ways. It never needs replacement . . . ends re-seeding forever. Fertilizing and watering (water costs money, too) are rarely if ever needed. It ends the need for crabgrass killers permanently. It cuts pushing a noisy mower in the blistering sun by 2/3.

CHOKES OUT CRABGRASS

Thick rich, luxurious Amazoy grows into a carpet of grass that chokes out crabgrass and weeds all summer long. It will NOT winter kill. Goes off its green color after killing frost, regains fresh new beauty every Spring—a true perennial!

FOR SLOPES, PLAY AREAS, BARE SPOTS

If slopes are a problem, just plug in Amazoy. When established, it will end erosion—also plug it into hard-to-cover spots, play-worn areas, etc.

YOUR OWN SUPPLY OF PLUG TRANSPLANTS

Your established turf provides you with Zoysia plugs for other areas as you may desire.

WEAR RESISTANT

Your Amazoy lawn takes such wear as cook-outs, lawn parties, lawn furniture, etc. Grows so thick you could play football on it and not get your feet muddy. Even if children play on it, they won't hurt it—or themselves.

NO SEED, NO SOD!

Do not mistake Amazoy pre-cut plugs for sod or seed of any type of grass. There's no seed that produces winter-hardy Meyer Zoysia. Sod of ordinary grass carries with it the same problems as seed —such as weed, diseases, frequent mowing, burning out, etc.

Order now for Bonus Plugs Free; earliest delivery at planting time in your area. Each order is shipped the same day as taken from the soil, shipping charge collect, via most economical means.

MEYER Z-52 ZOYSIA GRASS WAS PERFECTED BY U.S. GOVT. • APPROVED BY U.S. GOLF ASSOC.

PLUG AMAZOY INTO OLD LAWN, NEW GROUND OR NURSERY AREA

Just set Amazoy plugs into holes in ground like a cork in a bottle. Plant 1 foot apart, checker board style. Every plug 3 sq. inches.

When planted in existing lawn areas plugs will spread to drive out old, unwanted growth, including weeds. Easy planting instructions with order.

No Need To Rip Out Present Grass

Plug my Zoysia into an entire lawn or limited "problem areas." With the same leaf color and appearance as blue grass, it will blend perfectly. Plug it into poor soil, "builder's soil," clay or sandy soils — even salty, beach areas, pool areas and I guarantee it to grow!

Every Plug Guaranteed to Grow In your Soil In your Area

- WON'T WINTER KILL—has survived temperatures 30° below zero!
- WON'T HEAT KILL—When other grasses burn out, Amazoy stays green and lovely!

Every plug must grow within 45 days or we replace it free. Since we're hardly in business for the fun of it—you know we have to be sure of our product.

Weird New Sonic Lure Caught Fish Like Crazy!

By Lyman Walton, Co-Inventor
As Told to Paul Stag, The Weekend Fisherman

Think of it! My new VIBRATING LURE gives loud, GURGLING, SPLASHING, BUBBLING sounds as you skitter it along the surface of the water! Sends out up to 200 vibrations every minute underneath that water! Looks COMPLETELY UNLIKE ANYTHING THAT ANY FRESH WATER FISH HAS SEEN BEFORE.

And has already used this weird sight and weird sound and weird sonic vibrations — in one of its very first Summer trials — to lure fish into attacking it so savagely that they actually knocked it out of the water. Hauled in trout, bass, muskie, walleye, and pike, even when other lures had caught little or no fish right next to it! Here's why —

CAUGHT! 120 FISH IN ONE HOUR!

Yes! Imagine that YOU were there — at Cattail Lake, Illinois, on August 20, 1961. A hot summer day! A beautiful stream-fed pond — 90 by 60 feet wide! Fishermen trying lures, flies, natural bait! But despite the fact that this is a stocked trout farm with no limit, there is only an occasional strike. It looks like a wasted day!

And then, three die-hard friends decide to try their luck with me! We start to cast from the edge of the water. At the end of our lines is an ENTIRELY DIFFERENT LURE — a weird little metal monster that casts like a bullet, and flutters back through the water like a drowning bat!

EVEN EXPERIENCED FISHERMEN WATCHED IN AMAZEMENT!

Almost at once THAT QUIET WATER EXPLODES INTO ACTION! The first strike causes a shout of excitement! And then a second strike! A third, fourth, sixth, seventh, eighth! Beautiful rainbows and browns still shimmering from the water — being pulled in at the rate of more than one every minute!

Now the water is almost exploding with fish striking! Sometimes four and five trout savagely attack one lure at the same time! Fifty — seventy — ninety fish are caught and released! People along the shore stop to watch the spectacle!

In one short hour, we have caught and released 120 fish! All WITH the very same weird little lure that can go to work for you next week, without your risking a penny!

Meet Lyman Walton
co-inventor of the amazing VIBRA-BAT LURE.

WHAT'S THE SECRET? UNDERWATER SONIC VIBRATIONS!

Why did this bat-shaped lure catch fish by the stringer-full — even after ordinary lures, and natural bait have caught little or nothing? For this simple reason —

Because this lure gives off unique GURGLING, BUBBLING, SPLASHING SURFACE NOISES — plus up to 200 sonic vibrations every minute underneath that water — that I believe FISH FIND IRRESISTIBLE!

Yes! I am certain that sonic pulsations are the answer to every fisherman's prayer. I have studied the Navy Fish Biologist reports about the sounds fish make between themselves in the water! I have seen fish follow the propellers of a boat as though they were hypnotized by the sound!

And I have always believed that if I could take those gurgling, bubbling, splashing surface sounds and underwater vibrations — that actually seemed to CALL FISH TO THEM — and build that sound into a "Vibrating Lure" then it could haul in eye-popping catches, even where ordinary lures had caught little or nothing at all! Even in hard-fished waters where the wise old fish run away from ordinary lures!

JUST READ THESE FISH-CATCHING ACHIEVEMENTS! TRY IT AT OUR RISK!

Yes! Research showed me that lures, like fish, create Sonic Vibrations in the water by their movements! So I have designed a lure that I estimate FLUTTERS THROUGH THAT WATER UP TO 200 TIMES A MINUTE! Wing-shaped — bat-like — JERKING AND FLUTTERING MADLY THROUGH THAT WATER — SENDING OUT IRRESISTIBLE SONIC WAVES — GURGLING, SPLASHING, BUBBLING SURFACE SOUNDS THAT TRAVEL THROUGH WATER IN EVERY DIRECTION, AT THE RATE OF 4,760 FEET EVERY SECOND, THE ACTUAL SPEED OF SOUND UNDER WATER!

THIS IS AN ARTIST'S CONCEPTION OF THE VIBRA-BAT LURE AND IT'S SONIC EFFECT UNDER WATER! I believe it to be irresistible to fish! Try it entirely at our risk!

No wonder this "VIBRA-BAT" lure caught a 10 pound 7½ ounce Northern on one of its first tests — only moments after it hit the water — hauled in six bass in sixty minutes in another test, all 2½ pounds or larger — pulled in perch by the dozens in a third test at Belmont Harbor, Illinois, even after live bait and lures had scarcely a strike, and CONTINUED to land so many fish, so quickly, THAT FISHERMEN WATCHED IN AMAZEMENT!

No wonder our tests show this revolutionary new lure hauls in trout, bass, muskie, walleye, pike, salmon and other fresh water fish even in hard fished waters — produces strikes even when other fishermen alongside it are going almost unrewarded!

AMAZING 6-MONTH TRIAL OFFER

You simply cannot believe the fish-catching powers of this amazing lure until you try it yourself, FOR 6 FULL MONTHS ENTIRELY AT OUR RISK! We cannot guarantee, of course, that these amazing VIBRA-BAT SONIC LURES will produce for you in every pond, river or lake everytime you go fishing BUT WE DO GUARANTEE that these VIBRA-BAT LURES will definitely catch MORE fish for you . . . make you agree that this is the greatest little lure you've ever used — OR SIMPLY RETURN THEM ANYTIME WITHIN SIX FULL MONTHS FOR EVERY CENT OF YOUR PURCHASE PRICE BACK!

You and you alone are the only judge! You have nothing to lose! Send in the Six Month Trial Coupon TODAY!

SPECIAL NOTICE

Harrison Industries has told on this page the amazing story of the VIBRA-BAT as related to us by Lyman Walton.

We have received signed statements from Lyman Walton and other fishermen that these facts are correct.

Incidentally — the words "Gurgling — Splashing — Bubbling" are Walton's particular translation of the weird sound. Actually no two fishermen would agree on a description of this sound. But you will agree on its amazing results, or your money back!

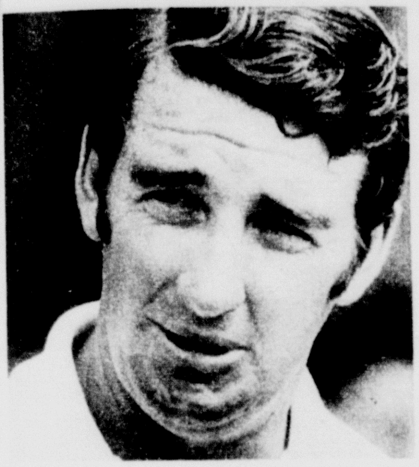
J. C. SNEAD:
"My Uncle's Like a Father to Me"



A broken ankle turned out to be a blessing for Jesse Carlyle Snead. It convinced him to give up baseball and switch to golf. That switch has brought the name "Snead" back into athletic prominence. J. C.'s uncle is Sam Snead, one of golf's all-time greats. . . . Sam didn't influence his nephew to take up the game. "When I was in school, people were always throwing it up to me about being a Snead," J. C. recalls. "I got tired of hearing it. I'd answer, 'So what if my name is Snead? I'm not a golfer!'" To get out from Uncle's shadow, J. C. picked baseball and played three seasons for a Washington Senators' farm team. The broken ankle helped convince him that he couldn't make the big leagues. He decided to forget his sensitivity and follow his uncle's trail. . . . As a youngster, J. C. rarely got to see his famous uncle. It was only when J. C. turned to golf full-time that his uncle provided coaching tips. J. C. has won nearly $100,000 on the tour during each of the last two seasons. "Sam's just like a father to me now," J. C. says. . . . When J.C. started on the golf tour, he couldn't find any sponsors to back him. Uncle Sam thought this was a good thing. "He was helped by the fact that he had nobody to lean on. It made him determined to become as great a golfer as possible," Sam points out. . . . In appearance, J. C. and Sam don't look related. J. C. is bigger and heavier. Nor can J.C.'s golf swing match the grace and rhythm Uncle Sam used to display. But what J. C. lacks in style, he more than makes up for in power.

Why Do Dogs Eat Grass?

City dogs often gorge themselves on grass the minute they feel the green stuff between their toes. Country dogs find it less of a novelty and are apt to munch more moderately. Opinions differ as to why dogs eat grass. Some authorities think it is because they need a tonic; others believe Bowser is trying to get vitamins and minerals or a little roughage for his gastrointestinal tract. Whatever the reason, there is nothing basically wrong with grass-eating unless it is carried to extremes. If Bowser overindulges this vegetarian diet, the grass can wad up and irritate his stomach. He may then regurgitate the stuff. To be sure Bowser is getting all his vitamins, feed him a quality commercial dog food and not table scraps.—By Felicia Ames

Childbirth in 1974: Eight Things Every Young Parent Should Know

By David Hartman

David Hartman: "There are things many of us parents and potential parents could do and should do to insure that we have the healthiest babies possible."

When the ABC television network asked me to do an hour and a half show for "The Wide World of Entertainment," I said I would—if I could pick the subject. The subject I chose was "Birth and Babies." It will be aired on March 20.

Why did I pick this subject? It interests me. Someday I hope to marry and have children. And there are things many of us as parents and potential parents could do and should do to insure that we have the healthiest babies possible.

I am not a doctor. I watched and learned like any other layman as we filmed at Cedars of Lebanon Division, Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, Los Angeles. Dr. Philip Brooks was the obstetrician-gynecologist who delivered the baby and Dr. Donald Lacky was the pediatrician who looked after the newborn infant. I was most impressed by these men, who seemed fired with renewed enthusiasm each time they delivered and cared for a newborn infant.

The following are salient points—some old hat, some new—that I learned and think should be passed on:

1. Every birth must be treated on its own terms. Each is different. And the more the medical team that officiate know about the father and mother and fetus, the better prepared they are.

2. Having a baby a few years ago was like giving birth in the Dark Ages. Today parents can work and study together to understand the development of the fetus and to know what to do during labor. The father is, in a way, a coach, and his presence not only lends strength to the mother during labor, but brings the family together at its greatest moment of joy.

3. Labor is defined as hard work—and it is. A basic principle of physics has to be overcome to give birth. Women sometimes get so intrigued by what is happening to them that a contraction may catch them unaware. And for the man? Well, what the woman goes through is nothing less than a miracle!

4. The mental attitude of the mother at the time of birth is very important, and correct guidance during her pregnancy and knowledge of exactly what is going on alleviate her anxiety. This, in turn, minimizes the need for medication.

> "Having a baby a few years ago was like giving birth in the Dark Ages."

5. Monitoring devices are now employed so that one can tell exactly how the fetus is reacting to what is going on during labor. Any sign of distress can be detected immediately.

6. The delivery is a team effort, not only on the part of the father, who coaches the mother in breathing and bearing down, but by the anesthetist, nurses and doctors as well. The neonatologist—a pediatrician who specializes in the first 28 days or so of an infant's life—also comes onto the scene. He can help the obstetrician-gynecologist during the delivery by positioning the fetus, keeping an eye on the monitoring and then taking over the care of the infant after birth.

7. After the birth, the woman needs a period of time to get acquainted with this new human being who simply didn't exist such a short time before. Everyone—mother, father and infant—has adjustments to make.

8. Babies are not merely small adults. They are unique. Babies in trouble need specialized care, specialized equipment. It behooves all parents to know if their newborn child might need this care. If it is suspected that the baby might, they should find out where to get it. The obstetrician is the one to ask.

How to keep your money from being MURDERED!

by Gary Halbert

© 1974 Good News Publishing Co.

If you are lucky enough to have any money set aside for a rainy day and you're keeping it in a savings account, you are really loosing money hand over fist.

Your money is probably earning about 5¼ per cent interest. Since inflation is averaging 8 per cent to 10 per cent a year, you are not even breaking even. And the way things are going this year it can only get worse.

Do you realize that you have to spend $1.49 to buy as much steak as you could buy for a dollar only a few months ago?

If you have any money invested in the stock market, you are really asking for it. Eighteen months ago Winnebago was considered one of the safest of the blue chip stocks on the New York Stock Exchange. A thousand dollars invested in this "safe" stock only a year and a half ago, as of this writing, would have shrunk to $145.00. And hundreds of stocks have done even worse.

What about U.S. Savings Bonds? As an investment they are really a joke. Ten years ago if you had invested $1,000.00 of your hard earned money in series "E" government bonds you would have by now earned only $7.44 a year in purchasing power.

Well, how about keeping your money hidden in an old sock under the mattress? Had you tucked away a thousand dollars in this manner in 1957, by now your purchasing power would have dropped a full 40 per cent. Are things about to get better?

No way.

The year 1974 promises to produce the highest inflation rate in the last 22 years. Prices, as you may have noticed, are going no where but up. Some, like meat and gasoline are going right out of sight. The plain fact is that your money is in more danger right now that at anytime since 1929.

Is there a way out? Is there any place at all to put your money where it is safe? Where will it earn enough interest to keep ahead of inflation? Where you can get at it instantly in case of an emergency? Is there?

You bet there is!

The answer is going to surprise you. The best place to keep your money is probably the same place you are keeping it now. In your bank in a savings account. You've got to start doing things a little differently, however.

Here is just one of the things you can do if you know how. You can go to your bank, take out your savings, fill out a new deposit ticket, put the money right back into another savings account and increase the interest on your savings from 6 to 15 per cent. All in one day! Hard to believe isn't it? But this is just the beginning.

Listen to all of this!

- When you open a new account you can get ten bank gifts instead of one.
- You can withdraw your money and still earn interest on it.
- You can have two savings accounts paying you interest at the same time on the same money.
- You can earn interest on money you have spent months ago.
- You can earn more money on your checking account than most people earn on their savings accounts.
- You can earn interest on the money other people have on deposit.

All of this is perfectly legal. Everything you will be doing is not only permitted but actually encouraged by banks and other financial institutions because the more money you make the more money they make. In fact, they use these techniques themselves. And during all this, your money will be insured 100 per cent by the U.S. Government. All of this is carefully explained in a new book titled, "How to Rob a Bank Without a Gun."

The book was written by an Ohio school teacher named George Jenney as part of a research project for a publishing company. The book is easy-to-read, easy-to-understand, and can lead you step-by-step to a new financial independence. The book is not now available at book stores or newsstands.

You can get a copy if you hurry by sending your name and address and $6.95 in cash, check, or money order payable to The Good News Publishing Co., Dept. No. 1095. 7576 Freedom Ave., N.W., North Canton, Ohio 44720.

The book will be sent to you promptly by return mail. The publisher guarantees that this book will show you how to at least double the earning power of your money.

If not, or for any reason you are dissatisfied, you can return the book for a full and immediate refund of your entire purchase price. You can't lose.

Send for the book today. Remember, now more than ever you have a real money fight on your hands and it is only going to get worse.

Here is a chance to put the odds on your side.

CHUCK CONNORS
A blanket security system

A pistol-packer on film (and rifle-slinger on TV reruns), Chuck Connors also keeps a gun next to his bed in his home. In fact, he has one of the most intricate security systems in all of Los Angeles. "I have everything from closed-circuit TV to a Westinghouse Alarm System that sets off an alarm and alerts the security guard; two German police dogs, a searchlight that can immediately light up the whole place and a shotgun next to my bed. No one," he adds, "has ever penetrated my defense." With that kind of setup, who would dare try?

RON BLOMBERG & PETE GOGOLAK
Hair's the thing . . .

Do you laugh at TV commercials that show professional athletes in locker rooms discussing hair sprays, hair creams and hair dyes? Well, maybe it's more serious than you think. Recently Ron Blomberg, the left-handed power hitter for the New York Yankees, got himself a "weave job"—a complicated process by which hair is woven into the already existing tufts to cover the bald spots on top. Football star Pete Gogolak of the New York Giants has the opposite problem. He has his hair, but he's a compulsive comber. The last thing he does before going on the field is to run a comb through his locks. In his new autobiography, Gogolak writes: "A thousand guys have said to me: 'This is one hell of a time for you to be worrying about your hair,' and I agree with them. It is." But, he explains, long, messy hair "could spoil my concentration. I don't want hair flapping around my neck when I'm trying to make a 50-yard field goal. Besides, long hair is a pain after a game. I don't want to spend half an hour getting my hair dry enough to go outside." From "Nothing to Kick About," by Peter Gogolak with Joseph Carter (Dodd, Mead & Co., $6.95).

Jadee

Jadee started out as a Playboy bunny in 1962. She is now a "bunny mother," supervising the 96 beautiful bunnies of New York's Playboy Club. "At the time I started," says Jadee, "wearing the bunny costume was very sexy and risqué, but now the outfit looks like a bathing suit. People, including the families that come in, are looking for service in a nice, clean atmosphere and not sex, sex, sex. In fact, bunnies have lost some of their mystique, but we've always stressed personality anyway. If I had a daughter, I'd think twice about encouraging her to be a bunny. It's a lucrative job and the hours are flexible, but it's totally physical and exhausting. I reached a point where I didn't want to carry around 30-pound trays of glassware, throw together salads and take out food. But I like what I'm doing now."

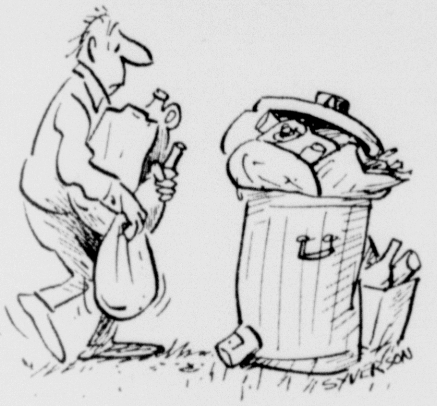
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



CAN DO

Our trash can quickly filled with trash.
We bought a second, feeling rash.
That trash can filled, in just a wink.
Does trash, then, swell? Do trash cans
shrink?

Although it seemed a bit absurd,
We did, in time, procure a third,
And that too filled up to the top
With trash each week. Where will it
stop?

With trash I stuff each can and rant:
The thing is not a can but can't.

Little boy to departing father: "Daddy, please bring me home a rat from the race today." —Dorothea Kent

The big-city reporter asked the small-town editor why people bought his newspaper, since they already knew what everybody in the town had done that week. "They buy the paper," the rural editor explained, "because they want to find out which ones got caught." —Lucille J. Goodyear

A traveler in the mountains of West Virginia stopped to talk with a woman sitting on her porch one bright autumn day. They both were admiring the breathtaking view of forests and hills, the smoke rising from the chimney of a distant cabin, the tilled fields on the steep hillsides, the woods filled with game, a fresh creek gurgling nearby.

"This," said the stranger, awed, "surely is heaven."

The woman, with full knowledge of the hardships of rural living, made a face. "It's heaven if you're a man or a dog," she said. "But it's hell if you're a woman or a mule." —Dan Bennett

The other day, while cleaning, I ran across the following exercise in penmanship and/or letter writing, written by our seven-year-old granddaughter, Erika. The terse text, devoid of salutation and punctuation, ran:

It was the first day of school for my six-year-old grandson, but he said he couldn't go because he had to think. "What must you think about?" asked his mother.

My grandson piped up, "I must think if I am doing the right thing." —Mrs. Lillian Wilson
